At some point, I received a copy of chinese software used to clone iClass cards after gaining the master key in a more conventional way. Despite already having the master key, this application presented an interesting challenge. For one thing, the application could only be run if the manufacturer provided USB dongle was attached to the computer. Not only is this annoying, but it also adds to the suspiciousness of the software. It emulated an HID device of some kind which also added to its suspiciousness. Obviously, it would be prudent to run the software in a Virtual Machine VM in order to limit the impact it could have on your system. Many applications that wish to resist the efforts of a reverse engineer will attempt to detect if they are currently in a virtual machine. Often times this is done by detecting features of a VM. But, attempting to run the application in a debugger led to the discovery that the application also detected debuggers. Being a fool, I initially misconfigured ScyllaHide which led me to believe that the application resisted debugging in a very novel way. Instead of suffering with an unruly application, I opted for a less aggressive method than hiding the debugger. This allows for the moderately easy dynamic analysis of an operating system or application. So long as the application will run, the image is suitable. Saving memory to iclass. But I initially could not run the application in a debugger and PANDA is an amazingly cool project that also allowed me to capture the USB dongle information for future analysis. PEB at 0x0 is unavailable 0xe 0x smss. ImageBaseAddress at 0x is unavailable 0xe 0x svchost. All of a sudden it seems way easier to just buy this Chinese software and extract the keys from memory! No fiddling with finicky bit-banging, having multiple vulnerable readers, or having a solid background in electrical engineering. But alas, it is even easier to gain the master key as it was leaked online before I even began this research. Throwing away the keys While researching the HID iClass system and reading the proxmark forums, a few ideas became apparent: Very little specific information is available to reproduce the work of the higher up proxmark forum members, but a large amount of documentation is available from HID. Reading through this documentation is critical to getting anywhere with the systems. Some of this information has been purged from the internet by HID. Some of it can be recovered by asking the right people, and some I have been unable to find. A large amount of code released is based on code released by HID or the iclassified library released by the authors of Exposing iClass Key Diversification. A user purports to be able to write cards without needing access to the HID master key. Obviously, being able to achieve all of this without the master key is desirable. You would no longer need to purchase vulnerable readers to get the ability to modify or clone iClass cards. Nonetheless, in a true testament to the insecurity of the HID iClass system, simple modifications to the iclassified example code allow a user to read and write to an iClass card without the master key. But, if after authentication, you were to issue the command to initialize Secure Mode AGAIN, you gain full read and write permissions to the card! A modified version of the iclassified example code, full build instructions, drivers, and a GUI application to read and write iClass cards without using the master key is provided on Github. The model number does not matter very much, contrary to what you may think. To build the software you want to start off by downloading the MinGW installer assistant. Install it and select: Now go to C: Clone the provided source code into the home folder, go into the iclassified directory, and run make. If everything runs well you should get iclass. If all goes well you should be able to execute iclass.

Chapter 2 : How To Use The Master Key

The effective use of the master-key is by means of concentration. Only thus can we gain so firm a hold upon the key that we can unlock and open the magic realm of power to which it gives access.

A resource for consumers, locksmiths, and security professionals. The fascination, I believe, is due to the confusing nature of the device. How is one key, opening two doors, but another key that is opening one of those doors is not opening the other? Is it the key that is special? Is it the internal mechanics of the lock? Well, I must warn you that there is some math involved in these answers. Now before you stop reading I may have lost some people already it is nothing too difficult. At the lowest level of comprehension it is addition and subtraction, and at the highest level of understanding at least what is expressed here it is exponents. It is nothing scary. After reading this piece, you should be able to understand any master key system, varying from the simplest version to the most complex. Keys in a Master System In order of least access to most access: It will open one lock and only locks that are exactly the same. The lock that the change key opens will also open with the use of the master key, and any key above that rank. This is the necessary key to change a simple lock into a master keyed lock. In some systems, this will be the highest ranking key. This key will open every master system under it, and the subsequent change keys under those systems. Theoretically, this trend can continue until the locks become too complicated to function. There could be grand master keys prefaced with great great great great, etc. A quick review on how a basic pin tumbler lock will work: To open a lock a pin stack consisting of a driver pin and a key pin must be elevated so that the two rest on opposite sides of the shear line. A key lifts key pins within a lock. These key pins are all different sizes. The driver pins will be a universal size. Therefore, the key needs to have the right set of grooves to lift the key pins to the correct height. It is an oversimplification, but if you would like to find out more about the specifics you can check out the house lockouts section of our website. With that understanding, it will be easier to comprehend the addition of a master key system. All that is needed for any standard pin tumbler to be converted for a master key system is to add a master wafer aka master pin between a driver and key pin. A master wafer is virtually a small hockey puck shaped pin. Once it is in place, the pin stack will have two shear lines. A shear line for a pin stack with a master wafer below or above the line. Key Take Aways Master key system is a system that allows two or more keys to open one lock. Master key systems often use pin tumbler locks. Convenience Most large institutions do not want their employees to carry around large quantities of keys. A master key system will allow for different levels of restricted entry. When a master key system is finished there may be a graduated level of access. However, the property manager will have one key that works for both locks. This can work to create a number of possible keys. Say there are five chambers in the lock and five active pin stacks. If each one of those stacks has a master wafer, then each chamber will have two possible shear lines. Of those 32 possible keys, only two keys need to be made. One will be for the person with access to what that lock is securing, and another for the person that has access to what every lock is securing in the location. Key Take Aways Master keys will be able to open multiple locks. The greater the difference between the master key and the change key, the more master wafers will be needed. The more master wafers, the more possible keys can open the lock. Security Vulnerabilities It is often the case that convenience will lower security. The more convenient something is for the proper user, the simpler it is to defeat like some of these locks for instance. Master keyed locks are a great example of this. A master key system will make your locks vulnerable to several types of attacks: Decoding Exploratory keys are used to decode master keyed systems with only your change key and the lock it opens. With the knowledge of what type of key it is, you can gather the key codes, and cut the zero cut to a one. Try out that key. Once you have worked your way down to the deepest groove depth, you should have an understanding of the pinning on that first cut in the key. If there is only one depth that turns the lock, then there is no master wafer. If the lock opens at two depths, then it does have a master wafer in the first pin stack. There may be more shear lines if there are more wafers or pins. With the next exploratory key, keep the depth closest to the shoulder at the only functioning depth or at the depth that the original key did not have. Have the next cut at zero, and then begin the process again. This process will be repeated with each groove in the bitting. Each time you make another exploratory key, you will keep the only working depth or the depth that your original key did not have. To save time in the exploration process, you can assume that there are no master wafers that are changing the depth value by a factor of one either higher or lower than the depth on your working key. Master wafers with a differential of one depth are often not used because they can jam up the internals of a lock. Once you have a key that works in your own lock, that has as many different cuts as possible, you will know all the possible keys that will work in your lock. You will have to fashion a key for each possibility. A lock that has master wafers in 3 chambers would have 8 possible keys. Multiple master wafers will be used to make more complicated systems, such as grand Master Keys, and Great Grand Master Keys. If the system is on a Grand Master, Great Grand Master, or anything higher, the number of functioning key codes you end up with will increase accordingly. For every additional master wafer, you must add one extra shear line to the chamber. Another way you can cut down time in your decoding is to do some research on the lock. That means that a cut on either side must not exceed a difference of four. For example, a key can have the bitting 2, 4, 5, 2, 6. The difference between 2 and 4 is 2; the difference between 4 and 5 is 1; the difference between 5 and 2 is 3; the difference between 2 and 6 is 4. If the 4th groove had been a one, then the difference would have been 5 between groove 4 and 5. That would have violated MACS. Because this will never happen, when you are decoding for this key you would know that there is no possible key with the bitting 2, 4, 5, 1, 6. So out of your possible 32 biting combinations that you may need to try, there are perhaps some that can be crossed off the list before you make them. Key Take Aways With several exploratory keys and the working lock, the master key for your system can be decoded. You can assume that there is not a groove difference of one greater or less than the groove on your original key. You can disregard key bitting that violates MACS. Picking Adding master wafers to your lock will hurt your security, with a few exceptions. However, as long as a master wafer creates a secondary and functional shear line, security will be compromised. Essentially, there are two different ways to pick each chamber. In a five chamber lock, with a master wafer in each, there are 32 different ways to pick the lock. Due to the fact that any amateur can rake a lock, the number of individuals that can open your locks dramatically increases. In the security industry, the amount of skill it takes to defeat your protections is directly correlated to the amount of crime being deterred. Are picking attacks common in your area, industry, etc? You will also need to weigh how much having a master key system will help your security in terms of key control and personal convenience. Key Take Aways Master keyed locks are easier to pick. Locks that are easier to pick have a larger number of thieves that can defeat them. This vulnerability must be weighed against the likelihood of this threat. Making a Master Key System As we discussed early on, a master key system will make one lock open with the use of at least two keys. If you are looking to make a master key or master key system, the first step will be to gather two keys with the same style. Once you have these keys, you will need to decode their depths. You can do this most easily with a key gauge. In the event that you do not have a key gauge, you will need to get creative with the tools you do have. If you are a locksmith or have the tools and time to make a key with the exact cuts you want, there is no need to use two existing keys. You can also purchase a pinning kit if you wish to do this work more often. Regardless of whether you will be making keys or using pre-existing ones, note the existing, or intended, groove depths. For our theoretical example we will say that these are our keys: You should have the ability to rekey the lock, so you can access the pins.

Our Instant Essentials "Master Key" is a result of years of being an Essential Oil lover, daily user, and asking thousands of our Essential Oil Vip subscribers what they wanted from an essential oil Master Key. We asked, we listened, YOU shared what you wanted with us Instant Essentials is proud to offer a high-quality, essential oil "Master Key" that will help you easily remove roller caps, orifice reducer inserts, and put them back on without getting essential oils on your hands. Never again use your teeth, knives, fingernails, or other unwieldy tools to remove roller bottle or reducer caps. The "Master Key" is the perfect tool to help you pry off the orifice reducer insert and press on your roller bottle caps onto your essential oil bottles. Whether you are creating your own oil blends or just wanting to use a roller ball to apply your essential oils, you will never again be forced to use your teeth, knives, fingernails, or other unwieldy and sometimes dangerous items to remove or re-secure your roller bottle or reducer caps again. Kirsite is an alloy containing zinc, aluminum and copper - lightweight and very strong. Your Instant Essentials "Master Key" also will arrive in a Banded Leather case to keep your Key protected in your purse or essential oil carrying case. Up until now, you would have had to pry open your essential oil bottles with your fingernails, your teeth and even a knife or some other sharp object not made specifically for safely and easily removing orifice reducer caps which is less than ideal. This was a frustration point for many of our customers and email subscribers and perhaps it was one for you too Here is the feedback from some of our customers on why they think this tool is "must-have": Reserve your very own "Master Key" from Instant Essentials as a gift to yourself, your family, your loved ones, or the essential oil lover in your life. When we first thought about sourcing the plastic ones we tried them out and were surprised and frustrated to see them break right in our hands. We had to do better so we got feedback from our valued customers and email subscribers and we took that feedback to make a better version. We feel that we have done that with the "Master Key. Here is what they had to say Saves my nails from the bottles. Thank you so much!!!! Its good and solid and as you can tell I love purple! It saved me so much time and no broken nails to remove the caps. It also does a great job at removing the tops of the roller bottle and then putting them back on. No more fighting and struggling to remove those caps. With the Essential Oils "Master Key", you get the handy tool you need, right now, with minimal up front cost. And backing our Kickstarter today is certainly cheaper than a trip to the emergency room to get stitches in your hand when the kitchen knife you use to open your Essential Oil bottles slices your hand. Who would this be a great fit for? This is the perfect tool for any essential oil user, New or Experienced. This is what we wish we had when we got started Could be good for someone in your downline who you want to get off to a great start with their new oils too! This Essential Oils "Master Key" is great for everyone from beginners to more accomplished aromatherapists. Never be without all the tools you need to make your favorite blends and recipes. Why should you back this project? We had a set of prototypes created based on our specifications a few of which we raffled off to our valued E-mail subscribers before this Kickstarter campaign started. WHY are we asking for your support? We asked our essential oil vip newsletter list what they wanted to see in an Essential Oils "Key" like this one and they told us. We asked, we listened, and we created what they wanted We had our very own Essential Oils "Master Key" specially-designed, had multiple prototypes created and gave some away to a few lucky essential oils lover on our email list!! They were psyched to win by the way!! We need your help in order to get this first shipment available for sale. The production of the "Master Keys", the shipping, and the fulfillment all costs money "€" and we need to keep some capital reserves available for an important next phase of being able to offer these "Master Keys" to you on a continuous basis. Rather than borrow money from the Bank, we have initiated this Crowdfunding Campaign on Kickstarter to raise the necessary capital to make the Essential Oil "Master Keys" project possible right now. Why should you support our Campaign? We have something uniquely special, different, and better - and we know it. We also want to make it even better in future versions!! And our Essential Oils community knows it too because they asked specifically for this. Because of our mission to give you high quality products and essential oils information we made it our mission to figure out a way to bring these "Master Keys" to you. With your support we hope to bring this new product to the essential oil community that we love and are part of. You can play an instrumental role in bringing this specially-designed Essential Oil "Master Key" to the consumer marketplace NOW by supporting our Campaign. What do you receive for supporting our Kickstarter Campaign? When our Essential Oil "Master Keys" become commercially available, their price will be significantly higher as is appropriate for a product with such customization and unique input from our valued subscribers. You may find people will want to take it from you! The result of your support is you will own The Best Darn Essential Oil "Master Key" and you will have played an important role in helping to make that possible for yourself and others. Like you, many of your essential oil loving friends and family members use essential oils and also need a "Master Key". You might want to think of getting a "Master Key" or two as gifts for someone special! But either way, you can help ensure the success of the Campaign by telling others about it and that success will insure delivery of your own Essential Oil "Master Key. Just like you, they can benefit from owning this specially-designed Essential Oil "Master Key. We also encourage you to follow our Kickstarter Campaign by going to our Facebook Page: The Choice Is Yours The quality of these "Master Keys" are unmatched! Kirsite is an alloy containing zinc, aluminum and copper and is very strong while being very lightweight. Our Guarantee To You Our team have been Essential Oils users and lovers for many years and we created a custom-made Essential Oils "Master Key" to fit the needs that our subscribers asked for but also one that we would be proud to use ourselves. But we are prepared to go one step further. Love it or return it to us for a Full Refund. We want you to feel safe and secure backing our campaign! You will be happy that you did. We have already placed the order for this shipment of Essential Oil "Master Keys" and they are already on their way to our storage facility before we have been funded by a single dollar because we believe the community will back us and order one or more of these awesome "Keys" for themselves. You can rest-assured that we will deliver on what we promise. Questions about this project? At this level you will receive One Instant Essentials "Master Key" sent to you along with beautiful leather carrying case! After these are gone the early bird deal expires so act quickly!

Chapter 4 : The Master Key System, How to Unlock the Secret Law of Attraction

The exercises in The Master Key System teach you how to use the Silence But you must make the effort to find the Silence first. Those who do not are depriving themselves of the place where they will find and develop their thoughts.

Remitted effort, with many irons in the fire sharing attention and strength, is a wasting drain upon time and human energy; and never, unless under rarely fortuitous circumstances, produces more than mediocre results. This importance of concentration is well understood in its bearing upon the material interests in life; but its real potentiality is not even dreamed of until, in connection with the rhythmic breath, it is used to bring the mind under control; and, through the mind, the body. This system of teaching the overcoming of the lower self, by no means belittling the body or any form of matter but recognizing the power and influence of every atom, proves to us in clarion tones of conviction the personal responsibility of all who are endowed with intelligence for the perfection of that body through right thinking. Only spiritually can we know them; and in rare, exalted moments they give us a perception of the Harmony of the Spheres. Practice will give every human being access to it, for the reservoir is within every soul. The effective use of the master-key is by means of concentration. Only thus can we gain so firm a hold upon the key that we can unlock and open the magic realm of power to which it gives access. Only by concentration can we quiet the kaleidoscopic flitting of idle thoughts through the conscious mind. The moment we arrest, through concentration, the energy-wasting activities of the senses, which furnish much of this mental hash, we bring our minds under control of our souls and give our real selves a chance to live and develop the powers which lie latent in every human being, awaiting only recognition and the stimulus of use or exercise to be evolved. The need for the silent period of concentration is the need for meditation, that men may learn to know their spiritual selves, and gain the peace and strength which can be found in no other way. In the rush and turmoil of life this noblest part of being lies latent when not denied. The progress of the race during centuries has been vastly retarded by the mis-taken attitude towards the soul. The man who knows he is a soul and that every vibration he sends out will return to him, cannot have one set of morals for the first day in the week, and an antagonistic code governing his business dealings and private life. No one can learn the truths of the Tattvic Law without realizing personal responsibility for every thought and act. It is no longer an uncertain belief, or a creed. It is absolute self-knowledge, based upon unvarying natural law. And it fulfills the promise that The Truth shall make him whole. Humanity is just rousing itself to a realization of the depths of degradation to which this mad pursuit of material things as the be-all and end-all of existence is carrying the race. And it is waves of spiritual vibrations, generated by lofty aspirations in the silence, which are thus stirring the public conscience as never before. This is the real Christ spirit which is to rescue humanity from the present intolerable conditions of sordid grind and vicious selfishness; and it is our privilege and responsibility to aid in thought as well as act in this evolution, of which Horatio Dresser wrote prophetically: All human moralities melt away before such aims. But they can neither affect nor withstand the force of the stupendous moral wave circling round our sphere. There is no wickedness in the lower kingdoms; and through the power of right-thinking man must lift the race from its present state of wretchedness and suffering. He must change conditions. Every human being, no matter how isolated the life, can aid the cause by right thinking. Dedicate your daily life to high ideals, and in this training of self-control and self-knowledge your soul will increase in sensitive intuition to all promptings from the creative resources of the Spirit which are infinite. Horatio Dresser, than whom none has aided more in the cult of spiritual thought, says: Remember that we thus raise the Tattvas to a subtle plane, which means increasing activity,â€”vastly increased velocity. This higher rate of vibrations increases the power of the soul to manifest its control over the mind, in fact, puts the two en rapport as nothing else can. The strength which the mind thus gains is shared by every nerve and externalized in the increased vigor and vitality of the body. Existence should be made a joy. Only thus can any soul manifest its highest powers. And to this end the daily life as far as it is under personal control, should be ordered with harmony and restraint. Hold the breath a few seconds before exhalation, and observe a like interval before inhaling the next breath. It is the sovereign remedy in all crises of heart weakness. For pains in the back, the Held-breath exercise affords almost immediate relief, and its continued and regular practice strengthens a weak spine more than anything else I know of. It is well to precede this exercise with several rounds of alternate breathing as given above. They are remedial and corrective, designed to restore normal conditions. In the well-poised human being, Nature takes care of the regular alternation of the currents. Instead of counting numbers during these exercises, and especially during the Held-breath, it is best to think a rhythmic syllable or phrase, a sacred word or lofty sentiment, the repetition of which holds the attention and promotes harmony. There is a deep significance in this which demands more extended consideration than can be given now. By accenting the first word in each group of three or four according to count, the mind carries the number without difficulty, rhythm is promoted, and another anchorage is formed for the mind. This affirmation, from Mrs. The Self is Peace; that Self am I. The Self is Strength, that Self am I. This inhibits one disturbing sense-activity, and at the same time discloses to us a marvelous inner vision, whose development, like that of all the senses, depends upon use. The first aim of concentration is to withdraw all the senses from every external excitant, for this aids powerfully in quieting the mind. One of the earliest results of regular and effective practice is the discovery that this internal vision looks upon a marvelous realm of color due to the Tattvas which we are able to recognize by their characteristic forms and colors. As these vibrations mingle, they vary from their simple forms to those of bewildering complexity, forming every conceivable geometrical line and figure, and the blended colors producing myriad hues and tints. Many movements whirl around a central dot or vortex, which sometimes gives a sensation of great depth or unfathomable space.

Chapter 5 : The Master Key System - Wikipedia

The Master Key System by Charles Haanel. Review Charles F. Haanel was a noted American author and businessman who belonged to the American Scientific League, The Author's League of America, The American Society of Psychical Research, the St. Louis Humane Society and the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce.

WonderHowTo Lockpicking is a skill that takes years upon years to master. Locks come in all sorts of shapes and sizes, but have common ground in how they work. Most cylinder locks have "tumblers," which are metallic cylindrical objects that sit vertically to the actual locking mechanism. Tumblers have five or six holes with rounded key pins of various height in them, each needing to meet an exact height or the cylinder in the center the lock itself will not be allowed to turn. This is the reason why you see those "mountains and valleys" on keys, and why these types of locks are called pin tumbler locks. A bump key can open any lock that it fits into. I keep mine in my wallet. What Makes It Work? The teeth in a bump key are set really low so that you can fit it into locks where the tumblers may be set as low as possible. The teeth are steep and jagged because when you "bump" the key while applying torque, for a split-second, all of the tumblers will bounce up into their perfect positions allowing a window for you to open the lock. The torque you apply makes the tumblers stop once they reach the desired height. Step 1 Make the Bump Key Go to the any store that has blank keys. Wal-Mart and Home Depot have them. They look like this, without teeth at all: Point the file down to shave the extreme "valleys" that you see in a bump key, with ample force. Use it to shave down the grooves on the key to look like this: Step 2 Bump Open a Lock! Put the key into a hole at the end of the plug exactly how you would normally open a lock. The bump key pictured above would fit into most cylinder locks and deadbolts. Take your blunt object I use a pocket knife and hit the key with a bit of force, while applying torque pressure to turn the key in the direction you need to in order to open it. Good job making your first bump key! Talk with me one-on-one at our IRC channel!

Chapter 6 : How Master Key Systems Work

After thousands of hours work, F-Secure researchers Tomi Tuominen and Timo Hirvonen managed to build a master key that could be used to unlock doors and gain entry to any of the hotel rooms using the Vision by VingCard digital lock technology, without leaving a trace on the system.

Louis Humane Society and the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce. Haanel began his business career in St. He resigned his position in order to start his own company and eventually founded one of the largest conglomerates of his time. He wrote several books focusing on abundance and the spiritual law of manifestation. These books by Charles Haanel were published in St. Haanel put into books the ideas and methods he used to gain his success. By The Master Key System had sold over , copies and then seemingly disappeared. The Master Key System is one of the finest studies in spiritual growth, self-improvement and higher consciousness ever written and forms the basis to our online training program Unlock The Power of You Covering everything from how to use the power of positive thinking in attracting abundance and prosperity, Mr. Haanel leaves no stone unturned, leaving you not only feeling good, but also thinking good. The book was banned by the Church in and has been hidden away for seventy years! The Master Key System teaches the ultimate principles of cause and effect, and the law attraction that underlie all attainment and success principles. When you want to attain something, The Master Key System will show you how to get it. The results you will attain from using this system will appear incredible and for this reason, more and more people are becoming students of The Master Key System than ever before. In 24 parts, The Master Key sets out the fundamental principles of life and creating abundance, as Haanel came to understand and apply them. Each lesson is meant to be studied as a correspondence course, but this is also a book that can be opened at random for whatever gem of advice your eyes happen to fall upon. This age-old wisdom was written by someone who could perceive and tap into Universal Mind but who seems to have no particular allegiance to any specific system of knowledge. Haanel died in and is buried in Bellafontaine Cemetery, St. Haanel as "a man of mature judgment, capable of taking a calm survey of life and correctly valuing its opportunities, its possibilities, its demands and obligations. Please follow the links at the end of this passage, to download your own free copy of the Master Key System. Foreword to the Master Key System Some men seem to attract success, power and wealth with very little conscious effort; others with great difficulty and some fail altogether to reach their ambitions, desires and ideals. Why should some people realize their ambitions easily, others with difficulty, and still others not at all? The cause cannot be physical, otherwise the most perfect person, physically, would be the most successful. The difference, therefore, must be mental - must be in the mind; therefore mind must be the creative force, must constitute the only difference between men. It is therefore the mind that overcomes the every obstacle in the path of man. When the creative power of thought is fully understood, its effect will be seen to be marvellous. But such results cannot be secured without proper application, diligence, and concentration. The laws governing the mental and spiritual world are as fixed and infallible as in the material world. To secure the desired results it is necessary to know the law and to comply with it. Of course, mind creates negative conditions just as readily as favourable conditions, and when we consciously or unconsciously visualize every kind of lack, limitation and discord, we create these conditions; this is what many are unconsciously doing all the time. This law as well as every other law has no respect for individuals, but is in constant operation and is relentlessly bringing to each individual exactly what he has created; in other words, "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap. Nothing can be created, before we know that it can be created and then make the proper effort. There is no more Electricity in the world today than there was fifty years ago, but until someone recognized the law by which it could be made of service, we received no benefit; now that the law is understood, practically the whole world is lit by it. Anyone who gains an understanding of the mental laws will come into the possession of an ability to secure results only dreamed of, and which has rewards that can hardly be expressed in words. The Master Key gives you the recognition of opportunity; it strengthens the will and reasoning powers, and teaches the cultivation and best uses of imagination, desire, and the emotions. It gives you initiative, purpose, wisdom of choice, intelligent sympathy and a complete enjoyment of life on a higher plane. The Master Key teaches the use of Mind Power, true Mind Power, it has nothing to do with Hypnotism or Magic The Master Key cultivates and develops the understanding which will enable you to control the body and thereby your health. It improves and strengthens the Memory. Mental Power is creative power, it gives you the ability to create for yourself; it does not mean the ability to take something away from some one else. Nature never does things that way. Nature makes two blades of grass grow where one grew before, and Mind Power enables you to do the same thing. The Master Key develops insight and increased independence, it gives you the ability and disposition to be helpful, it destroys distrust, depression, fear, melancholia, and every form of lack limitation and weakness, including pain and disease; it awakens buried talents, supplies initiative, force, energy, vitality - it awakens an appreciation of the beautiful in Art, Literature and Science. It has changed the lives of thousands of men and women, by substituting definite principles for uncertain and hazy methods " and principles for the foundation upon which every system of efficiency rests. American born Napoleon Hill is considered to have influenced more people into success than any other person in history. He has been perhaps the most influential man in the area of personal success technique development, primarily through his classic book Think and Grow Rich which has helped million of the people and has been important in the life of many successful people. In the letter Hill stated, "My present success and the success which has followed my work as President of the Napoleon Hill Institute is due largely to the principles laid down in The Master Key System. The laws of attraction concentration and harmonious thinking and action. The first copy of Think and Grow rich was sold in Incredibly in , some 65 years after it was published, Think and Grow Rich was tenth in the Business Week bestsellers Napoleon Hills work stands as a monument to individual achievement and is the cornerstone of modern motivation. His book, Think and Grow Rich, is the all time best seller in the field and his acknowledgement to Charles Haanel is one of the strongest recommendations possible of the power of The Master Key System.
