Mane colour varies and darkens with age; research shows its colour and size are influenced by environmental factors such as average ambient temperature. Mane length apparently signals fighting success in male-male relationships; darker-maned individuals may have longer reproductive lives and higher offspring survival, although they suffer in the hottest months of the year. The presence, absence, colour and size of the mane are associated with genetic precondition, sexual maturity, climate and testosterone production; the rule of thumb is that a darker, fuller mane indicates a healthier animal. In Serengeti National Park, female lions favour males with dense, dark manes as mates. The hormone testosterone has been linked to mane growth; castrated lions often have little to no mane because the removal of the gonads inhibits testosterone production. In the Chauvet Cave is a sketchy drawing of two maneless lions that appearing to be walking side-by-side. One lion is mostly obscured by the other; the obscuring lion is larger than the obscured one and is depicted with a scrotum. White lion White lions owe their colouring to a recessive allele The white lion is a rare morph with a genetic condition called leucism that is caused by a double recessive allele. It is not albino; it has normal pigmentation in the eyes and skin. They were removed from the wild in the s, thus decreasing the white lion gene pool. Nevertheless, 17 births have been recorded in five prides between and Intermittent bursts of activity continue until dawn, when hunting most often takes place. Such a group is called a "pride". Groups of male lions are called "coalitions". Large prides, consisting of up to 30 individuals, have been observed. A lion may switch lifestyles; nomads can become residents and vice versa. Females lions stay closer to their natal pride. Therefore, female lions in an area are more closely related to each other than male lions in the same area. The reasons for the development of sociality in lionesses - the most pronounced in any cat species - are the subject of much debate. Increased hunting success appears to be an obvious reason, but this is uncertain upon examination; coordinated hunting allows for more successful predation but also ensures non-hunting members reduce per capita calorific intake. Some females, however, take a role raising cubs that may be left alone for extended periods. Members of the pride tend to regularly play the same role in hunts and hone their skills. The health of the hunters is the primary need for the survival of the pride; hunters are the first to consume the prey at the site it is taken. Asiatic lion prides differ from African prides in group composition. Male Asiatic lions are solitary or associate with up to three males, forming a loose pride. Pairs of males rest and feed together, and display marking behaviour at the same sites. Females associate with up to 12 other females, forming a stronger pride together with their cubs. They share large carcasses with each other but seldom share food with males. Female and male lions associate only when mating. Males in coalitions of three or four individuals exhibit a pronounced hierarchy, in which one male dominates the others. Dominant males mate more frequently than their coalition partners; during a study carried out between December and December, three females were observed switching mating partners in favour of the dominant male. Lions kill other predators such as leopard, cheetah and spotted hyena but seldom consume them. The prey-to-predator weight ratio of 10 Cooperatively hunting lions are usually successful. Males attached to prides do not usually participate in group hunting. They take advantage of factors that reduce visibility; many kills take place near some form of cover or at night. To protect their cattle from such attacks with that knowledge in mind, farmers have found it effective to paint eyes on the hindquarters of each cow, which is usually enough to make hunting lions think they have been seen and select easier prey. They also kill prey by enclosing its mouth and nostrils in their jaws, which also results in asphyxia. Cubs suffer most when food is scarce but otherwise all pride members eat their fill, including old and crippled lions, which can live on leftovers. On hot days, the pride retreats to shade with one or two males standing guard. Scavenging lions keep a constant lookout for circling vultures, which indicate the death or distress of an animal. Lions seize the kills of spotted hyenas; in the Ngorongoro crater it is common for lions to subsist largely on kills stolen from hyenas, causing the hyenas to increase their kill rate. The two species attack one another even when there is no food involved for no apparent reason.

Throughout history, the lion has symbolized sovereignty, rulership, and courage. They generally have a regal quality to them, and possess a noble manner that is hard to miss. The glyph for Leo represents the mane of the lion. Leo Select individual icons in the image grid for more information about Leo and Leo associations. The Sun represents our conscious mind in Astrology. It represents our will to live and our creative life force. The Sun is our ego. It is also our "adult"-- the part of us that censors our "inner child", that reasons things out and makes final decisions. There are three Fire signs: Aries, Leo, and Sagittarius. With Fire, we have pride, passion, courage, creativity, and impulse -- all traits associated with Leo. The lion symbolizes sovereignty, rulership, and courage. Leos, like lions, are strong leaders. They have a regal manner that is unmistakable. Taurus, Leo, Scorpio, and Aquarius. They tend to resist change and possess excellent follow-through. As a Fixed Fire sign, Leo is passionately loyal. The Sun glyph shows the circle of Spirit, indicating potentiality, brought to focus in the central point or dot. These are dignifiedâ€”even nobleâ€”folk. Leos have a reputation for being conceited, but think again. Leos do feel important, but this generally takes the form of wanting to change the world in some wayâ€”to make the world a better place. They are generally motivated by affection for people, and often have big dreams and plans to make people happy. Generally, Leos are hard-working. After all, they are attracted to the good things in life, and they know they have to work to get them. It is sometimes difficult to imagine Leos as go-getters if you happen to catch them in one of their languid moods. These people can sleep in, laze around, and luxuriate for long periods of time. However, when they do get to work, they do it with intensity and determination. In this way, they are not unlike their symbol, the lion. The worst thing you can do to a Leo is accuse them of bad intentions. Loyal, and sometimes rather traditional, Leos are, after all, a fixed sign. Often, Leos have a very noble inner code that they answer to. Although on the surface, Leos appear rather confident, they can actually be some of the most humble souls around. They are the first to blame themselves when something goes wrong. Instead of being the conceited, self-absorbed show-offs of reputation, they are usually very self-aware, self-conscious, and, yes, even humble. Some Famous People with Sun in Leo: When they feel comfortable, they do like being the center of attention. They enjoy entertaining others, and often take on the role of comic. Lunar Leos often feel a need to organize, and even control, their families and friends. They have an inner mission to set things right, and generally like to oversee the goings-on in their little circle. This is a rather creative position of the Moon. At the very least, Moon in Leo people want to create and entertain. They can be rather lazy at times, and a little bossy too. Generally, though, they have a deep need to treat others fairly and justly. Lunar Leos require lots and lots of love and care in order to function well in the world. When they feel slighted, these people can be dramatic in their emotional displays. When their pride has been hurt, they are given to big scenes and sulking. This rarely happens in public, however. Lunar Leos are far too concerned about their image to make splashy scenes outside the comfort of their own homes. In public, they prefer to take things in dignified ways. Lunar Leos are often personally popular folk who are valued for their integrity and strong sense of justice. Generally, it is easy to reason with a Lunar Lion. Appealing to their well-developed sense of fairness usually works well. Some Famous people with Moon in Leo: Some of them come across as know-it-alls, but the more mature ones speak with style. They want others to know about their presence of mind and their know-how. They are generally skilled at the art of persuasion. While others may try to win people over with logic, guilt, or wit, Mercury in Leo does it with warmth and good will. They are excellent at promoting ideas and getting their message across. These people can be very attached to their opinions, taking pride in their beliefs, which are often rather idealistic. They are capable people on an intellectual level, and have an especial desire for self-expression. Creativity is especially important to Mercury in Leo people. They present themselves with a certain amount of flair, and even drama. Often passionate and enthusiastic speakers, Mercury in Leo people get their message across with zeal. Some people with this position have developed a perhaps more sophisticated manner in which they present their ideas and thoughts, and these natives possess admirable style and warmth. Depending on the confidence level of the whole individual with this placement of Mercury, a stubbornness in the face of criticism or over-sensitivity to anything less than praise is present. Whatever the reaction, Mercury in Leo natives can be mentally arrogant. Mercury, by nature, is detached and reasonable. In Leo, however, the ego comes into play very strongly when it comes to intellectual analysis. With intellect and ego so closely tied, the ability to separate fact from fiction can be impaired. In some, boasting may be a problem. Probably the best way to handle this position is to find self-expression in some creative field. Mercury in Leo natives can be magnificent story-tellers, for example, mainly because they have such a wonderful sense of drama. They speak and write with heart.

Some Famous People with Mercury in Leo: This position of Venus can turn humble Virgo Suns or retiring Cancer Suns into somewhat demanding lovers. Venus in Leo loves to court and be courted, and they need to feel very special. They are warm, generous, and even grand. Be prepared for their displays: Venus in Leo wants to appear experienced in love, even if they have little or no experience whatsoever! They are also threatened by indifferent or impersonal behavior on your part. Although their needs for physical expression through sex are generally quite strong, their need for love is perhaps even stronger. It is hard for Venus in Leo people to separate love and sex, and even their most erotic fantasies are infused with love and affection. For this reason, few Venus in Leo folk would last long in a relationship that is mostly sexual. On the flip side, they may last longer in a love-only relationship in the absence of satisfying sex, but they are unlikely to feel very satisfied. Pleasing Venus in Leo involves paying loads of attention to them. Respect and appreciate them, always. Put up with their childlike moments and their tall tales. They want to be seen as attractive by you, so avoid at all costs! They actually lose interest when they perceive the slightest loss of interest in their partner, and you can expect that any letdown will be acted out in a dramatic fashion. Remind them, in a gentle way, that your emotions count too. If you are feeling a little jealous, let them know. Remember, to Venus in Leo, your small jealousies are affirmations that you find them attractive and expect the rest of the world to as well. Let them decide where to go on a date, and let them pay too. When Venus in Leo feels loved and appreciated, they reward you with loyalty, a big sense of fun, and plenty of physical expressions of their love.

Some Famous People with Venus in Leo: This is a particularly vital position of Mars. Passions run high, and so does desire. There is a strong will that gives these natives much staying power. Though Mars in Leo people will enjoy the pleasures of risk-taking, they generally have a strong sense of reason at the end of the day.

Updated August 8, 0 Leos are a walking paradox but in a good way. They are a sun sign who emit luminous rays of light but can also be so calm, cool and collected. Filled with passion and generosity, you will find yourself in one of the most intense relationships should you find yourself lucky enough to love a Leo. You should love a Leo if you want a lifelong love. Leos are ferociously faithful. Once a Leo finds a partner that can handle their sometimes over-the-top personality, they stop looking for other options. They know they have met their match and they will do anything to keep them. You can expect that no matter what happens, your Leo will always be by your side. You should love a Leo if you want to know exactly where you stand in your relationship. Leos can be painfully straightforward. There is no hiding of emotions with a Leo because they want their lives to be as uncomplicated and transparent as possible. So for this reason, they will always tell you exactly what they are thinking. Good or bad, you will know what a Leo thinks of you. You can put the mind games in the past if you love a Leo. You should love a Leo if you want to step out of your comfort zone. Leos are fearless thrill-seekers always looking for the next adrenaline rush. It could be something as crazy as jumping out of an airplane or as simple as tasting a new food, but a Leo will try anything once. With their daring drive, they know how exhilarating the rush of a new experience is and will want a partner who is open to exploring the world around them. And the best part is when you share these moments with a Leo, it fires a deeper, unparalleled connection between you both. You should love a Leo if you want a love that only continues to get better. The best and arguably worst thing about Leos is their ability to read people. They will know you better than you know yourself. They will know all your flaws but love you all the more for them. As self-proclaimed problem solvers and fixers, Leos will work through these things to make your perfect love even more perfect. You should love a Leo if you want a strong partner. Another nod to their feline character, Leos are fiercely independent. Their optimism and determination will power them through any mishaps and you can count on a Leo to pick themselves up after they fall. This can be intimidating but allows you to step back and admire their accomplishments without feeling overwhelmed or burdened by their needs. You should love a Leo if you want to fall in love with your best friend. Leos are social creatures. They would do anything to make the people they love the smile and would go through hell and back if it meant making someone else happy. Your Leo will be the light in your life that you never knew you needed. More From Thought Catalog.

After his parents died during his childhood, [14] Tolstoy and his siblings were brought up by relatives. His time there was not a success however, with teachers describing him as "both unable and unwilling to learn. Tolstoy served as a young artillery officer during the Crimean War and was in Sevastopol during the month-long siege of Sevastopol in 1855, [15] including the Battle of the Chernaya. During the war he was recognised for his bravery and courage and promoted to lieutenant. During his visit, Tolstoy witnessed a public execution in Paris, a traumatic experience that would mark the rest of his life. Writing in a letter to his friend Vasily Botkin: Henceforth, I shall never serve any government anywhere. However, as a direct forerunner to A. Personal life The death of his brother Nikolay in had an impact on Tolstoy, and led him to a desire to marry. She was called Sonya, the Russian diminutive of Sofia, by her family and friends. Sonya was copying and handwriting his epic works time after time. Tolstoy would continue editing War and Peace and had to have clean final drafts to be delivered to the publisher. Tolstoy as one of the unhappiest in literary history. This saw him seeking to reject his inherited and earned wealth, including the renunciation of the copyrights on his earlier works. Among them are Swedish jazz singer Viktoria Tolstoy and the Swedish landowner Christopher Paus, whose family owns the major estate Herresta outside Stockholm. They retain their relevance as accounts of the universal story of growing up. Tolstoy served as a second lieutenant in an artillery regiment during the Crimean War , recounted in his Sevastopol Sketches. His experiences in battle helped stir his subsequent pacifism and gave him material for realistic depiction of the horrors of war in his later work. Anna Karenina tells parallel stories of an adulterous woman trapped by the conventions and falsities of society and of a philosophical landowner much like Tolstoy , who works alongside the peasants in the fields and seeks to reform their lives. Tolstoy not only drew from his own life experiences but also created characters in his own image, such as Pierre Bezukhov and Prince Andrei in War and Peace, Levin in Anna Karenina and to some extent, Prince Nekhlyudov in Resurrection. Its vast canvas includes characters, many historical with others fictional. The story moves from family life to the headquarters of Napoleon , from the court of Alexander I of Russia to the battlefields of Austerlitz and Borodino. Somewhat surprisingly, Tolstoy did not consider War and Peace to be a novel nor did he consider many of the great Russian fictions written at that time to be novels. This view becomes less surprising if one considers that Tolstoy was a novelist of the realist school who considered the novel to be a framework for the examination of social and political issues in nineteenth-century life. Tolstoy thought that Anna Karenina was his first true novel. Tolstoy also explores and explains the economic philosophy of Georgism , of which he had become a very strong advocate towards the end of his life. Tolstoy also tried himself in poetry with several soldier songs written during his military service and fairy tales in verse such as Volga-bogatyr and Oaf stylized as national folk songs. They were written between and for his Russian Book for Reading, a collection of short stories in four volumes total of stories in various genres published along with the New Azbuka textbook and addressed to schoolchildren. Nevertheless, he was skeptical about poetry as a genre. As he famously said, "Writing poetry is like ploughing and dancing at the same time". According to Valentin Bulgakov , he criticised poets, including Alexander Pushkin , for their "false" epithets used "simply to make it rhyme". Fyodor Dostoyevsky thought him the greatest of all living novelists. Gustave Flaubert , on reading a translation of War and Peace, exclaimed, "What an artist and what a psychologist! What he does serves to justify all the hopes and aspirations invested in literature. Arthur Conan Doyle wrote "I am attracted by his earnestness and by his power of detail, but I am repelled by his looseness of construction and by his unreasonable and impracticable mysticism. Religious and political beliefs.
