How does the Bible define a good Christian family? A good Christian family is one that lines up with biblical principles and one in which each member understands and fulfills his or her God-given role. The family is not an institution designed by man. It was created by God for the benefit of man, and man has been given stewardship over it. The basic biblical family unit is comprised of one man, one woman—his spouse—and their offspring or adopted children. The extended family can include relatives by blood or marriage such as grandparents, nieces, nephews, cousins, aunts, and uncles. One of the primary principles of the family unit is that it involves a commitment ordained by God for the lifetime of the members. The husband and wife are responsible for holding it together, the current attitude of our culture notwithstanding. Although divorce is sought and granted much too easily in our society, the Bible tells us that God hates divorce Malachi 2: Of course, the first requirement for the members of a Christian family is that they all be Christians, having a true relationship with Jesus Christ as their Lord and Savior. The husband is required to love his wife as Christ loved the church, and a wife should respect her husband and willingly submit to his leadership in the family. A father is also to provide for his family. So, a man who makes no effort to provide for his family cannot rightly call himself a Christian. The husband and wife in a Christian marriage are to remain faithful to one another for a lifetime. This does not mean, however, that men and women have identical roles in life. Women are more adept at nurturing and caring for the young, while men are better equipped to provide for and protect the family. Thus, they are equal in status, but each has a different role to play in a Christian marriage. A Christian marriage, foundational to a Christian family, follows the biblical instructions concerning sex. Sexuality expressed according to biblical standards is a beautiful expression of love and commitment. Outside of marriage, it is sin. Children are given two primary responsibilities in the Christian family: Obeying parents is the duty of children until they reach adulthood, but honoring parents is their responsibility for a lifetime. God promises His blessings on those who honor their parents. Ideally, a Christian family will have all members committed to Christ and His service. When a husband, wife, and children all fulfill their God-appointed roles, then peace and harmony reign in the home. But, if we try to have a Christian family without Christ as Head or without adhering to the biblical principles the Lord has lovingly provided for us, the home will suffer.

Or maybe, you already know what Sukkot is and you are wondering why my family would celebrate it as Christians. Either way, read on to get your questions answered or just to see some cute photos of my family having a great time. Sukkot is the seventh and final Biblical Feast given to Israel in Leviticus chapter 23. It is celebrated in the fall, from the 15th to the 22nd of Tishri on the Hebrew calendar to be exact. And, according to Leviticus 23, the Lord instructs the native born Israelites to construct a sukkah, or a booth, or temporary hut and to live in it for 7 days as a reminder of their 40 year sojourn through the wilderness and their deliverance and Exodus out of Egypt. The Lord actually commands that we rejoice during this festival in Deuteronomy 16! So why do I celebrate Sukkot as a Christian? Much like when you marry into a family, you want to get to know them, learn all you can about them, and be with them. I have that desire in my heart to know and understand the Lord and his people my family as deeply as I am capable. And, celebrating Sukkot is fun! What does my family do to celebrate Sukkot? We dwell in a sukkah, of course! It can be built using wood from your yard, or any other materials you might have. If you have older children you can get them involved. Sukkot is a time of fellowship and rejoicing with friends and family, so we invite our friends and family over to enjoy a meal with us. My dad is a musician so we often enjoy a bit of worship music outdoors under our sukkah. Each year it looks a little different as our children get older and we learn more, but one thing remains we celebrate the best we know how in the season that we are in. As a homeschool family, we incorporate crafts and stories into our lessons. We also made an aromatic garland to hang from our sukkah using cinnamon ornaments, dried oranges, and wooden beads. Remember the Lord commands us to rejoice! How to make an Aromatic Garland to hang from your Sukkah: I picked up the materials at my local Walmart while picking up paper goods, ingredients for the recipes I cooked at Sukkot, and other craft supplies for our school projects.

Chapter 4 : Celebrating St. Patrick's Day - 10 Family Christian Traditions | HowStuffWorks

This book takes a Christian approach to the major holidays and tells us a history behind each one. Learn about the well-known holidays such as St. Valentine's Day, Easter, Halloween, Thanksgiving, and Christmas and learn about the other Christian holidays such as St. Lucia Day, Shrove Tuesday, Lent, Ascension Day, and many others.

The Christian concept of the Messiah differs significantly from the contemporary Jewish concept. The core Christian belief is that through belief in and acceptance of the death and resurrection of Jesus, sinful humans can be reconciled to God and thereby are offered salvation and the promise of eternal life. Jesus, having become fully human, suffered the pains and temptations of a mortal man, but did not sin. As fully God, he rose to life again. According to the New Testament, he rose from the dead, [38] ascended to heaven, is seated at the right hand of the Father [39] and will ultimately return [Acts 1: In comparison, his adulthood, especially the week before his death, is well documented in the gospels contained within the New Testament, because that part of his life is believed to be most important. The death and resurrection of Jesus are usually considered the most important events in Christian theology, partly because they demonstrate that Jesus has power over life and death and therefore has the authority and power to give people eternal life. Arguments over death and resurrection claims occur at many religious debates and interfaith dialogues. Salvation Christianity Paul the Apostle, like Jews and Roman pagans of his time, believed that sacrifice can bring about new kinship ties, purity and eternal life. The Catholic Church teaches that salvation does not occur without faithfulness on the part of Christians; converts must live in accordance with principles of love and ordinarily must be baptized. Reformed theology places distinctive emphasis on grace by teaching that individuals are completely incapable of self-redemption, but that sanctifying grace is irresistible. Together, these three persons are sometimes called the Godhead, [56] [57] [58] although there is no single term in use in Scripture to denote the unified Godhead. Though distinct, the three persons cannot be divided from one another in being or in operation. While some Christians also believe that God appeared as the Father in the Old Testament, it is agreed that he appeared as the Son in the New Testament, and will still continue to manifest as the Holy Spirit in the present. But still, God still existed as three persons in each of these times. In some Early Christian sarcophagi the Logos is distinguished with a beard, "which allows him to appear ancient, even preexistent. From earlier than the times of the Nicene Creed, Christianity advocated [63] the triune mystery -nature of God as a normative profession of faith. According to Roger E. Olson and Christopher Hall, through prayer, meditation, study and practice, the Christian community concluded "that God must exist as both a unity and trinity", codifying this in ecumenical council at the end of the 4th century. The distinction lies in their relations, the Father being unbegotten; the Son being begotten of the Father; and the Holy Spirit proceeding from the Father and in Western Christian theology from the Son. Regardless of this apparent difference, the three "persons" are each eternal and omnipotent. The Greek word trias [66] [note 3] is first seen in this sense in the works of Theophilus of Antioch; his text reads: It is found in many passages of Origen. Trinitarianism Trinitarianism denotes those Christians who believe in the concept of the Trinity. Almost all Christian denominations and churches hold Trinitarian beliefs. Since that time, Christian theologians have been careful to emphasize that Trinity does not imply that there are three gods the antitrinitarian heresy of Tritheism, nor that each hypostasis of the Trinity is one-third of an infinite God partialism, nor that the Son and the Holy Spirit are beings created by and subordinate to the Father Arianism. Rather, the Trinity is defined as one God in three Persons. Nontrinitarianism Nontrinitarianism or antitrinitarianism refers to theology that rejects the doctrine of the Trinity. Various nontrinitarian views, such as adoptionism or modalism, existed in early Christianity, leading to the disputes about Christology. Christianity, like other religions, has adherents whose beliefs and biblical interpretations vary. Christianity regards the biblical canon, the Old Testament and the New Testament, as the inspired word of God. The traditional view of inspiration is that God worked through human authors so that what they produced was what God wished to communicate. The Greek word referring to inspiration in 2 Timothy 3: Others claim inerrancy for the Bible in its original manuscripts, although none of those are extant. Still others maintain that only a particular translation is inerrant, such as the King James Version. The books of the Bible accepted by the Orthodox, Catholic and Protestant churches vary somewhat, with Jews accepting only the Hebrew Bible as canonical; there is however substantial overlap. These variations are a reflection of the range of traditions, and of the councils that have convened on the subject. Every version of the Old Testament always includes the books of the Tanakh, the canon of the Hebrew Bible. These books appear in the Septuagint, but are regarded by Protestants to be apocryphal. However, they are considered to be important historical documents which help to inform the understanding of words, grammar and syntax used in the historical period of their conception. Modern scholarship has raised many issues with the Bible. Another issue is that several books are considered to be forgeries. The injunction that women "be silent and submissive" in 1 Timothy 2 [83] is thought by many to be a forgery by a follower of Paul, a similar phrase in 1 Corinthians 14, [84] which is thought to be by Paul, appears in different places in different manuscripts and is thought to originally be a margin note by a copyist. A final issue with the Bible is the way in which books were selected for inclusion in the New Testament. Other Gospels have now been recovered, such as those found near Nag Hammadi in, and while some of these texts are quite different from what Christians have been used to, it should be understood that some of this newly recovered Gospel material is quite possibly contemporaneous with, or even earlier than, the New Testament Gospels. The core of the Gospel of Thomas, in particular, may date from as early as AD 50 although some major scholars contest this early dating, [86] and if so would provide an insight into the earliest gospel texts that underlie the canonical Gospels, texts that are mentioned in Luke 1: Scholarship, then, is currently exploring the relationship in the Early Church between mystical speculation and experience on the one hand and the search for church order on the other, by analyzing new-found texts, by subjecting canonical texts to further scrutiny, and by an examination of the passage of New Testament texts to canonical status. Catholic interpretation Main article: Catholic theology of Scripture In antiquity, two schools of exegesis developed in Alexandria and Antioch. Alexandrian interpretation, exemplified by Origen, tended to read Scripture allegorically, while Antiochene interpretation adhered to the literal sense, holding that other meanings called theoria could only be accepted if based on the literal meaning. The spiritual sense is further subdivided into: The allegorical sense, which includes typology. An example would be the parting of the Red Sea being understood as a "type" sign of baptism. The anagogical sense, which applies to eschatology, eternity and the consummation of the world Regarding exegesis, following the rules of sound interpretation, Catholic theology holds: The injunction that all other senses of sacred scripture are based on the literal [92] [93] That the historicity of the Gospels must be absolutely and constantly held [94] That scripture must be read within the "living Tradition of the whole Church" [95] and That "the task of interpretation has been entrusted to the bishops in communion with the successor of Peter, the Bishop of Rome". Clarity of Scripture Protestant Christians believe that the Bible is a self-sufficient revelation, the final authority on all Christian doctrine, and revealed all truth necessary for salvation. This concept is known as sola scriptura. The significance of the text includes the ensuing use of the text or application. The original passage is seen as having only a single meaning or sense. The moment we neglect this principle we drift out upon a sea of uncertainty and conjecture. Taken together, both define the term Biblical hermeneutics.

Anderson wrote around stories. Even after his death Hans Christian Andersen is still remembered today. Hans Anderson died on August 4, The Andersen home in Odense is now a museum, and thousand of people visit it every year. Totally, an amazing fairy tales of Hans Andersen that grips you delightfully reading even as an adult. Hans Christian Andersen came from a Royal Danish family. However, there is speculation till date that he may have been illegitimate son of the Royal family. As he grew up, Hans Christian was forced to support himself. At 14, he moved to Copenhagen to seek employment as an actor. Having an excellent soprano voice, he was accepted into the Royal Danish Theatre, but his voice soon changed. A colleague at the theatre told him that he considered Andersen a poet. Taking the suggestion seriously, he began to focus on writing. During , Andersen published the first installment of his immortal Fairy Tales Danish: More stories, completing the first volume, were published in and The quality of these stories was not immediately recognized, and they sold poorly. At the same time, Andersen enjoyed more success with two novels: His Specialty book that is still known today was the Ugly Duckling The museum is situated in an 18th century house in which the author has been born and spent a small part of his childhood. An incredible educational experience to enhance appreciation of Andersen: It gives insight of his writing hundreds of works and seeing examples of his sketches and paper cutouts. Not only an Author, a talented artist as well.

So why do I celebrate Sukkot as a Christian? I am a follower of Christ who was a Jew - and I am "adopted" in to His family when I took Christ to be my Savior. Therefore I celebrate all of the Lord's Feasts - not because I HAVE to, but because I WANT to.
