I know my girlfriend has taken me here more than a few times. It seems nice though, down to Earth, and the people working there are having a great time. How would you like to work here? It operates in the United States and targets a young market of women in their teens and twenties. There are locations in 45 states total in malls and shopping centers. As of , there are locations. This story began when Daniel Lawrence and his two brothers were working in the clothing business in Brooklyn, New York. When they were old enough, they created the Lawrence Merchandising corporation. This company began as a single clothing store in Carlsbad, California in . The store was named after a french dessert that they loved as children. Want to take a guess what it was? The two owners continued to open locations within the San Diego, California area throughout the s and the early 80s. The first store outside this area was 20, square feet, which was much larger than the other locations. Most of them at this time were only 5, square feet. In the s, the company switched their style to appeal to the aging audience they had and the daughters of those people. The new owners were poised to expand on the Charlotte Russe brand. They took the company and evolved it into a national chain and took the company public in . The culture of Charlotte Russe revolves around trendy fashion including clothes, shoes, jeans, accessories, dresses and more. The promise is that these things will be modern, but also affordable for young women. In a world that pressure women to look a certain way, Charlotte Russe wants them to just be themselves and love their looks at all times of the day. Direct Competitors Clothing stores are a dime-a-dozen it seems, but each has their own special approach. The process begins here on the website as you search for openings in the location closest to you. From here, you fill out items like your personal contact information and availability. Remember to always leave the availability as open as possible to show your willingness to work. Any previous experience is also filled in at this step in the process. Once you finish filling out the information, you must then print the form and take it to the store of your choice. Here you should ask for the manager so you can turn in the form directly to them and introduce yourself. Adding a face to the name is always a good idea since they get plenty of these forms on a daily and weekly basis. Create or update a LinkedIn profile Follow up in a few days via phone or by stopping in to see. Brush up your knowledge of the company by reading articles much like this one. All of these things will combine to raise your chances of being hired. In some cases, you may receive an invitation to interview within several hours of submitting your Charlotte Russe application. Usually though it will be two or three days before you hear anything back, which affords you time to prepare. You can also follow up after a week has gone by to see what the status of your employment is. Following up in person is smart, but be sure to prepare and dress accordingly as you may score yourself an interview. Other than that, remember what you learned about the company and the culture of it and use those things during your interview. Thanks for reading and best of luck to you in your career!
