AOL user We had this car for a month while driving the steering felt loose next thing I know my left rear tire was no longer a feature on my car. I do not speed because this car is really not for that; regardless of the look, I avoid potholes, even sewer covers because everything affects your suspension. So for that to happen was very bad. When driving; its hard to find dead gear it take about 4 to 5 min to find it by the time I do there goes another red light. Overall the service has been fair. Once work was performed it was good but service leading up to it was marginal. It has been flat bedded twice, First time car went dead. He said they had fixed a few-wondered how many other dealers had this repair!! What if that happened to a woman in a Mall lot-at night!! Had then had the written up steering problem- wheel shook badly while backing up. At first, received what I felt was a cold shoulder, Mgmt said they had NO knowledge of such a problem. Gave them an address on line, so they became somewhat doubtfully aware. Ultimately, they ordered a new steering column and it was received. This service was performed so far-so good. At about miles noticed the driver seat seam on backrest showing signs of wear. They tried 3 times to get a replacement and they then had it repaired-good. Admit, that most of my driving is city. With tires always inflated to required, mileage on last tank was In fairness, one young lady at dealer did her best to be helpful and SHE read the steering article and believed it! Tried talking to Gen Mgr. One bought a used Lexus and the other an Altima. It is very fast particularly above 50 mph and is amazingly smooth and stable at triple digits with its long wheel base, and 1 to 60 in 6 sec. It is a great looking car with spectacular fit, finish and paint. The brakes are actually more than adequate, even better than good for a normal car. Oh and combined 26 mpg which I consistently am able to achieve even with my moments No it is not everything but an amazingly good try at having it all anyway. The front bumper eventually starts to seperate from the car. I brought it to the attention of the dealer and I was accused of damaging the car with no other evidence of damage. They were told the same thing. I smell class action lawsuit. This is my third Hyundai. My biggest complaint is the passenger seat , it is much to low. Wish they would come out with a fix. Not only is the exterior styling far and away the pick of the litter, the interior is stunningly well designed and equipped. But,overall, I am delighted with the vehicle both inside and out. For the price, size, and uniform excellence of design and performance, Sonata may well be in a class of its own. Looked at Toyota Camry and Nissan Altima when shopping. For the price and features as well as interior room picked Sonata. Gas MPG Hwy probably could be higher at speed limit. Day to Day driving mix of local and highway avg approx Great leg room in back seat, good size trunk. He had done his homework and this car presented the most value I took one look and fell in love. If I had one complaint it would be that the passenger seat is too low and not eletric like the drivers seat, I am only 4 foot 11 so this makes a difference when I am a passenger. All and all I am very happy with this car Thanks for making a comfortable affordable car that feels like a luxury car!!!!!! The interior feels like a capsule. Driver cannot see the front or rear of the car making parallel parking impossible and other parking a guessing game. Side view is obstructed by large side mirrors and a side bar between front and side windows. Making turns at intersections requires a lot of neck craning to see other traffic or pedestrians at intersections. Most frustrating is the "frozen steering wheel" problem. If the steering wheel is turned while getting out of the stopped car, it freezes and will not start again without considerable and multiple efforts to jerk the wheel until it finally releases. This has happened several times and I have learned not to touch the steering wheel when the car is stopped. My Sonata is an attractive car with good mileage, good pep and a comfortable ride. I would definitely consider another Hyundai product when shopping for a replacement.
