The 90 size horizontal engines share the same components except, the Clutch, shift drum, and the Sub Transmission used on CT90 models. The shift drum does not have to be changed. CT90 has all gears down, and the CL90 has one down and three up gears. For the conversion, you will need the Clutch assembly, right crankcase clutch cover with manual clutch lever from a CL90 engine, and a clutch cable. The left handlebar lever on the earlier CT90 is used for rear brake, it will be used for the manual clutch. The later CT90 models did not have a rear brake lever on the left side. For those models you will need a bracket for the clutch lever. Below I will show how easy it is to make the conversion. One on the top is from a CT90 and the bottom one is from a CL Notice the difference in the oil dipstick location. The Clutch Oil passage is exactly in the same place as the CT90 cover. The manual clutch lever in place. The original CL90 clutch cover was painted with the center polished. The cover is one piece, just like the CT90 cover. The earlier S90 had two piece clutch cover, with removable center. Closer look at the clutch lever. This cover is powder coated black for my custom CT The manual clutch center is removable with the clutch plates installed. CL90 uses different clutch plates than the CT You cannot use the CT90 auto Clutch in this conversion. On the top are the CT90 auto clutch parts. Everything is replaced by the plunger assembly in the bottom of the picture. The center bearing and the clutch cover are the same as the CT The manual clutch plunger fits in the same place as the CT90 auto clutch mechanism.
