

Chapter 1 : ACA (ICAEW) Syllabus | Kaplan Financial

The format of the Financial Management exam is now on computer, which means that it is no longer available as a paper-based exam. To help you prepare for this exam, in addition to the resources on this page, view the five steps to computer-based exam success.

PQ magazine is for part qualified accountants. Integrate the information in the question into your procedures. The examiner wants to see your reasoning for selecting that treatment. Make your best attempt and move on rather than aiming for perfect numbers. Your report must be balanced across the three requirements. Add depth to your ethics answers using the following methods: Audit report answers should be structured around the grid references: Your open book contains vital information especially for questions regarding auditor and management responsibilities. Demonstrate your knowledge by using correct terminology and applying the theory to the scenario. Revise by watching business news and observing business practices around you, applying the theories in the syllabus. Those numbers are in the question for a reason. All numbers should be clearly labelled. Get the marker on your side. Make an assumption or make up a number and keep going. Everything you put into your calculator must also be written down clearly. These are not technical marks but should be based on your analysis. For many marginal students this is the difference between a pass and a fail. Without workings, the markers will not be able to understand your logic to your approach and award marks. Students often trip up due to poor breadth of knowledge, not necessarily due to their ability. Leave space to finish a question later in the exam, and make sure you understand a requirement before you start a question. Examiners set question requirements in a particular order for a reason. Part i should be attended before ii and so on. Debit for increase in expenses, assets and drawings. Credit for increases in liabilities, income and capital. Assets, liabilities, income, capital and expenses. Get comfortable with the tax tables, as the majority of information needed is included within them. The best way to get used to these oddly specific rules is practise, practise, practise. You will see them come up again and again in the exam.
