C Cast and Kristin Cast Life at school becomes more tense and Zoey and her friends insist on parading a murderer around the grieving loved one of his victims and Nyx insists on not intervening with the super evil Neferet still in control With ties of family and honour, Dragon and Kalona face hard choices: These two deaths could never ever be about Zoey. Even after a series of making everything about Zoey, this was too much a stretch. Dragon is losing himself, losing his way " and no-one not Thanatos and certainly not the useless goddess Nyx bothers to do anything to try and comfort this grieving man. And if you do, look at your life, look at your choices. Yes spoilers, scroll over to reveal: Dragon dies, sacrifices himself to protect Rephaim. This is what redemption looks like in this series " a man shamed for not forgiving his wife killer having to then martyr himself for that murderer. On top of that we throw in the joy of Becca remember her? But now we have the utter culmination of redemption " I said it was coming and here it is. Kalona ended this book as team good guy. Yes, Neferet is the biggest of big bads because we all knew we were going for a female villain and Kalona, the evil, raping, murdering Kalona, is now being brought back into the fold. Because of a great big act of redemption? Hah, no, of course not. There is not enough booze in the world. I am going to do something astonishing and actually say something positive about House of Night. Hey, maybe that booze is stronger than I thought! But in this book we have Shaunee, one of the mind numbing Twins, finally deciding to grow a personality. Yes we have actually issues, an actual opinion and background and some attempt to actually make her into a human. Except " well look at this? Because that might mean looking a little more intelligently and deeply But then, does anyone actually want to see House of Night trying to do a serious storyline about racism? Only they then do it again and again and again. Firstly the gang are now being bused to school. And what do they call this bus? Not only can she see, but she gets super-duper soul vision. Yes an ex-blind character with super vision powers is a ridiculously common trope. And disabled characters who are magically cured is even more of an annoyingly common trope " because actually having a disabled character is deemed too difficult to write. But hold on, it gets worse! So, Shaylin becomes a vampire " and she becomes a Red Fledgling. Who thought they could manage to plunge even further?! I suppose I should end by talking about the plot where " where " um ". Lots of people moped and were sad. Aurox appeared and " just kind of hung around. The Red Fledglings appeared and " were there. See, there was a lot that could have happened " the Red Fledglings, the angry Dragon, Aurox, Neferet, Thanatos, Kalona and the birdie boys:

I mean, there are abs in it. What could possibly go wrong with a hottie like that on the cover? Despite my love for the cover I can already predict that this book is going to be Oh Heath, you can be sweet sometimes, but my real feelings for you lie in my hands that want to slap you senseless. Or at least combined with Burned, to make one huge mistake. I will try and enjoy this book, for whatever its worth. Only 9 more days! It would be a disgrace NOT to. Let me predict what is going to happen in this book: If only it were this exciting. Then I might consider buying the next one. There will be a lot to say about this. So hold on tight. But the first thing I have to say is that all at least, almost all of my predictions came true. I will enlighten you all on that later. But for now, my overview. I went into reading this insult to literature with an open mind; please remember that. Anyway, onto the ranting. Destined was a roller coaster ride of good and bad. I was NOT thrilled in having Heath back Oh, eh hem, sorry about that. No teenager in their right mind would ever talk like that. Throughout most of this book, I actually had to put it down for a while to be able to think properly. Honestly, this book was a mess. I mean, they barely come out a couple months behind each other. What do they do? Draft a book in a month and then get someone to fill it with incessant angsty teenage babble? And also while I was reading this, I daydreamed. I wondered what it would be like to have someone who almost tried to kill you in the past be all friendly and cuddly with you in the same room. If it was me, I would just do this: I also had weird fantasies when Kalona showed up and Shaunee was in the tunnels with him, about them hooking up. I might have even spared half a star if that happened: I thought Lebonia and whats-his-face were so cute together, and I also like Stevie Ray and Rephiam together, although it would be fantastic if one of them died, leaving the other totally and impearably heartbroken and crushed. But you know, thats just me. It goes kind of like this: We have to make a circle!

Zoey I think my mom is dead. I tested the words silently. They felt wrong, unnatural, as if I was trying to comprehend the world turning upside down or the sun rising in the west. I drew a deep, sobbing breath and rolled onto my side, reaching for another tissue in the box that was on the floor next to the bed. Stark muttered and frowned and moved restlessly. The beanbag made that smushy noise that always reminds me of the balls in those inflatable kid party houses, and Stark frowned and mumbled something again. I blew my nose. Stop crying stop crying stop crying! I blinked a bunch of times, and wiped my nose again. Maybe it had just been a dream. But even as I thought the words my heart knew the truth. Nyx had pulled me from my dreams to show me a vision of Mom entering the Otherworld. That meant Mom had died. Mom told Nyx that she was sorry for letting me down, I reminded myself as tears leaked down my cheeks again. I had hardly made any noise, but Stark tossed and turned restlessly, and muttered, "Stop! Stark was my Warrior, my Guardian, and my boyfriend. No, boyfriend is too simple a word. He could feel my sadness-even in his dreams he knew I was crying and hurt and scared and- Stark pushed the blanket off his chest and I could see that his hand was clenched into a fist. My gaze went to his face. He was still asleep, but his forehead was furrowed and he was frowning. I closed my eyes and drew a deep, centering breath. No, actually, help Stark by shielding my sadness from him. I drew another deep breath as spirit moved within and around me, swirling over to the bed. Opening my eyes I could actually see a ripple in the air surrounding Stark. His skin appeared to glow as the element settled against him like a diaphanous blanket. I felt warm and glanced down at my arms and saw that the same soft glow was resting against my skin. Stark exhaled a long sigh with me as spirit worked a little soothing magick, and for the first time in hours I felt a little, tiny bit of my sadness lift. Wrapped in the comforting touch of the element I felt closest to, I was actually a little sleepy. It was then that a different kind of warmth penetrated my consciousness. Slowly, not wanting to disturb the comforting spell the element was working, I unwrapped my arms from around myself and touched my chest. Why is my seer stone warm? The small, round stone was dangling from its silver chain, resting between my breasts. Wonderingly, I pulled the stone out from under the sweatshirt, running my fingers over its smooth, marble surface. It still reminded me of a coconut-flavored Life Saver, but the Skye marble glittered with an unearthly light, as if the element I had invoked had made it alive-as if the warmth I felt was because it pulsed with life. I am gifting you with it so that you might, indeed, recognize the Old Ones if any still exist in the outside world The hole in its center was like a mini-telescope. As it shifted around I could see Stark illuminated through it, and my world shifted, too, narrowed, then everything changed. Stark was there, lying on his back, most of his chest bare. The glow of spirit was gone. In its place I saw another image. I gasped in surprise and the phantom-like Warrior turned his head in my direction and closed his hand around the sword. Instantly the Guardian sword shifted, changed, and became a long black spear-dangerous, lethal, tipped in blood that looked way too familiar to me. Fear spiked through me. Make that thing go away! And I really need to get some sleep. It felt good-so good to be close to him. His arms went around me. I pressed myself against him while his lips followed the curve of my neck. Together we reminded each other of life and love and happiness. Afterward we finally slept and the seer stone lay cold and forgotten on my breast between us.

Chapter 4 : Destined (House of Night, #9) by P.C. Cast

In Destined, the forces of Light and Dark collide as their epic struggle focuses on Tulsa's House of Night. Zoey is home where she belongs, safe with her Guardian Warrior, Stark, by her side - and preparing to face off against Neferet.

Summary from the book jacket Can love win when it is tested by the very soul of darkness? Zoey is finally home where she belongs, safe with her Guardian Warrior, Stark, by her side, and preparing to face off against Neferet – which would be a lot easier if the High Council saw the ex-High Priestess for what she really is. But there are new forces at work at the House of Night. And then there is the mysterious Aurox, a jaw-droppingly gorgeous teen boy who is actually more – or possibly less – than human. Only Neferet knows he was created to be her greatest weapon. But Zoey can sense the part of his soul that remains human, the compassion that wars with his Dark calling. Honestly the series has evolved in such a way that is both exiting and fascinating. But first thing first: Destined is the ninth book in the series and continues exactly where Awakened left off. The Nerd Herd is back in Tulsa with new allies and old enemies trying to figure out how to move on and how to deal with Neferet and the threat she poses to their lives at school. To begin with, I believe that it is important to read Burned, Awakened and Destined together. They truly form the three parts of the same plotline rather than three individual books. Reading Destined on its own is not recommended, despite the fact that the authors give clues of past events in the series. I believe that it would not do the story justice nor would it be as easy to follow as one may think. With Destined the authors have established the use of the multiple point of view in their narrative and it seems to be the best recipe in order to deliver the plot, which has become more complex, as it encompasses intricate and obscure themes relating to the fight between good and evil, relationships, loss of loved ones, friendship and that little journey, which we all eventually take: With this type of narrative the readers get to see both sides of each story and of course to follow the sequence of events with clarity. This type of writing requires great discipline, in order to ensure coherence and to avoid confusion. The authors have truly perfected their writing skills. Furthermore, this way of storytelling helps massively with character development. And in the House of Night series it is really the characters that make the story! Not only the main ones, but also secondary or tertiary characters come into the forefront highlighting the plot and giving pieces of information about what is happening or what is going to happen. Somehow this trick makes the story more appealing, more realistic and of course more tangible. Lastly Destined can be safely considered as a crescendo of action, which culminates in the last three chapters. Each chapter is somehow like levels in a game: Since the narrative flows, the action is compact and the pace never slackens you end up having finished the book, thinking that it just cannot be it, that there is more. Unfortunately, Hidden, the next one in line, is yet to come. As a comfort, readers will rejoice with this book. They will learn more about their favourite characters, many things in the complex and sublime world, that HoN has become, will be explained and of course they will be entertained, because ultimately a good book does just that.

Destined (House of Night #9) Zoey is finally home where she belongs, safe with her Guardian Warrior, Stark, by her side, and preparing to face off against Neferet - which would be a whole lot easier if the High Counsel saw the ex-High Priestess for what she really is.

In the prologue, Zoey is seen with Stark. She notices Darkness on him and commands Spirit to send the Darkness away. Zoey is unsure about the death of her mother. Meanwhile, Aurox kills a human person. The white bull comes and tells Aurox and Neferet that he can create chaos. Neferet plans to use Aurox to kill the white bull and rule the world as the Goddess of Vampyres. Zoey and her friends return to school where she blindsides Neferet by initiating a Skype meeting with Duantia, the leader of the High Council. She gives her version of the events in Awakened and puts Neferet in the uncomfortable position of having to accept Rephaim at the House of Night. In the garden, Rephaim is visited by three of his Raven Mocker brothers, sent to him by Kalona to use his supposed misery and consequent bitterness to spy for him and even turn to Darkness. They are stunned to see him in his human form. Their meeting is interrupted by Aurox who kills one of them and proceeds to attack Rephaim. He is stopped by Stevie Rae, but not before she, Rephaim and Zoey see him half-shift into a bull. Neferet appears and diffuses the conflict, calling Aurox her gift from the Goddess. Erik hears the commotion, but he falls under the Tracker compulsion before he can actually intervene. He finds Shaylin, a blind girl, and she makes him stumble over the traditional lines, so that when he finally marks her and she reveals a red Mark he blames himself. Confused, Erik decides to take her to Stevie Rae. Zoey runs off to mourn and Aurox finds her. He offers her a Kleenex , just like Heath used to. At the bus, Erik presents them with the girl. Neferet appears and Shaylin pretends to faint, later telling them she had the general color of dead fish eyes. The next day at school, Rephaim feels the call of his father and calls Zoey to stand witness to the meeting. Kalona appears on the wall and offers them a truce against Neferet, which Zoey reluctantly accepts. As the discussion takes place during her first class, with Neferet, she skips it altogether. Back at the depot, Zoey and her friends sit down to discuss the events. While wondering in the tunnels, Shaunee spots Kalona, waiting for his son. Shaunee gives him her iPhone so that he can contact him until she can get him another phone. Neferet finds out about the reveal ritual and sends Aurox to intervene. During the ritual, he charges out in his bull form but is stopped by Dragon, who sacrifices himself to save Rephaim. Kalona arrives on the scene "having been called by Stevie Rae" and he expresses regret, asking Nyx not to kill Rephaim for his own mistakes. The request is granted, Rephaim regains consciousness. Thanatos then proceeds to Dragon and guides him to the Otherworld. A gateway is opened and everybody can see him happily reunited with Anastasia. As they leave the scene, Zoey and her friends see a vision of Nyx, who reminds them that the fight will continue.
