An ancient spiritual maxim says, "Find God in all things." Jan Boys is one of those rare people who does. This engaging book about her travels geographical and spiritual invites us to think about our personal travels and reminds us that in the complexity of nature we can see the simplicity of God. Are you seeking God? Do you long for greater significance and purpose in your journeys? Be prepared to find the Lord within its pages, and then listen for the still small voice of God. While standing on a bridge over a turbulent river with shifting currents and swirling whirlpools, most people stop for a few moments, glance down, and see only water rushing below. On the other hand, Jan stood on the bridge over the waters of Deception Pass in Washington State for fifteen minutes or more, studied the turbulent scene, and then wrote about God. Picking a Path Through Turbulence? An Emmaus Journey to the Pacific Northwest. This series of reflections -- a bit of travelogue and treasure hunt -- is drawn from the sights, sounds, and events of the Boys. I create word pictures of places and events from our trips, describe how they relate to life, then listen and search for the presence of God. While dry camping and enjoying the desert? A sampling of the twenty-five reflections from the desert to the redwood forest, from the mountains to the ocean shore includes: Finding God in the Desert? Rio Rancho, New Mexico????? Our Pilgrimage of Prayer? The Grotto, Portland, Oregon????? On Waves and White Noise? Riding the Hiawatha Bike Trail????? Never Forget Your Dreams? Helens Revisited Jan describes this as? She sees more than the sight or event itself. God uses it as a teaching tool, a parable to speak to Jan? Use these reflections and stories to hear the whisperings of God as Jan did. Use them as a travel guide. Visit the same places yourself, look around with new eyes, and see what God reveals to you. Use them as a steppingstone to enable you to find your own sense of purpose and ways to leave a legacy. Jan encourages all of us. We are pilgrims on a journey to our heavenly home. In all your own wanderings and experiences, travel with the Lord, look for Him in the everyday stuff of life, and listen for the still small voice of God. Providing information on 60 of the communities that are most rich in amenities across North America, this handy sourcebook guides retirees toward outstanding places to spend their golden years. Betty Jane Kimpton Language: Quoting Betty Jane Kimpton, 84 years of age, There is so much to live for and to be thankful for without looking on the dark side of life and the many ailments that come in our senior years. She is a person who enjoys making humor out of most situations and finds any subject to be a topic on which to pen a poem. Any word or subject is bait for one so apt to write poetry. It is with this thought in mind that this book has been written with the hope that others may enjoy fictional situations that can occur in any residence such as a retirement home or elsewhere. Her past vocations have been that of a grade school student writing poetry, a high school student writing drama that was acted out there, composing both poetry and music as the situations came up, a nurse, a wife and mother of three sons, a secretary, a you name it as she calls it. When asked what her vocation is now, she replies, I am a Household Executive! Narration has been made of various incidents taking place there, both humorous and serious. This has been interspersed with poetry written by the author and Christian quips that enhance the rendition of life as it has been, is and that which is to come.

See Further Reading at end for links to the other regions compared in the series â€” February 16, â€” The Pacific Northwest has continued to experience amazing population growth since the end of World War II. But another demographic segment flocking to the region for its beauty, outdoor recreation, and in many cases, to be near their adult children, is the huge baby boomer group. In this article we will compare and contrast these 2 vital states, Oregon and Washington. Population and income data is from American Fact Finder-U. A Few Facts Washington is the more populous of the 2 states. It had a population of just under 4. Washington has a younger makeup than Oregon â€” Economics and Home Prices. Oregon and Washington were not hit as hard by the housing meltdown as many other states were. Seattle skyline Cost of Living The Numbeo. Since the Index for New York City is , that means both cities are less expensive than the Big Apple, with it being cheaper to live in Portland. Climate Being close to the same latitude, Washington and Oregon tend to have similar climates. The actual biggest differences are the very wet coastal sections of these states with their desert-like eastern reaches. In Washington the western side of the Olympic Peninsula receives as much as inches of precipitation annually, making it the wettest area of the 48 lower states and a temperate rainforest. Mountain ranges include the Olympics in the west and then the Cascades, with the Selkirks in the northeast. The northeast part of the state tends to have temperature extremes; hot in summer and cold in winter. In Seattle the temperature is quite moderate â€” the average high is 46 in January and 76 in August. Over in Oregon the situation is much the same. The western portion is very wet in winter and spring, dry in summer. The eastern two thirds of Oregon have cold, snowy winters and very dry summers; much of it is semiarid to arid. Most of the population lives in the Willamette Valley, which is considered a mild climate for its latitude. Tax Environment Comparison Both states have reason to be considered tax friendly. Washington is one of the few states not to have an income tax. The sales tax is 6. In Oregon the reverse is true: Oregon exempts social security and some pension income from state income tax. Oregon seems to treat capital gains as regular income. Both states offer senior property tax exemptions to those with lower incomes. The data below is from the Tax Foundation and Tax-Rates. For more detail about taxation and other information about each state see our mini State Retirement Guides.

Chapter 4 : 8 Tips to Consider when Choosing where to Retire

Choose The Pacific Northwest Retirement 2nd Edition by John Howells available in Trade Paperback on www.nxgvision.com, also read synopsis and reviews. Retirement can be a time of growth, or adventure, or complete and utter relaxation.

Moving is expensive and rather stressful, so naturally, the goal is to find a nice community to settle down to enjoy life, hobbies, and time with family or friends. By taking them into account you can make the best choice for yourself and look forward to a bright retirement.

Cost Of Living This is a big consideration. Before you start scouting out places, have a serious look at your budget. This is different for every person. Nearby shops, a doctor and a dentist are pretty standard, but what else do you need at hand? Perhaps having a community center, a golf course, or a place of worship nearby is important to you. Think about how you like to spend your days, and choose a place that has everything you need and easily accessible to make your life comfortable.

Climate Climate is an important consideration, and one which is often overlooked. Cost of Retirement in the Philippines If you love hot weather and like to relax on the beach, the Pacific Northwest is not the ideal choice for you, but California might be perfect. On the other hand, if you love seasonal weather and are comfortable with cold winters, New Hampshire is a better choice than Florida.

Proximity To Family and Friends If you are close with your family, staying near them might be an important part of your decision. Often as we get older, we need our family around us not only for support but so we can share in their lives, too. Likewise, if you have a close support network of friends you might like to consider staying within easy reach of them so you are not cut off from your nearest and dearest.

Health Care Health care is important at any age, but especially as we grow older. Before you move to a place, check out the doctors, dentists, and emergency clinics and hospitals in the area. Find out what kind of facilities are available for example specialist diabetic clinics if you need them, or podiatry or cardiac care, or anything else you need.

Taxes The taxes in each area can make a real difference to your life. Do a little research about taxes in your proposed new home. You might like to look at: Sales tax, property tax, inheritance tax, vehicle tax, income tax, and taxes on gas, alcohol, tobacco and travel. In some cases, higher taxes also means great public facilities. However, taxes will make a difference in your budget, so find out about them before you make a decision. You might not need it every day but reliable transportation will undoubtedly come into play at some point. Start by looking at public transport around the area. Look at out of state travel, too. How easy will it be for you to go on a vacation? How about if friends or family come to stay – can they get to your new destination easily? Check out bus stations, rail stations and airports nearby.

Political Climate Political climate can make a real difference to how well you settle into your new home. Being with people who share your values makes you feel like you belong and eases the transition into your new town or city. Finding the perfect place to retire is an exciting time. When you find a place that is a good fit, you can look forward to settling in and enjoying a new phase of life.
