You are sensible, calm and collected at all times and you are always thinking ahead. While that is great when it comes to making big decisions, you may find certain opportunities pass you by because of your inability to be spontaneous. You do take certain risks, but only after careful consideration of all the pros and cons of the matter. Your ability to think things through make you more susceptible to success. So, although your decision-making process may take time, it always pays off. You adore having a challenge and are always willing to try new things. You understand that to gain success, you need to open yourself to uncertainty and you are always spontaneous with your decisions. However, while you enjoy the adventurous life, it is not something you crave every day. If you got mostly Ds - you are the daredevil Life is one big adventure! Plans, decision-making and schedules are not for you. You are an absolute adrenaline junkie, always keen on having the most bizarre experiences and are known for your bold decisions. You love betting big and it does pay off - most of the time. But being impulsive may not always be a good thing.
