Without answering to a single soul. Make your inner child proud. But what fun is that? Especially since you can easily work from bed. Place a few air mattresses on the floor, pour a ton of plastic balls inside, seal the room with a pet gate, and dive into the best part of your eighth birthday party. Slide down stairs like a boss. OddityMall Where adults see stairs, children see possibilities. So older-you can be happy about that too. Chill in a majestic fortress. The great thing about blanket forts: Which means you can build blanket forts whenever you want. And fill them with whatever you want. Camp in the great indoors. Fullinsight You may have heard of glamping. Yes, it does sound oxymoronic yet oddly perfect. Your inner-child would do it right now. DIY a castle for your cat. So why not make it official? Give Mittens the majestic castle she deserves. Daydream on beanbag chairs. Test drive one, or four, of these supple beauties at a Muji near you. WhatCulture Whether it was Six Flags or the arcade at the mall, you always had to beg your parents to drive you there. If only, you thought to yourself, if only I had all the best games at home. Well, now you can. Yes, it costs the same as a used car. And the electricity involved is probably comparable to gas. But then again, you save a bunch of money by taking the bus, riding the train, and biking to work.

Chapter 2 : 8 Ridiculously Fun And Childish Things To Do At Home

Get this from a library! Have fun at beanbag camp!. [Charles M Schulz] -- Sally Brown goes off to bean bag camp for two weeks and comes back a new person.

But do you ever find yourself a little bit confused about how to make that happen? Here are a few ideas to help you out as you get ready for camp. Of course your old friends are amazing. But new friends are pretty great too. Talk to other campers to find out what you have in common besides camp. Show support for other campers at activities. Get involved in camp activities There are so many awesome things to do at camp. Take advantage of the opportunity to get involved in them. Try some new things too. Show your camp spirit Camps rely on their campers to create a fun, energetic environment by showing their camp spirit. Be your best self Camp is the most fun for everyone when campers are positive, energetic, open and inclusive. If someone in your bunk or at your activity is shy, go out of your way to include them and take a leadership role in introducing them to others. If your friends try to say negative things about other people, change the subject or reply with a positive. Encourage others at activities, particularly those who struggle or who fear being made fun of. The more fun that everyone has together, the better camp is! Think before you react. Rather than dwelling on that one thing, shake it off and move on.
