The ultimate makeover: becoming spiritually beautiful in Christ. A brand new wardrobe: replacing rags with a new wardrobe: replacing rags with a royal robe.

By the time I did, I was heartily sick of the offending item. I was the third of two girls in an era where kids wore hand me downs, so I often wore things that were not exactly made for me. I longed for brand new things that fitted and had not been worn by my big sisters. By the time I got them they were faded and shabby and mum would add lace to cover let down hems or unpick and reknit cardigans to get more wear out of them. We wore clothes that were mended and repaired and slept on sheets which were recycled by cutting the worn middle out and resewing the sides as the new middle. Anyway, I digress, your eyes are probably glazing over at my childhood memories, I went go into the recycled refurbished dolls and bicycles we got for Christmas as you might loose interest and not read the next bit “ the good bit. Being a Christian is never static. We never can really stand still or lie down and say its all over, we have made it, lets have a nice rest because he wants us to grow into who and what we are in him. He has a design for us, a pattern which is perfect. That means that what he clothes us with is tailor made for us, perfect for us in every season, but still with room to grow into. Nothing bought cheap in a sale, no hand me downs because each of us are unique and so we require garments designed for our spiritual shape, but with a relaxed fit. Being in him, we can learn those unforced rhythms of grace from the Message paraphrase: Learn the unforced rhythms of grace. So whatever he lays upon us will be perfect for us, whatever garment he choses for us to wear will be our best fit. Then there is the garment of praise, a practical one size fits all garment from Isaiah The clothing that he replaces for us is perfectly designed, eternal and well fitted to every time and stage of our lives. Imagine tossing your shabby old clothes of sin, defeat and despair into the bin and replacing them with a God given garment tailored for you and you alone. And then there are the garments of salvation and righteousness of Isaiah How wonderful to be wrapped up in his righteousness and salvation instead of our old rags of sin and self. The word of God is very specific in mentioning different types of clothing for different spiritual needs. Each piece designed to protect us in spiritual warfare against the enemy of our souls. But we have to remember to put it on and use it. And then there are our heavenly garments in Revelation 7: And we will be there too, no packing, just come as you are, clothed in righteousness. When we give our lives to Jesus, we exchange our old filthy ill fitting shabby clothes tainted with sadness and sin memories for our garments of righteousness. These are a gift, his salvation to us. When we put on those garments of righteousness, they grow along with us, as we mature in our faith. If we stain them with our failures they will still be washed clean by his forgiveness. So what are you waiting for, check out what you are wearing and toss those rags in the bin. Look behind the wardrobe door, your new wardrobe is waiting.

Nowadays, towels have transformed from the once plain, white towels that served a very specific purpose to colorful, ornate options that are as decorative as they are functional. However, through all of the various design trends and the ever-changing popularity of colors, one timeless design has maintained its attractiveness throughout the years: Blue striped towels have become an iconic pattern seen in many bathrooms in homes and businesses throughout the world. Blue stripes have become synonymous with thoughts of sunny days spent lounging near the ocean. So how exactly did bath towels and those iconic blue stripes get their start? Towels – A Little History Long before nautical themes and beach-inspired bathrooms, things like cotton towels and linens were made using a painstakingly long and handmade process. Cotton linens were once considered an expensive luxury that only the wealthy could afford. Dating all the way back to 3, BC, Indian farmers began growing and spinning cotton fibers into yarn for things like clothes and other various linens. Because cotton was lightweight and breathable, it worked well as clothing for long days spent outdoors in the hot sun. Soon, the nearby Egyptians discovered that cotton would grow extremely well along the lush banks of the Nile River. They began planting more and more of it, and from there, specialty Egyptian cotton was born. Egyptian cotton is known as the softest and most sought after type of cotton to this day. Early on, everything in the process of growing, spinning and sewing cotton was done by hand. Cotton was a fantastic material to work with and it had a number of uses, but it was time consuming and expensive to produce. The ability to mass produce cotton fabric propelled its popularity by making it affordable and readily available for anyone to use. This new machine could produce cotton fibers ten times faster than if done by hand. Soon after this groundbreaking invention, people all over the world started to take note of the practicality of cotton and began using the fibers in a variety of household products. Women ordered cotton fibers by the yard and would sew and hem the fabric by hand for sheets and bath towels. By the end of the s, weaving factories were mass producing terry cloth bath towels, which eliminated the need for hand sewing and forever changed the way we purchase cotton towels. Breton Stripes The idea of putting stripes on clothing and linens originally began in as part of the French naval uniform worn by sailors. It was said that the stripes helped to distinguish men from the waves if they fell overboard. During this time, the French Navy hailed from Brittany French translation: Bretagne , a small northwest region in France surrounded by the Atlantic Ocean. So many navy sailors in the area wore the stripes that they eventually became known as the "Breton" stripes in honor of the region. Nautical Inspired Fashion Famous fashion designer Coco Chanel spent some time vacationing in the town of Bretagne in the early s. From there, she was inspired by the Breton stripes seen on the many local sailors and subsequently launched a nautical line of apparel in This nautical inspired line was well received, and high-society women were seen sporting the Breton stripes in cities all over the world. The Breton stripe reached new popularity during the film era of the s, when Hollywood leading ladies like Audrey Hepburn and leading men like James Dean began donning the ever popular nautical inspired pattern. Over the years, the Breton stripe has not lost its popularity in the world of fashion, and it remains a staple in many closets throughout the world today. Bathrooms With Nautical Themes As the popularity of nautical inspired outfits grows, Breton stripes are showing up in other places of life outside of the wardrobe. Choose a wall color – Soft, calming colors invoke memories of being near the beach on a relaxing, sunny day. Creams, whites, soft blues or pinks are common colors that create a soothing, ocean-themed atmosphere. Display beach inspired furniture – If you choose to go the bold route with navy or brown walls, offset these dark colors by choosing a white vanity and cabinet. Further accent the blue and white theme by placing white subway tiles for the backsplash with white or light wood floors. If your bathroom has light-colored walls, offset the soft colors with furniture constructed of unfinished or distressed hardwoods to give it that weather-beaten feel of the ocean. To further add to the nautical theme, choose frames that are white or are made from natural, light-colored woods. Add nautical accessories – Displaying accessories like antique gold anchors, wooden steering wheels and rope curtain tiebacks will take your nautical themed bathroom to the next level. Seashells and sea life can be featured on curtains, furniture cushions and shower curtains. Real seashells and driftwood can be displayed on counters or windowsills to bring the ocean theme to life. Incorporate the iconic Breton stripe – Nothing says nautical quite like the Breton stripe. Hang blue striped bath towels, hand towels and washcloths in your bathroom. Add coordinating blue striped bath mats in front of the bath and sinks to keep your feet warm and dry when you step out of the shower. Displaying a variety of coordinating towels, shower curtains and bath mats will bring all of the small details together and complete your nautical theme.

Other Uses for Blue Striped Towels

Poolside luxuries - When lounging poolside, everyone needs an absorbent towel to dry off with after taking a dip. The blue striped pool towel is the perfect poolside addition. Whether you run a hotel pool or you frequently entertain guests in your own backyard pool, having a selection of quality pool towels on hand is a must. The pop of bright blue will make these pool towels anything but ordinary. Give your guests a little added luxury on their next vacation with soft, absorbent towels. Make a super cute picnic blanket by sewing together four to six of your blue striped bath towels. Cleaning rags – It may seem strange to use your brand new towels for cleaning rags, but if you buy them at wholesale prices, it can be a great use for those extra few that you have nowhere to hang. Plus, because these towels are brand new, they will be super absorbent, making cleaning up messes easier and your household chores go by much faster. Take one of your spare large blue striped bath towels and make a matching pool robe for your children. Dishtowels – Blue striped hand towels can serve a dual purpose as a hand towel in your bathroom and as a dishtowel in your kitchen. Baby bibs – If you have small kids, you know how much food can end up all over your baby rather than in their mouth. Instead of buying a ton of bibs, make your own using your extra towels. Simply cut your towel into a bib shape, hem the edges and sew on ribbon for ties or add Velcro to the ends. Bernard, you know all too well that the amount of drool that comes out of their mouths is astonishing. Except for this one, be sure to add extra-long ties for wrapping around that big, fluffy head. The classic blue stripes will make your dog look dapper while simultaneously serving a very functional purpose. High-quality towels will work great as pillow covers. If they get dirty, they can easily be washed along with the rest of your towels in the washing machine. Superhero cape – Make your kids their very own super hero cape, so they can fly around and save the day! You can easily modify your bath towels by attaching Velcro on both sides of one end for a safe, easy-to-remove cape. You can take it to the next level by adding your own symbol or patch to one side.
