The Protocols of the Elders of Zion is a fabricated document purporting to be factual. Textual evidence shows that it could not have been produced prior to It is notable that the title of Sergei Nilus's widely distributed edition contains the dates "1897-1906"

The Politics of Us and Them. The attacks on immigrants, the media, cities, elites, and minorities, and the promise to weed out corruption, are all straight out of the fascist playbook. Stanley talks to Schechtman about what he believes are the ten pillars of fascist politics: He explains how fascists have consistently used these elements to sow division and gain power. We are reminded in this conversation that the US is just as susceptible to fascist politics as Europe or anywhere else. Another key to fascism, as detailed by Stanley, is that it almost always wins by means of democratic elections. He points out that Nazi propaganda minister Joseph Goebbels observed that the great joke on democracy is that its very freedoms lead to the victory of its worst enemy. As Stanley speculates on the future, his greatest fear is that the US is evolving into a one-party state through a perversion of democracy. As a service to our readers, we provide transcripts with our podcasts. We try to ensure that these transcripts do not include errors. However, due to time constraints, we are not always able to proofread them as closely as we would like. The word fascism gets thrown around a lot in the context of Donald Trump. As if he somehow were rich progenitor but the fact is Trump is merely the most contemporary and American exploiter. Right wing nationalist trends, fascist trends, are happening throughout the world. The underlying reasons are many and complex but the response to those reasons and the way in which it portends towards fascism has been pretty consistent. Fascism is not some abstract idea, but a clear definable set of attitudes that people like Trump or Le Pen or Nigel Farage know how to exploit and magnify. Only if we know and understand the warning signs can we prevent it. And to help us to understand this, I am joined by our guest, Jason Stanley. Jason Stanley is a Professor of Philosophy at Yale. Before coming to Yale he was a distinguished professor in the Department of Philosophy at Rutgers University. He is the author of numerous books and papers. The politics of us and them. Thank you for having me on the program. For example, fascism prizes struggle. So fascism reduces political discourse to life or death struggle. Then, fascist politics wins. Then people forget the liberal democratic norms that are supposed to guide us in debate and even those who fight fascism end up having to face the reality of struggle. One of its dangers is that it does have an effect on the political system and policies when leaders who employ these tactics come into power. For instance, Arendt talks about politicians who prize party over parties. By which she means politicians who prize the victory of their own party over multi-party democracy. So we already have this one-party-rule facet and the one-party-rule is overcoming our institutions. Our institutions, the Senate, I mean the Senate is an institution designed to block democracy. One of the things that you talk about is that there are certain things that we can look for, that there are these pillars of fascism that in fact are the guide posts along the way. Expand on that a little bit. My book is a ten-part definition of fascist politics. Each chapter is a different investigation into a different aspect of fascist politics. And in fascist politics, you connect nostalgia to that myth. They feel a sense of loss and if you can connect that sense of loss to some mythic idyllic past that you have lost due to liberalism and foreign incursions into your culture then you can weaponize nostalgia. Propaganda, ordinary terms have reverse meanings. The news becomes the fake news. What is meant there? What is meant is the corruption of the traditional order of the people who should be ruling. You get attacks on reality itself. A sure sign of the encroachment of fascist politics, of the grip of fascist politics, is the increasing prevalence and uptake of conspiracy theories. Reality itself starts to become eroded. Universities, the press, are denounced as advancing liberal ideology. So whenever you find ordinary progressive positions denounced as Marxist or communist then you know that people are employing fascist politics. Victimhood, that is a very important one. The law and order, fascist politics is always a law and order politics. But like the inversion of meaning that is so characteristic of fascist movements, law and order means something different. So what does law and order there mean? Sexual anxiety is another pillar. They raise hysteria about foreigners as raping the in-group women. We see it in India. We see it all across the world. The United States is a long history of all these aspects, with our history of lynching of black men on baseless grounds that they were rape threats to white women. Fascism attacks freedom and the freedom to intermarry is a freedom, gay rights is a freedom, so fascism raises panic about gay rights, about intermarriage, because it solidifies fascist values. Fascism always takes the form of attacks on cities, the real rural values, the heartland, the real America or real Germany are the values of the heartland and the cities are infested with the hated minorities. Finally, social Darwinism, the idea that the out group is always lazy and criminal. Does history give us any indication of the socio-economic underpinnings that give rise to the perfect storm of these things coming together? We face another time at which there is a reaction against globalization so we have a perfect storm across the world. These far right nationalist movements, these fascist movements are all interlinked; from Israel to Russia to Hungary, Poland, Austria, United States. There is some kind of reaction against globalization, this is true. On the other hand it would be very hard to pin the global reaction to globalization, as it were paradoxically, to a specific economic moment. Bavaria has been long a place of great economic power and the far right sentiments are very powerful there. Poland, the civic platform in Poland, had increased GDP. And yes, they were overcome by a fascist party: Sixty thousand people marched through the streets of Warsaw chanting pure blood. This is not because of economic anxiety. What do we see in terms of the forces and the effectiveness of forces to push back against this? And what has been the most effective historically? The most effective historically? But I think that we can gain guidance from the poem on the wall of the Holocaust Memorial: First they came for the Socialists, and I did not speak up because I was not a socialist. Then they came for the trade unionist and I did not speak up because I was not a trade unionist. Then they came for the Jews and I did not speak up because I was not a Jew. Then they came for me but there was no one left to speak for me. First, what one learns from that is the targets of fascist politics. Socialists, labor unions, minorities, those are the targets. Does fascism move differently or come to be differently in a democratic environment? All fascists, and not all, but fascist movements very often win by democratic elections. Look at Orban, look at Hitler. Fascism campaigns against democracy. Fascism campaigns against multi-party, multi-ethnic democracy representing it as by its nature corrupt. And it exploits the freedoms of democracy. That exactly seems to be the case. That was really the point, that fascism seems to come more effectively within a democratic environment. Plato warned us of this in book eight. We are literally reliving the history of political philosophy here. Even Rousseau is very clear about this in the Social Contract. When you have large inequalities, and here the economy comes in. When you have large inequalities, you breed resentment and resentment is the feeding ground for the fascist flame. The mythic past is a very powerful engine of the emotion of nostalgia. When you have moments where people feel a loss, especially when the dominant group feels a loss, then you need a vehicle where you can make that concrete, where you can make the feeling of loss concrete. When, for example, feminism arises and pushes for equal rights for women, when oppressed minorities ask for more space in the public domain, that feels to people like a loss. So you need a concrete way of accentuating the feeling of loss, and then you need a mass movement that channels that loss, and the concrete way is the mythic past. You create this image of this wonderful past where the men of the chosen nation have their rightful place as heroes and were given the adulation of society. The women were at home fulfilling typical gender roles and there were no foreigners and the men of the chosen nation dominated the cultural sphere. And you paint this picture and you connect the feeling of loss of the members of the dominant group that comes with encroaching equality and loss of their dominant position, with this very concrete picture of a fictional past where they were adulated and worshiped.

Chapter 2 : Neo-Nazism - Wikipedia

Fascist hero Benito Mussolini. Benito Mussolini waged an unrelenting war on the conspiratorial, Jew-serving universalist cult of Freemasonry, and succeeded for a time in freeing his beloved Italy from their poisonous presence while he was in power.

From the 5 year old pledging allegiance to the capitalist, militaristic flag to the high school senior learning about American bravery in WWII. Should one really be surprised that alternative facts and fake news are a normal part of American society in ? The ideal subject of totalitarian rule is not the convinced Nazi or the convinced Communist, but people for whom the distinction between fact and fiction is. The Republican Party used the hate generated in response to the twisted fear of Civil Rights era accomplishments, to make it GOP policy ever since - known as the Southern Strategy. That turn has brought the United States to the present day and represents the overt continuum of this omnipresent fascism in American history. American Neo-liberal policy led to this - the government has pushed an agenda to advance its power - through its nebulous war on terror - and those with power in it - not the vast majority of American citizens - and they have been the beneficiaries of that power. The Trump Administration, specifically Trump and his Cabinet, represents that power. The never ending war on terror has been a human rights disaster perpetrated by the American government. The United States has systematically asserted its military power over a small, local population, so often, it has become routine and not news worthy. What is taking place now should not be surprising, American foreign policy has normalized this, and it has morphed into a new domestic policy. And this new domestic policy, is now absorbing obvious Trumpian ideology, which it is entirely fertile for - Neo-fascism. The oppressed would become the oppressors - Thanksgiving is simply a celebration of oppression - propaganda entrenched in the United States. Fallen Confederate Soldiers are revered with disgusting, devout delusion, in monuments still standing to their bravery - currently in New Orleans a proxy Neo-Civil War is being fought to take down just such Statues. The White House in reprehensible irony was built on the backs of Black Slaves. Skip forward hundreds of years, through a brutal revolutionary war and a horrendous civil war fought supposedly because of the abominable belief that humans could enslave other humans but actually in spite of - the oppression and Christian White Supremacist Fascism aka Antebellum Ideology still and always omnipresent. President Theodore Roosevelt was a White Supremacist Fascist - his biological racist beliefs would create the American National Parks and the slaughter of countless men, women and children because they were not White Christians. The myth of the cowboy would lead to the murder of Jews in France after the Dreyfus Affair, the atrocities carried out by men wearing American style cowboy boots and hats. This fascism would evolve into the pinnacle and the name - Fascismo in Italy and the rise of Mussolini. Germans were settled where the murdered once dwelled. United States, the Supreme Court Case challenging this White Supremacist ideology that caused the imprisonment of the other - no different from Nazi ideology - is still the law of the land. The dropping of two Atomic bombs in Japan on the cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki - reprehensible, unnecessary violence - not used in Europe - this ideology led to the wars in Korea and Vietnam - Laos, Cambodia - much of East Asia decimated by American bombs from Pearl Harbor through the end of the Vietnam War - large amounts of unexploded ordinance still there - American military power destroying the Asian other. These proxy wars against communist expansion are simply post WWII propaganda - violence in Eastern Europe to fight Soviet expansion - minuscule in comparison. Poppy Bush, his son W. The last two people in this position had doctorates in physics. Muslim others are being bombed mercilessly by the fascists in Moscow and Washington, DC. Holocaust Denial - cowardly - as anti-Semitic idiocy always is. This reprehensible alt-history - conspiracy theory posed as academic scholarship - anti-Semitism of the worst kind. This denial - a Neo-Fascist alt-fact - only accurate in its historical context as more of the same old Jew hating delusion. Ever the hypocrite - these Christian fascists would implement a Theocracy - similarity to the hellish Islamic State Caliphate is based on shared hate - and god. As the tidal wave of evil, Christian Dominionism rages in Antebellum America - Judge Roy Moore and his Ten Commandments Monument, First Amendment blasphemy, is surfing the theocratic motion of the American ocean â€” fascism engulfed in the insidious history of burning crucifixes, replacing the stars, one by one, of the idolized, Stars and Stripes. The satanic Moore and demonic ALT-VP promise a return to an insidious, fantasy society, beset by Volkish beastsâ€” indoctrinated with the worship of made up im morals, worship of preacher, worship of pseudo patriotism, worship of flag, worship of military, worship of country, worship of party, worship of money, worship of power and ultimately worship of Trump â€” or more precisely, Trump as a vehicle to implement the power of divine doctrine â€” the Orange Oligarch is working in tandem with and as a Devout Dictator. These Theocratic Demagogues, with their pleasantries, so pleasant â€” the facade of empathy, masked in the semantics of their jargon â€” their false piety â€” masters of such hypocrisy. As paeans to fascist history â€” bravo to them, on expertly transforming fear into hateful misery. This is when you realize that chaos is fundamental to history â€” humans did not evolve to learn from the past, at the pinnacle of technological progress the world is still the same as it always was â€” tribal, religious â€” fascist. The mythology of religion and of America deny the true history of humanity â€” sociologically, historically, biologically â€” propaganda prevents the obvious realization that we are the most brutal, evil animal ever to evolve ALT-VPOTUS and his kin deny evolution, climate change, autonomy, empathy â€” without this knowledge we as a species can never evolve. In a society where alternative facts represent reality, a consequence of fascist indoctrination â€” the illogical nature of humanity, will be the downfall of humanity. Fascism, as Alexander Reid Ross writes in, Against the Fascist Creep, is a solidarity of cruelty, of the belligerent against the defenseless, masked as spiritual truth for lack of rigorous understanding of fact. Fascism begins to display itself in the United States â€” ICE has the authority to detain solely on an individual agents fear of the other.

They will continue to kill until the Judeofascists and their agents, allies and accomplices are identified, exposed and isolated. I was telling her that I was trying to raise money for this website when she said, Oh what about the Koch brothers? She believes in "the bastards" theory of political agency. The bastards is a concept that I believe Jews brought over from Eastern Europe, where we were at the mercy of the czar from above-- the bastards-- and of the peasants from below. The essential political dilemma of Jewish life, as a segregated minority with financial utility to the larger society, was how to propitiate both these forces without getting caught in the grinder. Caught we were, of course; but Zionism, Communism, integrationism, assimilationism, all these belief systems had their roots in this dilemma. But the bastards, the goyim in power, they always received the full measure of our scorn. And this is my chief critique of the Bastards theory of history. We are wealthy and privileged in America. We are as likely to be the bastards ourselves as the civil rights attorneys filing suits against the bastards. To believe otherwise is a piece of nostalgic self-service. Our political role has changed. The neoconservatives are the best evidence of this. They hatched the Iraq war. It was their brilliant idea, there can be no question of this. And yet my mother, who with pride ascribes great intellectual powers to Marx and Freud to turn society on its ear from the safety of a Viennese couch or the British Museum, can discern no such social power in Abrams, Feith, Kagan and Wolfowitz. No they merely served the bastards. I understand the emotional necessity of this construction of history. At the risk of gross oversimplification which has never stopped me before we served an intermediary role, as Satter says. We were of vital necessity to the bastards, we could say with assurance that a society that failed to honor the place of the Jews would not prosper, even as we were discriminated against. And thus we could make an identification with the classes below us, the peasants etc, against the bastards. Even if we were not poor ourselves, even if we had a country house. And yes, some of us made noble sacrifices in this endeavor. Schwerner and Goodman the martyrs of Mississippi. We must consider our enlarged place in the American establishment and jump up to it. We must listen to Helen Thomas and not just vilify this accomplished woman. Oh, wait a minute. I wish the God of Zion would go to hell, already The Old Testament truly never belonged anywhere near the Gospels, and including it in the Bible may have been the greatest mistake in the history of mankind. Weiss is being naive, here. He, of all people, should know that organized Jewry is comprised largely of pathological liars. Lying, exaggerating or twisting and embellishing reality and history to suit whatever contemporary agenda is part of their culture. Everyone who has studied the Palestinian issue and its true history in depth and compared it to the claims and narratives of the Zionists can see this, so what makes Weiss think that the Jewish myths revolving around "the pogroms" are any more reliable? Jason Stanley teaches philosophy at Yale. Jason Stanley, a professor of philosophy at Yale and before that, at Rutgers, and he held named chairs in both schools has taken an academic approach as he studies the linguistic and social and political underpinnings of propaganda and how fascists can flourish when they use it to their advantage. Stanley, who will speak at the Kaplen JCC on the Palisades on September 14 see the box for more information, is the descendant of Holocaust refugees; like all Holocaust refugees, they have stories. Stanley is 47 years old. His mother, Sara, literally came from a family that had lived in the town of Chelm, but she was born in Siberia, where her parents had fled. Stanley played her greatest part. She pretended to be an Aryan social worker, and using that persona and fake papers, over the course of two years she rescued people from a concentration camp, Sachsenhausen. Then Kristallnacht put an end to that extraordinarily brave effort, and soon she and her son got out. Ilsa Stanley had yichus as well as accomplishments. Her father, Magnus Davidsohn, was the cantor of the largest synagogue in Berlin, a liberal institution whose rabbi was Leo Baeck. All of this is inherently fascinating. And that brings us back to his study of propaganda and fascism. Propaganda is a very old problem, Dr. Stanley said, and is inextricably tied to democracy, in which it can flourish and to which it is poison. Ilsa as a young woman. It is the built-in, inescapable paradox of democracy. The inequalities upon which the United States was built were not addressed and resolved, but they largely have been forced underground, where they flow as a fetid river. In his book on propaganda, Dr. And that was the justification of slavery. In fact, we have seen Robert E. For many decades, these arguments burrowed further and further underground, surfaced by the code words that are called dog whistles, those words that signal common cause to people who know them but whose true meaning remains inaudible to everyone else. And up till now it has become more abstract. You have to talk about cutting taxes and social spending, about inner cities and illegals. And some people like that, because they hear that lack of coding as honesty. Then there is the question of political correctness. But his voters see Trump as strong for ripping apart norms, and they reward him for it. He will talk about that, and also will talk about the work he now is doing on fascism. Anti-Israel sentiment, anti-Zionism, and anti-Semitism become conflated and entangled. It sounds a lot like the rhetoric we hear now. But it also is well worth fighting for. On Thursday, September 14, at Communism Bolshevism , created by the Russian Revolution of with the assassination of the Czar and the royal Romanoff dynasty, faded away in 70 years of a failed cruel regime. Zionism, the dream of the Jewish people to return to their holy city of Jerusalem and to rebuild their nation began in the Babylonian exile of Before the Common Era. For two thousand years in exile, dispersion, persecution, oppression, Inquisitions, pogroms, Holocausts, the Jewish people never forgot Jerusalem and their age-old yearning to return to Zion. It was given its voice in Basle, Switzerland. The voice was that of the Austro-Hungarian writer and journalist, Dr. Theodor Herzl, who assembled the first representatives of the Jewish people, scattered across the world, in two thousand years to the first ever Zionist Congress which gave formal recognition of Zionism as a political movement and a promise to create a new Jewish state on the foundations of the old. There is an apocryphal story of the French Emperor Napoleon. He was passing in his carriage by a synagogue in Paris and he could hear loud cries and sobbing. Turning to his adjutant he inquired the reason for all the crying. No more fascism although there are fascists. No more communism although there are communists. But Zionism lives on and grows stronger. Because although not all the Jews of the world observe ancient religious practices, they all remember their history. History has preserved them as a people. Religion has preserved them as a faith. In their daily, Sabbath and holiday prayers, Jerusalem and Zion are imminent as they turn in their worship facing east to Jerusalem. Mentioned more than times in the Jewish Bible, and never once in the Muslim Quran, Jerusalem remains holy to the Jews across the globe. Jews face Jerusalem in prayer. They face Mecca, their primary holy city, during their five daily calls to worship. From to , nineteen years of occupation by the Jordanian army, not one king, ruler, sheikh or imam from the Muslim world ever made a visit to the mosques in Jerusalem. The Bible states that God gave Jerusalem to the Jews. Who gave it to the Muslims? Mohammed himself recognized the historic Jewish connection to Jerusalem and to the Land of Israel. Today, millions of devoted Christians defend the right of the State of Israel to its capital in Jerusalem. Rumania, the Czech Republic and Guatemala have courageously announced that their respective embassies will also be moved to Jerusalem. Other nations will follow. Who are the Palestinians and from whence did they come? They are not related to the nations who inhabited biblical Canaan. Most of the pre Arab population immigrated from Syria and Lebanon into Palestine because they knew that the Jews had made the land prosper and the desert bloom. Good salaries, hospitals, schools were now available to them. Until they rarely referred to themselves as Palestinians. They simply called themselves Arabs. Most came from southern Syria and spoke the Syrian dialect of Arabic. Under Zionist commerce and industry they thrived and many clans like the Husseinis and the Nashashibis and the Nusaybahs became leaders of the early Palestinian nationalist movements. Fascism and Communism failed because they were movements which oppressed, tortured and put to death their opponents. To build the land and, in turn, to be rebuilt by it. Conversant in 8 languages: Very proud of being an Israeli citizen.

Regular visitors of this site know that from my point of view the etiology of white decline is, in order of importance: The rise of industrialism and capitalism during the 19th century brought with it social dislocation, the triumph of the commercial classes and interests, and the creation of an urban proletariat on the ruins of rural life. With the ascendancy of materialism came the economic doctrines of Free Trade capitalism and Marxism and the new belief in rationalism and science over faith, the mysteries of the cosmos, and the traditional religions. The forces of money had defeated everything of the Spirit. Such forces had been let loose as long ago as the English Revolution of Cromwell and again by the French Revolution. There was, however, a reaction to this predicament. The old conservatives had not been up to the task. The spiritual and cultural reaction came from the artists, poets and writers who reach beyond the material and draw their inspiration from the well-springs of what C. Jung identified as the collective unconscious. This reaction included not only the political and the cultural but also a spiritual revival expressed in an interest in the metaphysical. Despite his English and Protestant background, Yeats was involved in the Young Ireland movement, much of his poetry celebrating the Irish rebellion and its heroes. Yeats had been as a youngster introduced by his father John, himself a Pre-Raphaelite artist, to the paintings of the Pre-Raphaelites, the romantic imagery of which stood then as a rebellion against the encroachments of modernism and industrialism. It was a perpetual bewilderment that my father, who had begun life as a Pre-Raphaelite painter, now painted portraits of the first comer, children selling newspapers, or a consumptive girl with a basket of fish upon her head, and that when, moved perhaps by memory of his youth, he chose some theme from poetic tradition, he would soon weary and leave it unfinished. I had seen the change coming bit by bit and its defence elaborated by young men fresh from the Paris art-schools. For Yeats the mystical was the basis of both his poetry and his political ideas. He was particularly interested in the Irish mystical tradition and folklore. He saw the peasantry and rural values as being necessary to revive against the onslaught of materialism. Lawrence, Ezra Pound, et al. Hence, he called for a revival of aristocratic values. A declaration of war on the masses by higher men is called for. Everywhere the mediocre are coming in order to make themselves master. The Bolshevik Revolution was of the same spirit of money against blood, of the materialistic against the spirit and culture. Spengler had written in The Decline of the West: The cycle of Money over culture and tradition that Cromwell inaugurated has never been overcome. America was founded on the same Puritan money ethics and continues to spread that spirit over the farthest reaches of the world. All individuals are now producers and consumers, including the artist producing for a consumer market. And we and all the Muses are things of no account. One product of democracy and capitalism that Yeats feared was the proliferation of those he regarded as inferior people. Yeats advocated planned human up-breeding and joined the Eugenics Society at a time when eugenics was a widely held belief among the intelligentsia. The aristocracy of old, the noble lineage of blood, of familial descent, has been replaced by the new rich, the merchants, our new rulers are those who measure all things by profit. Like Spengler, Yeats saw hope in Fascist Italy: For Yeats, the rule of the few meant a return to some form of aristocracy.

Code enforcement fascism in St. George By - 05 14 17 - 4: And its relevance is as poignant now as it was then. Even locally, there may be an element of fascism in St. The idea being supported by the structure of our government and that municipalities for instance, are, for the most part, supposed to model the tenets of our national laws. And when they do not, something is amiss. It is incumbent upon the people to see to it that the local elected and appointed individuals behave in concordance with the laws of the land and that state legislature does not exceed its authority. This is prudent and makes since. After all, it is local leaders who become national ones. The resemblances to fascist ideologies in our current administration notwithstanding, there is a local issue here in St. George that deserves the scrupulous and vigilant attention of its citizens. The code enforcement division and its subsequent court proceedings continue to be unhinged and perhaps, well, unconstitutional. Take the case of John Rowley, who sued the city in a code enforcement violation case. The city inexplicably and wrongfully trespassed on his property to obtain evidence to bring forth a civil citation. What has ensued in this ongoing debacle is nothing short of rapacious and incredulous. The former judge of the code enforcement court has resigned and moved out of state, and the case itself has now been moved to the Washington County Justice Court. This was apparently done in response to the lawsuit calling them to account for their kangaroo court. You see, prior to Rowley, almost no one stood up to the court. They appeared to receive their obligatory fines from a court where the prosecutor, cop, and judge all sat on the same bench and shared prosecutorial notes. Rowley noted the bias and demanded redress about not being rightfully allowed to have his case heard by an unbiased trier of fact. You see, instead of allowing for his constitutionally protected right of due process, admitting they made a mistake, and making him whole, the city decided to change the nature of his citation to a criminal matter. Rowley has since pleaded no contest to the once civil charge, which was enhanced after the fact to a criminal charge, but not because he thinks in any way he is guilty. It is because he has no faith that a fair and just proceeding will take place in the Washington County Justice Court either. Because, to whip the horse here a little, the Davenport case demonstrated in real time that the court is influenced by a heavy-handed city council, among other things. Instead, he has decided to take it up in appeal in a higher court, a pattern that will likely be seen in a lot of litigations regarding entities in this city, no doubt. Davenport, for instance, is suing Dixie State University, and by association the city will be part of that suit in federal court in the hopes that a judge at that level will not be influenced. Should there be such an intrusive and all-encompassing code enforcement division in this city? Is it really, as they innocuously claim, about safety of citizens and abating liability to the city for what takes place on private property? Or is it, as one caller to the Kate Dalley show pointed out, a resemblance to fascist governing when a city imposes such penalties on people pertaining to their private property? And to highlight what the city thinks about its pattern of overreach, take what it said in a motion in the Rowley case: Logically, by listing what is allowed or required the ordinance is forbidding everything else. It would be impossible to write an ordinance that listed every disallowed use of a piece of property. Read that again and think about it. Because what that is, folks, plain and simple, is fascism. Not on the level of a world dictator, mind you, but just how much is acceptable to you? See you out there.

Why is it this way? There is no way to be sure and that is not really the question that needs to be answered but analysis of the account is definitely intriguing. As it sets out exactly what his ideology is without saying the words "all in four tweets" which is all it is comprised of. There has been much written about Bannon of late, most recently his origin story, which the Wall Street Journal published and interestingly cross published on a Fox News site. Therefore, this new system sets the stage for the End of the Age prophecies found in Revelation For those of you who do not know the difference between a Capitalist and a Fascist and a Communist Economy, please allow us a few moments to detail the critical differences. The companies founded by these private individuals then compete openly with one another in the Marketplace. No one tells the owners what to produce, or how much to produce, or how much to charge. Competition is the primary determinant of prices, and careful attention to the needs and wants of the people within this type of economy determines how much is produced. Capitalism may have its faults, but it has produced the highest standard of living in history for her citizens. Companies are told what to produce, when to produce it, and how much they can charge. This type of control is supposedly enacted in the interests of the "people", to ensure that they are treated "fairly". However, history has shown that Communism never works; rather, it delivers the most wretched conditions on earth for its citizens. Today, only Japan retains this system. In Fascism, private individuals retain control over the Means of Production, thereby ensuring that the key element which makes Capitalism work so well is kept in place. However, the Government intervenes to control how much is produced of any item, how many competitors can be making the same item, and how much they can charge. Therefore, the potential for the most profit lies within the Fascist economy! We have seen that the proper coordination between Government and Capitalism does work. Two features which the government will control in a Fascist economy is the authority to "hire and fire" executives of privately-owned companies and to control their compensation packages. The economy planned for the New World Order is Fascist; therefore, the private Captains of Western Industry are the most anxious for this new system to begin, so they can begin to reap the rewards of dramatically increased profits. That time has now arrived as this new law establishes a Fascist Economy, as the Federal Government now has enormous financial power and will own controlling equities in the companies they are "rescuing". Let us now examine the specifics of this awful plan which hands control of the entire American economy into the hands of the Treasury Secretary -- in the guise of "bailing out" the entire economy. The Act was proposed by U. But, we urge you to remember that these goals listed above were never the REAL goal of the plan. The hidden agenda of this legislation is to begin the transition from a Capitalist Economy based upon competition and private ownership to a Fascist Economy based upon government control of private ownership. Treasury Secretary Paulson wasted no time tackling the process of controlling key financial assets of the American economy. The Treasury began implementing the plan within an hour of Congress yesterday giving Paulson the powers he sought to combat the U. Paulson is seeking to assemble a team to determine which toxic securities to target, how to value them and how to buy them. Indeed, one chief accountant alluded to this detailed previous planning. And, the economy will never be the same. Now that the Government owns an equity state in these companies it is "rescuing", the economy will be as finitely controlled as the Japanese government guides the Fascist economy of that nation. As we stated earlier, the Fascist Economy does work almost as well as Capitalism in creating and spreading wealth. All you have to do is to look at the performance of the Japanese economy since World War II to understand this. Once the furor settles down from the deliberate murder of the Capitalist system, the new Fascist Economy will perk along quite nicely!
