Agent-general, Hand-book for emigrants to.. S61, since which time upwards of All ships despatched are approved by the. Reference to the Map attached to this pamphlet will show that the Colony of Queensland has no cause to complain of want of space, whatever other drawbacks she may be credited with. The eastern streams flow directly to the Pacific, the northern to the Gulf of Carpentaria. East Coast or Pacific District. This country, included between the main range and the Pacific, is of triangular form, having the boundary of New South Wales as its base. It is that to which the largest population has been hitherto attracted, on account of its varied natural resources, " agricultural, pastoral, mining, " and its greater facilities for carrying on such manufactures as have yet commenced in the Colony. On the alluvial soils of most of these, cane, cotton, maize, and other tropical and semi-tropical produce are now being profitably grown, and the areas under cultivation are rapidly increasing. All the chief centres of gold and copper mining are also included in this District. Bowen, Townsville, Cardwell, and Cooktown. Two squatting stations only are situated on the head waters of the I-ynd branch of the Mitchell: A large extent of mineral country has been for some time worked at the head of the Gilbert, and a few squatting stations have been taken up in the neighbourhood of the mines. The Norman drains a generally poor pastoral country, and no mines have as yet been discovered on its waters. The seaport towns are Burke and Normantown; those inland are Georgetown and Gilberton. Under this head would be included. In seasons of flood these find their way to Cooper Creek, and thence to Lake Torrens; whilst the Herbert and other streams rising to the westward of the Thompson run west and south to unknown reservoirs in the interior. Of all the Murray affluents the Condamine is the most important, as on its tributaries are situated the Darling Downs. Its rich volcanic soil and genial climate will justify this assumption. The country drained by the Weir, Tambo is the chief town of the District. Darling Downs portion of the Western, are the two districts in which the heat is great, in summer, the sickening miasma, so common in other warm latitudes, is absent. The temperature of the day may be considerable; the night is restoratively cool. The Colony does not suffer so much from fierce hot winds as its Australian neighbours. The average temperature of Brisbane: The heated lands by the coast are cooled by the prevalent trade winds from off the ocean. The rainfall in the three great divisions of the Colony of Queensland f. Coast " Cardwell. The climate is healthy and mild. This, at the end of 1861, there were 57,000 males to 55,000 females. Magistrates, in the far interior, perform the office of marrying, in the absence of a resident population of European origin, the native Aborigines are by no means numerous. Socially, order is maintained after the British standard. Home institutions, as hospitals, benevolent societies, and religious organizations, are liberally supported. There are also various friendly societies, as Odd Fellows and Mechanics. The Governor is appointed by the Queen. All denominations are placed upon the common platform of voluntarism. This was derived from sales and rentals of land, custom dues on wines, spirits, and tobacco, and also stamp duties. The colonists are great patrons of the Press. There are daily, weekly, and bi-weekly papers. In nearly every township, and on most of the diggings, this periodical literature nourishes. Religious services are well supported, even at the diggings. In 1861 the Legislature ceased to grant State aid to the various religious bodies. School fees having been abolished in 1861, Queensland became the first of the Australian colonies to establish a free and comprehensive system of public instruction. There is a Training School in connection with the Normal School. Since the abolition of fees, an equivalent is added to this stated salary. Flourishing Grammar Schools, aided by the Public Treasury, afford a higher class of instruction. Religious lessons in all schools receiving Government support must be imparted out of the ordinary hours devoted to secular learning, and cannot be noticed by the official School Inspector. the working men, and are fostered by the State. The public debt of the Colony has been incurred principally, apart from emigration, for the two hundred and twenty miles of iron road are now available for traffic from Brisbane, across the main range, and over the Darling Downs. Another line has been partially opened. Post Offices and Telegraphs. The Post Office is admirably served. Telegraph stations have been constructed throughout the province. There are 3,000 miles of wire now stretched, both westward and northward. The extension from Curdwell, on the Pacific side, to Xormanton, by the Gulf, is completed. A Government Savings Bank was established in 1864. The results of this valuable institution are shown in the following table: There were no manufactures and works in operation at the close of 1864, and great encouragement is given to the founders of industries. The districts to which agriculture has hitherto been confined are the Pacific or Coast District, and that of Darling Downs. The main staples are cane, cotton, and maize. The vine, and such fruit trees as are found to thrive in Southern Europe, have been successfully introduced here. Don James Graham Munro 6 11, Total average yield, 38 bush. Of 64, acres under crop in 1864. The present price is 1s. Of wheat, 3, acres; potatoes. Sugar is now, however, the leading agricultural product, which produced last year 14, tons. Sugar is now grown extensively from the extreme northern boundary of the Colony along the coast to the Herbert River in south lat. In 1864, 100,000 gallons of rum were distilled. The cultivation of the olive and mulberry, together with the rearing of the silkworm, are especially suitable to the climate of Queensland. No part of Italy is better adapted for the growth of silk. The price at which agricultural land can be obtained is very low, and the mode of obtaining it very simple. By the Land Act of 1862, selections may be made from 40 to 140 acres, at a cost of 10s. A conditional purchase involves the payment of ten annual rents of eighteenpence an acre, which completes the purchase. The same privilege is granted at any time if one-tenth of the land has been cultivated. The right of transfer cannot be obtained until the above-named conditions have been complied with. First and second class pastoral land can be obtained under the provisions of the same Act, at 10s. From 80 to 2,000 acres. Agricultural land for sugar and coffee, to the extent of 100 acres: If cultivated one-tenth within three years, the selector is relieved from the obligation of residence. By the "Homestead" clauses of the "Land Act" of 1862, and the amended Act on Homesteads of 1864, there may be selected 80 acres of agricultural land, or 100 acres of pastoral and agricultural together. Upon 80 acres agricultural, or of pastoral and agricultural, the yearly rent is ninepence per acre for the first year. Upon continuance of residence for five years, with cultivation of one-tenth, or the fencing in of the land, the lessee obtains a Crown Grant. On the excess of those 80 or 100 acres, the rent is eighteenpence for the agricultural, and ninepence for the pastoral, during five years. But no money-advance can be seized for any debt incurred by the lessee before the issue of the Grant. For the first few years in the history of Queensland, the pastoral was recognized as the principal exporting interest in the Colony, and as providing the chief employment for capital and labour. The pastoral industry, however, is capable of considerable extension in the direction of fully stocking old "runs," and taking up new, as there is still much country in the north and west yet unoccupied by the "squatter. The coast country and the Western Plains are more suitable for cattle. At the end of 1864 the value of meat exported was £100,000. The regulations under which a "run" as a tract of country leased from the Crown for pastoral purposes is called can be obtained are embodied in the "Pastoral Leases Act" of 1862. Several runs together, to the amount of square miles, may form a Consolidated Run. Subdivisions of a run cannot be less than 100 acres. As it is assumed that sheep or 20 head of cattle can be depastured on every square mile of a run, the selector must stock with one-fourth of the land. Within that term he may apply for his transferable lease of twenty-one years.

Over the years we have interviewed, and negotiated with various immigration attorneys, however none of them quite stood out like the present individual we have chosen to work with. Dr Hugo has also lectures in the Migration law and practice program with the Australian National University ANU and as a Fellow of the Migration Institute of Australia MIA he regularly delivers papers and presentations on practical issues relevant for Australian immigration. Dr Etienne Hugo is a highly regarded Australian immigration lawyer, based in Australia since He is the founding partner and legal practitioner director of Teleo Immigration, a leading Sydney-based law firm specialising in Australian Immigration law since He is a Law Society of New South Wales accredited specialist in immigration law of whom there are only 42 in a profession of approximately 23, He has been a recipient of various academic and research scholarships and awards and has successfully practised immigration law in Australia for the past 16 years. Teleo immigration is an incorporated legal practice that specialises in Australian immigration law. The firm has a highly skilled team of lawyers and agents who have successfully represented hundreds of clients including large corporate firms, small businesses and individuals over the past 10 years. The firm deals with all aspects of immigration law from visa applications, corporate structures and sponsorships, to appeal work, judicial review, visa cancellations, immigration detention and deportation matters et cetera. The firm has a broad international client base, representing clients from across the globe, from all walks of life and from a wide range of cultural backgrounds. It is therefore essential to obtain an accurate understanding of the required end result for each client and then adopt a holistic approach, which may include the incorporation of appropriate legal structures and a multi-phased plan, taking proactive steps, to reach the desired end goal. By engaging specialist lawyers to represent you or your business in relation to visa or sponsorship applications, you can be confident that you are getting the most accurate advice from professionals who have a comprehensive understanding on the relevant laws, policies and practices. To allow for study in Australia. Student visa holders typically have work rights for 40 hours per fortnight during term an unrestricted work rights during holidays. Skilled employees may qualify either for a 4 year temporary visa subclass or a permanent visa under either the ENS or RSMS programs. The key issue here is to have the support of a large local RSA business that wishes to set up a regional office in Australia or an Australian based employer. Most skilled migration visas are permanent visas with full permission to work and full access to Medicare. There are a number of family related visas for which you may qualify if you have Australian based close family members.
