Participant is the role typically assigned to learners who are attending an instructor hosted Adobe Connect Meeting. A Presenter role is assigned to learners who are making a presentation during an online class.

General What is Poll Everywhere? On the surface, Poll Everywhere is a simple application that works well for live audiences using mobile devices like phones. People participate by visiting a fast mobile-friendly web page for your event or sending text messages. Instructions are displayed on-screen. The poll that is embedded within the presentation or web page will update in real time. Advanced uses include texting comments to a presentation, texting questions to a presenter, responding via the web, and SMS interactivity in print, radio, and TV. How do people respond or otherwise send in comments or questions? You can respond by following the instructions shown on the poll when it is displayed. You send a text message to the number The format of your response is determined by the type of poll. More detailed information can be found in the User Guide. How do I respond to a poll Typically there is no need to register or sign up to respond to any poll questions unless our polls are being used for attendance or grading purposes. If this may be the case you can see how to register here The way we usually work is the presenter or lecturer will display some poll questions live at the event or class on a projector. These polls will have specific instructions for how to respond. It will be something like going to pollev. The specific instructions will be displayed live when you get there. More detailed information for how to respond can be found in the User Guide User Guide How does it work? As a poll is displayed to an audience, they submit responses by visiting a specific web site or by sending text messages to our short code number In the case of text messaging, their mobile carrier routes their text message to our web servers where the response is counted. Once counted, the response is displayed in real time on-screen. You can learn more on our how it works page. How do I teach my audience to participate? What are the best practices from other customers? Our Presenter Notes and Best Practices page gives you our best tips gleaned from thousands of people using Poll Everywhere with live audiences. What is a poll? What is the difference between the different types of polls? Yes, a poll is a single question or prompt you are inviting your audience to interact with. A multiple choice poll lets you define a set of fixed choices that participants can choose from. Results can be displayed in a graph. An example of a multiple choice poll might be, "How many people are on Facebook? An open ended poll allows participants to send free-form text responses or short answers instead of pre-defined choices. An open ended poll might ask, "What questions do you have for the presenter? Their answers might be just one word, a short phrase, or an entire sentence. Can I activate more than one poll at a time? Most presenters want to focus on one poll question at a time with their audience. If you want your audience to be able to answer lots of questions all at the same time, you can set that up. Only one poll can be the active poll at a time. A poll will automatically become the active poll anytime you present it in Powerpoint, Keynote, or fullscreen mode from our website. The active poll is the poll that is being currently displayed on their devices. You have a lot of control: You can deactivate the poll to remove it from their screens, or lock the poll so it no longer accepts responses. When people are responding using text messages, you have several options for how they respond. By default, your poll questions use the "Presenter session" method. In this method, your audience texts your username to join your presenter session. This makes responding very natural: If the second poll is multiple choice and says, "How often do you go to the movies? A Once a month, B A few times per year For a more detailed description check out the user guide section on activating your poll. Surveys, unique web response links, embedding, unique codes, and reserved keywords. Can I combine multiple questions polls into a survey? You can group polls to create a self-paced survey that participants can complete on their own. This is useful when your participants are not together at the same place at the same time. Surveys are great for self-paced questionnaires, pre or post session assessments, and quizzes. On your main "My Polls" list, select some polls, click "Group", and set a name for the group. You may then click the title of your new survey to customize your survey options. Learn more about Surveys. You may also Activate a Survey by selecting the Activation button on the right side of the group. This will post all of the questions polls in this group on your PollEv. Your audience will then go through the survey on their own time. However, if you activate another poll or survey then this one will be de-activated. Our core strength is live audiences, real-time speed, and visualizations. How can I prevent profane, abusive, or off-topic responses from being publicly displayed? Customers on certain paid plans can use the profanity filter and moderation feature. You can either set a profanity filter to censor and replace profanity with asterisks, or you can set the filter to reject messages and prevent them from being displayed. Vulgar humans are always more creative than the smartest technology. We usually suggest the moderation feature over automatic censoring. This feature allows you to review incoming questions one-by-one and approve only the best. There are indeed stupid questions. You can use moderation to prevent soapboxing and focus on the most insightful submission that your audience wants to hear you talk about. What are those numbers or words by each option on a poll? There are two response modes: Each mode has its own response formats. Presenter session keywords are pre-assigned, based on the format you select when creating a poll i. Your participants will first join your presenter session by texting your username to the number listed in the poll instructions in the US. Then they will enter a response. After that, they can continue to send responses to your polls without typing your username. Alternately, in keyword mode, auto-generated codes can be assigned to each response option, so that responses are logged to your account accurately. The codes are 5 to 6 digit numbers. Your participants will not need to join your polling session in order to respond, if you use the auto-generated codes. These response modes allow Poll Everywhere to host multiple polls on one short code. Short codes are expensive, so the presenter session method helps us keep our prices down. We always show response keywords in bold capital letters for clarity, but the audience can use upper or lowercase when they respond. How long will my polls remain unlocked? When do they auto-lock auto-close? When are my reserved keywords released? Polls are unlocked by default when you create them. You can lock a poll if you want to stop allowing responses. Lock the poll by clicking the padlock icon. If days pass without any modification or any responses to the poll with reserved SMS keywords, we will automatically lock the poll. You can see which polls are about to be locked in your My Polls list. Polls with reserved SMS keywords are automatically locked after days of inactivity. If you need more time, just lock the poll manually and unlock it again. By default your questions use a presenter session where your audience will first submit your customizable username to join your session. This is when you would configure a question to use reserved keywords or auto-generated codes. Because these are a limited system-wide resource, they will be released unassigned from your question days after the poll has been locked. Can people respond via the web? These five ways give you the flexibility to fit every situation. You can activate the poll manually from the website or Mobile Presenter App by clicking the activate button. Private links to individual polls present beautiful full-window polls that look great on any device.
