The wedding dress that Diana, Princess of Wales wore in July will go down in history as one of the most iconic gowns of all time. But it turns out, Diana actually had a second wedding dress.

Background[edit] Production crews follow participants as they embark on a journey to achieve their fairytale romance while embracing American culture in the United States. During their pursuit of love, they are forced to leave their servants behind and learn to cook, clean and shop for themselves. They accomplish this by taking menial jobs such as busboys, waiters and dog groomers. Even more revealing is their struggle to adapt to the American working culture. They take these measures in order to fit in and find the perfect woman for each of them. Direct descendent of Spanish and French royalty of the House of Bourbon. Francisco is an entrepreneur who travels frequently. Francisco is an animal lover and has a dog named Snifferson. In this television series, Francisco used the undercover name "Cisco". He met a single mother named Camille Morone. They went to the zoo and had a romantic picnic before he decided to invite her to the ball and reveal his pedigree. She joined him in Spain, where she met his mother. The couple decided that they wanted to see each other again. Salauddin Babi of Balasinor b. Salauddin has the title of Nawabzada of Balasinor, and he was educated at the Rajkumar College, Rajkot. In this television series, Salauddin used the undercover name "Sal". He chose a lawyer named Alison Langley and took her to India after disclosing his identity, but she decided not to continue their relationship. His parents have begun the arranged marriage process. He claims the title of Lord of the Manor of Fullwood as an inheritance from his uncle. He attended a drama school in London, which led to leading roles in amateur theatrical productions. He was scouted by a British modelling agency and began an extensive modelling career. This later led him into television presenting, and he has appeared on a number of television shows. In this television series, Robert used the undercover name "Tate". He met Jasmine Bishop, a pharmaceutical sales rep, early on. They bonded over Shakespeare and swimming together with whale sharks at the Georgia Aquarium. He also met a dolphin trainer named Molly and went on two dates with her. In the end, he asked Jasmine to extend her stay in Europe. The couple decided to continue their relationship, but they later broke up. In Season 2 of this television series, Robert appears in several episodes. The Honourable Ludovic Watson b. However, Ludovic has an older brother named Thomas who is the heir apparent and is most likely to become the next Lord Manton. It is set in an estate of thousands of acres and was once the seat of the now extinct Barony of Langdale. He attended the prestigious Oundle School , which was founded in , and he enjoys hunting, shooting, fishing and skiing. In this television series, Ludovic used the undercover name "Waldo". He met Melissa Braden at a nail salon and decided to disclose his pedigree to her at the ball. She visited him in England, where she did not get along with his aristocratic friends. Melissa told him that they were not a match, and they did not continue their relationship. Season 2[edit] Francis Alexander Mathew b. Direct descendent through his mother of the Russian imperial House of Romanov. Known professionally as Francis Mathew, he is a freelance professional photographer and has contributed to a number of magazines worldwide. He is an active outdoorsman and enjoys keeping fit, rock climbing and reading. In this television series, he initially uses the name "Clint" as his undercover name, then later uses the name "Tom". He claims descent from the House of Medici and originally comes from the town of Martirano in the south of Italy. The main ruling Medici family died out in the 15th century, shortly after the death of Lorenzo the Magnificent this was the line descended from Cosimo the Elder. It lasted about years. A more expanded family tree is found in the Genealogical tables of the House of Medici. Though it is not clear which extant branch of the Medici family that Lorenzo is a descendant of, there is a definite branch associated with the royal house of Bourbon that exists to this day, in southern Italy namely the Ottajano , Ottaviano, and others. North American mis-information regarding the Medici continues to place Gian Gastone, Louis XIII and the successive line of Bourbon Kings in the main branch and this is incorrect, they are all from the cadet branch. Lorenzo enjoys cooking and speaks several languages. His interests include the arts, charity work and family causes. Lorenzo spends his time working with several charities and is interested in pursuing a political career. In this television series, he uses the names "Dean" and "Dino" as his undercover names. He inherited this title in from his late father, Tremayne Rodd, 3rd Baron Rennell , who was a notable rugby player and later a businessman and politician. The current Lord Rennell grew up in London and attended a boarding school. He is a marketing expert who works for an event planning company. He has travelled extensively and enjoys playing tennis, squash, skiing and surfing. In this television series, he uses the name "Sam" as his undercover name. The Honourable Oliver Plunkett b. Oliver is the heir presumptive of his elder brother, Randal , who is the current Baron of Dunsany and a film director and producer. Oliver is a computer game designer and runs a company called Dunsany Interactive. He has a dog named Commander Chow and enjoys playing croquet, video games and skiing. In this television series, he uses the name "Luke" as his undercover name.

By Max Knoblauch But a recent Reddit AMA might have you questioning everything that you think you know about happily ever after. It turns out that the unfaltering Orlando sunshine, heavy costumes and a handful of creepy dads make being a Disney princess a job best left to the two-dimensional realm. Performers do not have a say in what character they play. There are a lot of rumors involving the process of picking characters. You do not have any say in what character they fit you in. They do not tell you why you are not chosen for that character. You could look exactly like Cinderella, but if they do not need to hire any more Cinderellas, you may not get chosen. Disney visitors do some weird stuff. Prepare to be horrified by the actions of strangers. You take individual pictures with the fairies, but we decided to ask if she wanted a special picture with all three of us. Her mom said "Oh no, are you being a little stinker? I know, if you give mommy a lick will you feel better? Disney princesses occasionally prank each other. Lots of dads hit on Pocahontas. Your precocious child makes life difficult. When playing characters who actually existed, like Pocahontas, the Redditor recounted several stories about children asking too many intelligent questions. The Disney employee cafeteria is a lot like Mean Girls. Stop trying to make Scrooge McDuck happen. A little girl grows up going to Disney World with her family. This is how that rumor gets around. I wish someone had asked me this question earlier. Yes, some people are not very nice. That is every workplace on this earth. Too-tsunami broke down how characters can be in so many places during the day without running into one another and the organization is amazing. If all three rooms were operating, that means when the girls went on break, other girls would replace them. So there were a total of six Cinderellas around the area at a time. None of the guests know this because there are attendants to take them into each room, one group at a time. So a group of thirty will go into room one, thirty go into room two, etc. At Epcot she is at the Norway breakfast. A lot of parents encourage their kids to hit characters. What did Tigger ever do to you, Billy? Why must you do this?

This post was sponsored by Princess Cruises. All opinions are my own. I learned so much during the cruise I thought it would be fun to share a few cruise secrets in case you might go on an Alaskan cruise in the future! It was such an amazing experience. I am just trying to decide where!! Here are a few Princess Alaska Cruise Secrets: Get a cheap shoe back to hang on the back of the bathroom door for organization of toiletries you can even find them at the Dollar Store. Go to the casino and ask for a lanyard. They will punch a hole in your cruise card and give you a free lanyard. Having a lanyard means you are less likely to misplace your cruise card. One of the dining rooms will be open for lunch on embarkation day. Bring two battery operated candles- one to put it in the bathroom at night as a night light and the other to put on your balcony. There is also a behind the ear patch you can get before you go on the cruise. You can request free Princess robes to use during stay. Choose this option through the cruise preference link 18 Princess Alaska Cruise Secrets Ask steward for feather pillows on arrival- they are only available upon request. Small alarm clock- no clock in cabin. Or just put your phone on airplane mode and use your phone as an alarm clock. Get a mesh laundry bag or those pop up ones from the Dollar Store to keep your dirty laundry. Take part in the activities and shows. Be sure to get there early to get a good seat. There are also trivia games and prizes too. There are laundry facilities on each floor. There are also irons in the laundry rooms. Bring a small magnetic whiteboard. All of the walls and doors are magnetic. So you can hang it on the outside of your door if you are going with a large group of people for people to leave messages on your door. Or you can hang it inside your cabin so you can write messages to your partner or room companion during the cruise. They keep them by the pool and you can each keep one in your room as long as you turn it in at the end of the cruise. They are perfect for keeping warm while watching the movies under the stars. If the Northern Lights are happening when you cruise, bring a tripod and go out on your deck if you have one. This November, Princess will debut Ocean Medallion a free, wearable device that facilitates extraordinary guest vacation experiences to make cruising more personal and simple than ever before. The Medallion holds your unique digital identity which is encrypted and communicates with thousands of sensors on-board and in port. It lets the Crew see information they can use to serve you better. Such a cool idea! Be sure to check out my other posts
