

Chapter 1 : Bernice Chardiet: used books, rare books and new books @ www.nxgvision.com

*I Help Daddy (Lift-the-flap Books) [Bernice Chardiet] on www.nxgvision.com FREE shipping on qualifying offers. A little girl shows all the different ways she helps her father around the house and the yard throughout the day.*

I just hate spiders, even workaholic ones. To view it, click here. Overall, the book is an educational resource that encourages perseverance and hard work. Interestingly, the most developed character is an inanimate object: Unfortunately, all other characters were fairly flat. They were only briefly introduced and never heard from again. I often wonder what happened to the Cow I think Overall, the book is an educational resource that encourages perseverance and hard work. I think of her always, every time I come across a Chick-fil-A board or Shamrock Farms strawberry milk. I also feel like some characters were given unfair stereotypes. Cats are known to be excellent hunters. Here, they are portrayed solely as lazy nappers. Dogs say more than just "woof". In many regions they "ruff ruff" or "bark bark" or even on fancy occasions "bow wow". Will still purchase sequel if written. Read it to them today and they loved it! The textured webs are fun to watch. This is a story about several things. A spider who is so busy building her web that she has no time to talk to anyone. Its a story about hard work paying off, and eventually getting a lovely rest at the end of a long day. It teaches young children animal sounds, as well as animal behaviors. We learn that spiders build webs to catch flies in among other things. Different farm animals come along and invite her to go and do different things with them, but the spider does not answer, as she is too busy spinning her web. She is too busy spinning her web. This book gives the children the opportunity to learn about different animals, the sounds they make and the activities they do. I like the idea of the fly in every picture; a hidden message by the author showing that the web is to catch the fly. The book also opens up opportunities for children to work with in the classroom; for example, the concept of hard work and how it pays off, and the process of spinning a web. You can not only read it, but you can also feel it by touching the web. This simple story conveys lots of important information. It is a perfect introduction to learning about different kinds of animals and an opportunity to copy the sounds they make. The story begins one early morning when the spider starts to spin her web. Various animals such as the pig, the horse, the cat or the cow try to interrupt and invite her to join their typical activities, but she does not answer, spinning the web without any break. After such a busy day spider falls asleep. Astonishing illustrations and lots of repetitions make this book a perfect read for EYFS. Moreover, it can be used as a starting point for different cross-curricular activities and acted out. Partly because I love Eric Carle's work, but the fact that you can feel the book is very neat. This is a good book for younger children because of the repetitive text of the animals asking questions and the spider not responding. The web is raised making this a great book for busy hands or the visually impaired. Annabel asserts the book has no real point. While all the other animals want to goof off napping cat, mud-rolling pig, rock-jumping goat the spider is the only community member who works steadily to build something -- a web, which in trapping flies better society for all. Annabel says catching one fly is not all that and we agree to disagree. The text is quite accessible for younger readers and introduces students to many different animals who try to tempt the spider away from her work.

Chapter 2 : The Very Busy Spider: A Lift-the-Flap Book - Book Kindle

Daddy and Me (Karen Katz Lift-the-Flap Books) by Karen Katz (Author, Illustrator) Daddy is making a special project. Help him find the tools he needs by looking under the oversized flaps.

I mean why not just have another page? They invite your child to make discoveries. When they are great they can do even more! Fun Kids Books with Flaps, Folds, and Die-cut Pages Click on the book image for more info from Amazon This classic book was our first very positive experience with flaps. Your child lifts the flap or opens the container to discover the animal inside. Now that they know the story my kids enjoy finishing the sentence on each page. This next one I shared before in this post. Each page shows a spill, rip, or other accident transforming into something beautiful. I find it to be a lesson in creativity AND in life itself! Check out the video trailer! Here is another more recent discovery. These cats want to play with you! They might tire you out. Check out the video trailer! This one we discovered on vacation and I like it for two reasons! Its educational use of flaps and because it is about birds! A little girl goes bird watching with her grandfather. Many birds are identified and described. Flaps are a natural fit for bird watching. The grandfather spots a bird and you help the little girl locate it by lifting the flap! I love Petr Horacek books! This recent one uses die-cut pages just here and there to enhance the telling of this clever love story. Two worms become knotted together so must learn to get along out of necessity. What happens when they are suddenly separated? My daughter is obsessed with this book! Each page has a different die-cut shape cut out of it and when these pages are layered together they create different animals! The magic of this book is its simplicity and how the layers create almost step-by-step instructions. Another great one that uses die-cut shapes is Hands: Growing up to Be an Artist. Here is a fun new one about ups and downs. It uses just 3 flaps to enhance this fun story about comparisons and elevation. Have you seen it? Here is the animated trailer! Want more? Do you have a favorite book with flaps or die-cut pages I missed?

Chapter 3 : - When Daddy Travels (Lift the Flap Story) by Harriet Ziefert

Note: Citations are based on reference standards. However, formatting rules can vary widely between applications and fields of interest or study. The specific requirements or preferences of your reviewing publisher, classroom teacher, institution or organization should be applied.

Chapter 4 : I Help Daddy (Lift-the-flap Books): Bernice Chardiet: www.nxgvision.com: Books

Excellent lift-the-flap kids book. I gave lots of these books to my nephew's kids as gifts. My nephew's wife is VERY picky as to what she likes - I think she wasn't sure what she thought of these books at first, but her son chooses these books to be read time and time again.

Chapter 5 : Bernice Chardiet - Books, Biography, Contact Information

This feature is not available right now. Please try again later.

Chapter 6 : Daddy and Me (A Lift-The-Flap Book) by Karen Katz

Find daddy from a vast selection of Children & Young Adults. Get great deals on eBay! I Help Daddy (Lift-the-flap Books) by Chardiet, Bernice See more like this.

Chapter 7 : Daddy and Me [Karen Katz Lift-the-Flap Books] | eBay

Perhaps one of the best lift-the-flap books by Katz. Our daughter loves to turn the pages, lift the flaps, and point at and poke at the illustrations. This particular story is very well-written.

Chapter 8 : Book List: Books about Dads | My Little Bookcase

The Very Busy Spider: A Lift-the-Flap Book Now one of Eric Carle's most popular books is a lift-the-flap book! The horse wants to go for a ride, the cow wants to eat some grass, and the sheep wants to run in the meadowâ€”but where is the very busy spider?

Chapter 9 : Best "Lift the Flap" Books | Doodles and Jots

Help Butterfly find her surprise in this adorable lift-the-flap book! Rain, rain, go away! Butterfly wants a sunny day! Waitâ€”Mommy and Daddy have a surprise.