King of the Monster Trucks! Our primary goal in helping to construct this event is to build a national caliber Monster Truck competition featuring the best in the business doing what they love. The King of the Monster Trucks event emphasized the excitement of creation, the adrenaline of racing, fueled by the awesome culture and genuine love for monster trucks. If you thought you can build custom RC monster trucks, think again. Try heads-up racing going 1 on 1 versus the competition in bracket-style racing. Here is an overview of the event in parts 1 and parts 2 videos below. Jason also documents his journey to the King of the Monster Trucks with a nice Photo Epic taken throughout the event. Building a truck the night before really brings it back full circle. Thanks to AJ for staying late to help tear down and build back up. The Capitol City Monster came together very well. Had a great time doing some old school design work and fabrication. Early morning flights are a drag. Getting up at 5am is never my favorite thing to do. Louis is an easy 1 hour minute flight from Florida. I was sleeping before takeoff. Driving, not quite as easy but Fred hammers it out like a Pro. Vinyl Images, what a clean and organized facility. I would definitely have work done here. Trigger King crew had the track installed and ready to roll and the looks were fantastic. Fast Freestyle Fred brought in the timing equipment and once again completed a picture-perfect setup. JConcepts pits were looking fresh and stacked with Monster Truck goodness. Thanks to all who helped set up and tear down during the weekend. Show and shine was a success, it was great to see so many trucks out and with new themed or new schemes. A few trucks stood out but Awesome Kong was the best on this day. Bigfoot 8 by Michael Arndt was a head turner and got a lot of people talking at the event. Looking forward to seeing this truck in action. The Grave Digger Trucks were cool and especially the red lights and graveyard scene effects. The Taurus line-up is always amazing. Love the Honeycomb Taurus. Superman is a really cool truck. Heavy Hitter was sporting the Chevy body and decaled up right before Show and Shine. NewBright Bigfoot was a sweet looking new body as well. Great debut by Michael Arndt. Chris Blank had the entire Orange Truck lineup in full force. This is a line-up that would make anyone jealous. Zombie complete with arms. Turbo Lover, now that I understand. Bigfoot Ranger, Bigfoot Shuttle, of course, we like those! Kodiak, a strange looking real truck but a masterpiece by RH Designs in scale form. Flag Bigfoot, definitely another favorite of mine. I want to do my own soon with the Ford F body. High Roller with 2. Overkill by Freestyle RC. I pretty much like all the Overkill trucks and especially this one by Josh. Those Freestyle RC race trucks with Cantilevers, softest and plushiest rides on the workbench. Thanks to Chris Tolbert for helping shoot photos and video while I was either judging or racing. Team help all the way. Arriving Saturday, the freshness in the air and anticipation for drivers eager for track time. It was time for qualifying. The format was fun, lineup and run a single qualifying pass in each lane. Your fastest time was used to determine your seeding into the racing brackets. Wow, what an experience for someone like myself coming from a traditional off-road racing format. However, before the excitement of qualifying, there was some business to take care of in the Classic Retro class. Tough races but Capitol City Monster comes out on top in the finals. Moving on to the Outlaw Retro, I felt this was competitive and the trucks were very good for this track condition and layout. Tuff Truck was neat and a very simple class to compete in. Tamiya CC02 Truck with stock electrical is a great entry level class and handled the track pretty successfully. Mega Truck, a new fresh face class of was hotly contested. Matt Stoltz had his Lemieux truck on-point in qualifying taking the top spot. Fred Reep also pulled out the King Sling and battled with the crew. It was the consistent speed of Matt leading to victory and eventually, his trucks finished an amazing in the class. Sport Mod, which is easily one of the best classes in the race was rather simple but fun. The price point of this class along with realism potential makes it desirable. The field of 44 trucks made things exciting and constant. Brandon Scott hit for a money run in qualifying taking the TQ. Matt Stoltz was running strong along with Morris Aschkenas and my nWo had some consistency. Matt worked his way through the brackets but encountered a setback allowing myself to move on and into the finals. The small error allowed Brandon a great win with the Warpath truck with Wild Flower body. The big boys were up next, the Pro Mods. This was an extremely difficult class for me as the power of the trucks created some handling problems on the rather small and slick surface. I entered 3 trucks but after qualifying, I faced off against my own truck. I thrashed in the pits, made some changes to the Cube as suggested by Matt and Morris. I made a bye-run and the truck felt much better. I made a choice to move the Bigfoot 21 Cube based truck on to the next round. The Bigfoot Plane Jump Truck was pretty and with the new Ford F body, it felt nice not to get any scratches on it. Matt Stoltz was on a tear and winning each race and moving his trucks through the brackets. Josh Rhodes, Bobby C and a host of others were also making it through narrowing the field down to the Quarter Finals. Myself, Matt with 2 trucks and Mo were all poised to battle. First, he eliminated my Bigfoot 18 Lucas with a great run and it was actually a fairly close race and I turned my best time of the event. However, Matt was flying and showing how it was done. When you get both trucks in the finals, the win is yours and all that is necessary is to take the winning truck of your choice and perform a winning pass on your own. Matt put down an amazing run to seal the victory for the Superman truck and pull a 2nd with Bigfoot For freestyle, everyone was back to square one. The field was re-stacked and everyone in Sport Mod and Pro Mod took a shot at the clock. I chose to break out my Warpath chassis truck and took a few good hits around the track. I hit for big-time air and a few fun smaller jumps but my run was ended shortly after a mechanical error on my part. Sport Mods got a second clock and Pro Mods got a second clock to fill. You could see the experienced drivers right away and Bobby C with his Chaos trucks looked superior. Run after run, Bobby made clean and full passes in Sport Mod and then followed up with the same in Pro. Big air time belonged to the Bigfoot Super Duty and Chromeillusion on a way to a 2 class sweep of the competition. Great job by Fred showing off the speed, agility and durability of the platform. To say the event was a blast would be an understatement. See everyone next year!

June 1, Monster Trucks trailer and set visit report! Check out the Monster Trucks trailer, then read the set visit below! I know from animation that you can have all the crazy color and design and motion you want out of it, but at the end of the day all the audience wants is character. We found a great character story at the center of this thing. Apocalypse as he makes a connection with a mysterious creature, ala E. Oh, and did we mention that monster has a knack for controlling cars? He really wants an engine for his truck, and the monster turns out to be exactly what he needs. The mercs deliberately have no guns in the movie, just tazers. Once all the visual effects are completed, the scene will show monster tentacles reaching out of hero trucks to flip merc trucks over. There are a lot of overhead shots captured with a helicopter. They are discovered in an underground world to be teased at the beginning and end of the film when oil drillers dig too deep. The mom and dad creatures are taken away, so the child has to hide in an abandoned truck hauled to a junkyard where Tripp discovers him. Danny Glover Lethal Weapon owns the junkyard, and acts as a surrogate father to Tripp. The creature ultimately acts as an engine for the truck, not only helping it run but allowing it to do amazing things. Meredith is a Type A student in need of an adventure, who meets Tripp while tutoring him in detention. She has a soft spot for cute boys and has a crush on him. Schwalm shows us the practical hydraulic hero truck. There are eight hydraulic computers in the bed, which help J. This large vehicle runs on electricity. It already looks like a character, which is what I was after. McCallany, playing the villain Burke, is in the cab of the truck yelling at someone, then pulls out a tazer rifle and begins firing out the window. Wedge tells him the gun has jammed, and then asks him to show the camera that the gun has jammed more clearly, after which he tosses it down in disgust. The camera is also operated remotely from video village using a system of wheels. Toy company representatives are also here to assess future Christmas presents to be made from the heroes and villains. We look on at the shooting from video village. Despite being on a gimbal at least forty feet in the air, Holt is not wearing a harness or even a seatbelt, presumably because he is a badass. These vents are the entrance to the underground lake where the creatures are living. Jane and Tom are in their red and green trucks, which they rush out of and head over to a set of valves to turn them off. Tom wears glasses, dressed in typical geeky scientist attire. Jane is blonde with jeans. Crew members apply more dust to the trucks before calling action on a second take. The actors pause for creature interaction. Tom then flips a switch. Another unit is shooting plates in the Yukon to be comped into the surrounding valley. Chris directs some more: He understands how to create characters you relate to. Those characters might be prehistoric animals, but you still recognize and identify those characters. The monsters tear apart a tower and throw a metal girder into a bad guy truck, spearing it onto its side.

Several truck owners had created lifted trucks to compete in such events, and soon competition to hold the title of "biggest truck" developed. At the time, the largest tires the trucks were running were 48 inches 1. In April , Bob Chandler drove over cars in Bigfoot in what is often believed to be the first monster truck to crush cars. An event promoter saw the video of the car crush and asked Chandler to do it in front of a crowd. Initially hesitant because of the "destructive" image that could be associated with Bigfoot, Chandler eventually caved in. After some smaller shows, Chandler performed the feat in the Pontiac Silverdome in . At this show, Chandler also debuted a new version of Bigfoot with 66in. At a prior event in the early s when Bigfoot was still running 48 in. The term "monster truck" became the generic name for all trucks with oversized terra tires. Exactly who crushed the first car is often debated. Another truck, known as High Roller currently known as "Thunder Beast" , also claimed to have documented car crushes in Washington State before Bigfoot, though said documentation has never surfaced. Cyclops, then owned by the Dykman Brothers, also claims to have crushed burning cars before Bigfoot. However, the earliest, widely available and verified video footage showing a monster truck crushing cars that exists shows Bob Chandler driving Bigfoot while crushing two mids automobiles in April This video was what the promoter viewed that motivated him to ask Chandler to perform the car crush in front of a crowd. King Kong and Bear Foot each followed Bigfoot to inch-diameter 1. These early trucks were built off of stock chassis which were heavily reinforced, used leaf spring suspension, a stock body, and heavy military axles to support the tires. For most of the early s, monster trucks performed primarily exhibitions as a side show to truck pulling or mud bogging events. The races, as they are today, were in the form of single elimination drag races , held over a course littered with obstacles. The change to racing eventually led truck owners to begin building lighter trucks, with more power. The MTRA created standard safety rules to govern monster trucks. With racing taking precedence, several teams began to think in new ways as to how the trucks could be built. Towards the end of , Gary Cook and David Morris debuted Equalizer , a truck with a combination of coil springs and shock absorbers as the main source of suspension rather than the standard of leaf springs and shock absorbers. In , Jack Willman Sr. The truck revolutionized how monster trucks were built, and within a few years most top level teams built similar vehicles. The Special Events championship began to grow in popularity with teams as it had open qualifying spots which the invite-only USHRA championship did not have. The Special Events series lost its Pentaliner sponsorship in . The short-lived ProMT series started in . Even though racing was dominant as a competition, USHRA events began having freestyle exhibitions as early as . These exhibitions were developed as drivers, notably Dennis Anderson of the extremely popular Grave Digger , began asking for time to come out and perform if they lost in early rounds of racing. Promoters began to notice the popularity of freestyle among fans, and in USHRA began holding freestyle as a judged competition at events, and now even awards a freestyle championship. A typical track for arena monster truck shows. The cars have ramps on one side for racing and are left bare on the other side for freestyle. The jumps around the perimeter are for ATV races Promoters[edit] Monster Jam is currently the largest and premier monster truck event, touring through the United States, Canada and select regions of Europe. Promoters of monster truck events include:

You can help by adding to it. October The series of videos revolved around Dave and sometimes with Becky in jobs that center around the vehicles being featured. Dave and Becky always reminded kids that they did not have respective jobs, but the real workers had agreed for them to pretend for the day so that the viewers could learn about the vehicles being featured as well as learn a little more about the jobs the vehicles serve. While the most part of the videos focused on showing how the vehicles worked and what they can do, in some episodes predictably Dave would get into the trope of getting in trouble example: In these videos, the hosts talked about how the vehicles worked, the history of the vehicle featured and talked to real people who worked in their fields. On other episodes, at the end, Dave and Becky would also remind the viewers about safety examples include: Other times, the people who worked in the fields of the vehicles would discuss safety to the viewers as well. List of episodes[edit] 1. There Goes a Fire Truck Fireman Dave takes a visit to the Ontario, California Fire Department to see what it takes to be a real firefighter and how fire trucks work. There is also footage of the Ontario International Airport Fire Department where they show how their fire apparatus works. This is the first episode of the series. There Goes a Bulldozer Construction Foreman Dave visits a construction site to learn all about construction vehicles. There Goes an Airplane Pilot Dave learns all about different types of airplanes and how they work, including taking a hair-raising and possibly faked flight in a newly-manufactured Waco PT 4. There Goes a Boat Dave and Becky learn about different types of boats and how they work. Here Comes a Roller Coaster Dave has a dream that he spends a day at Six Flags Magic Mountain and rides on all different types of roller coasters and other thrill rides. Also, this episode is a flashback episode when Dave and Becky remember what they did in the past. There Goes a Rescue Vehicle Dave and Becky learn about different types of rescue work and the vehicles they use. There Goes a Garbage Truck Dave and Becky learn about garbage trucks and how important it is to keep the Earth clean and not pollute. There Goes a Dump Truck Dave learns all about dump trucks and other construction vehicles. This episode is somewhat similar to There Goes A Bulldozer. David Sidoni hosts this episode.
