Airplanes and helicopters swooped low over hills and canyons to drop loads of fire retardant and water. A one-day lull in the dry, northeasterly winds ended at midmorning and authorities warned that the gusts would continue through Tuesday. The lull allowed firefighters to gain 10 percent control of the Woolsey fire, which has burned more than square miles square kilometers in western Los Angeles County and southeastern Ventura County since Thursday. Los Angeles County Fire Chief Daryl Osby stressed there were numerous hotspots and plenty of fuel that had not yet burned, but at sunset he said there had been huge successes despite "a very challenging day. Osby noted that a November wildfire in Malibu destroyed more than homes and said he would not be surprised if the total from the current fire would be higher. SoCal Edison said the report was submitted out of an abundance of caution although there was no indication from fire officials that its equipment may have been involved. The report said the fire was reported around 2: Thursday, two minutes after the outage. The death toll stood at two. The severely burned bodies were discovered in a car on a long residential driveway on a stretch of Mulholland Highway in Malibu, where most of the surrounding structures had burned. Authorities said investigators believed the driver became disoriented and the car was overcome by fire. The deaths came as authorities in Northern California announced the death toll from a massive wildfire there has reached 29 people, bringing the statewide total to Progress was made on the lines of smaller fire to the west in Ventura County, which was 70 percent contained at about 7 square miles 18 square kilometers , and evacuations were greatly reduced. But thousands remained under evacuation orders due to the Woolsey fire. Three firefighters suffered minor injuries, Osby said. Also injured was a well-known member of the Malibu City Council. Peak said Wagner was hospitalized but was expected to recover. Areas that suffered significant destruction included Seminole Springs, a mobile home community nestled by a lake in the rugged Santa Monica Mountains north of Malibu. Roger Kelly, 69, who defied orders and hiked back into Seminole Springs, estimated 90 of its approximately homes were destroyed. It did, but just a half-block away others were laid to waste. Your first view of it the destruction , man it just gets you. When he returned, virtually everything on the landscape around the community had been reduced to ash. Spot fires continued to occur late Sunday afternoon near the Malibu campus of Pepperdine University, where 3, students were sheltering in place. The university said it was closing Malibu campus and its Calabasas campus to the north until Nov. But fire officials say fire behavior has changed statewide after years of drought and record summer heat that have left vegetation extremely crisp and dry. That change has impacted the ability to move firefighting resources around the state, officials said.

Beer Battered Onion Rings are the perfect combination of crispy, light and fluffy with a hint of sweetness from the beer. A great side for your summer bbq! Any restaurant you go to always has a huge upcharge on them as sides, some even charging ten or more dollars for them as an appetizer! Just a single onion will make you a mountain of onion rings! It must be complicated right? Beer batter or panko crust? The most important thing to pay close attention to is slicing the onions evenly. How do you make Beer Batter for Onion Rings: Onions â€” I use yellow or Maui sweet depending on which flavor I prefer. In this recipe we will stick with the yellow or sometimes called brown onion. Buttermilk â€” a nice soak in the buttermilk will tame the onion-y flavor. Flour â€” All purpose flour, nothing fancy to see here. Kosher salt â€” use regular table salt if you prefer, I always defer to kosher salt. Black Pepper â€” balancing our seasonings here. I love using a Heineken or Hefeweizen. Canola Oil â€” My go to for frying. How do you get the batter to stick to onion rings? Shake off the excess flour before dipping in the beer batter and frying. What is the batter for onion rings? Onion Rings can be fried with a number of different batters. Can you make beer battered onion rings in the air fryer? No, as a general rule I avoid all wet batter frying in the air fryer. The liquid in the batter would drip off the onion pieces and make a mess in the air fryer. Lodge Cast Dutch Oven: Love these strainers for quickly draining oil away and scooping out fried food. I use this because the pans are wide with a flat bottom.

This is a very easy as well as fast recipe. You only need 2 large apples to get 12 sweet apple treats which is a pretty good number. However, they are highly addictive so I am guessing you will need more apples to make the entire family happy. I made it for the two of us and they went down pretty fast. No matter when you make them, they will taste amazing. Those of you who have an apple tree in your garden will probably end up with more apples that is possible eat. I guess you will give many apples to your family and neighbors but there still be a lot to consume. So you might be looking for new apple recipes such as this easy-peasy fried battered apple rings recipe! Step 1 – The batter: Make the batter by mixing all the ingredients apart from the apples and oil. No need to take out your mixer, simply use a fork. The rum is optional. Now the batter should not be too thin or too thick. If you follow this recipe, you will get a perfect batter for apple rings. Step 2 – The apple rings: You should get about 6 slices out of each apple. After you have peeled the skin off, slice them and using a small round cookie cutter cut out the core. If you have an apple corer go ahead and use it! Step 3 – Deep-frying apple rings: Dip each ring in the batter, insert your fork inside the hole and let it drip a bit before putting it in hot oil. I use frying pan for deep-frying these as they are thin and there is no need for wasting too much oil. Also make sure to not use olive oil for frying. This would give the apples funny flavor! Step 4 – Cinnamon sugar coating: Make sure the apple rings are still warm when coating them with cinnamon flavored sugar. The batter I use is pretty simple and not sweet. That is why it is important to coat them in sugar to make them extra yummy. Use paper kitchen towel to get rid of the excess oil! They both are delicious and quite fast to make! By the way how do you like my new updated post and pictures? I did not make a new video. Want to see how to make Fried Battered Apple Rings?
