The First Class that led her to think lethal force had to be used regularly in the fight for mutant rights. For instance, in one movie Xavier and Magneto are said to have built Cerebro together but then Beast is shown putting it together in another film. The First Class, he begins by teaching a wholly different group. The Last Stand there is a flashback to with them looking much older. These are only three of the many examples of this problem. Producers have never seemed to care about keeping things straight. Apocalypse advertising Despite how kind-hearted Nightcrawler has always been, when he invaded the White House at the start of X2 it was truly fantastic. For that reason, when it came out that he would be taking part in a cage fight in X-Men: Apocalypse it was quite exciting. Was the tiny cage he was transported in electrified too? Do his captors have an electrified bathroom? First Class proved that the series still had some mojo. However, that in no way means the movie did everything right. On top of that, the way the movie handled Darwin was also frustrating. Possessing the power of reactive evolution, he has the ability to survive virtually any attack since his body is supposed to adapt to them. Despite that, he quickly passes away the first time a villain goes after him. A great example of this is the fact that the Juggernaut seen in Deadpool 2 is completely different than the one seen in X2: In the sequel, audiences were introduced to the horrors of The Essex House for Mutant Rehabilitation. With that in mind, they should have shut it down long ago, especially considering it appears to be situated relatively close to the mansion and Xavier easily should have sensed what was going on. Wolverine One of several mutants that are introduced as teammates of the main character in X-Men Origins: Wolverine, it quickly becomes obvious that Agent Zero is to be feared. A member of the Weapon X program whose mutant powers make him an expert in tracking and a near perfect marksman among other abilities, if Zero has someone in his sights, their fate is practically sealed. Sent to take Wolverine out, Agent Zero leads several soldiers, some of whom are shown to be expert helicopter pilots, in an attack. Eventually leaping into one of the choppers, he takes over flying duties and has one of his underlings wield the weapons. Serving that purpose in the debut X-Men film, Rogue discovers the new surroundings the audience learns alongside her. Unlike in the comics, unless she has touched a powerful mutant recently her only offensive ability is absorbing the energy of her foes and she is afraid to do that. As such, in most bouts, she would only serve as another person for her teammates to protect. As a result, when he fights the X-Men near the end of the film, he easily should have been able to take each of them out permanently. As such, she exits the ship and uses her telepathy to both hold the water at bay and raise the jet into the air so it can take off. Once her teammates are safe the water comes rushing in and everyone presumes she has met her end. Though a powerful moment, the truth is that it was not necessary in the least. After all, maybe she could have done all of that from inside the Blackbird. Of course, it could be argued that she needed to see what she was doing, but then why not save everyone from the top of the Blackbird? The problem is that, with even the slightest bit of reflection on how that would play out, it becomes plainly obvious that the whole thing is totally unworkable. The film reveals that unless Xavier is heavily sedated he has seizures that have an awful effect on everyone around him, Logan included. The Last Stand One of the most impressive displays of mutant power shown in these films, Magneto moving the Golden Gate Bridge shows just how dangerous he is. Using it to transport a small army of mutants so they can attack a facility where the mutant cure is produced, he lands it and his minions go on the offense. However, keep in mind, Magneto is perfectly willing to use lethal force against his foes and the battle over the so-called cure would be so important to him that he would do just about anything. As such, the much more effective thing from his point of view would be to fly the bridge a little bit farther and drop it on the facility. After all, that certainly would destroy all of the work being done inside and pretty much everyone involved in it. Let us know in the comments!

Chapter 2 : Ignoring the Apocalypse by David Howard Davis - Praeger - ABC-CLIO

Apocalypse is an erudite and accessible tale of how competing views of science, statistics, and strategic advantage have driven, and continue to drive, environmental debates." Rosemary O'Leary "David Davis has written a fascinating book on an important topic.

Dean Winchester had never been particularly good with feelings. Sometimes he lay in bed, listening to the penetrating silence, and, although he never felt safe, he felt at home. How freaking insane was that? How freaking insane was he? There was no way in hell or heaven he snorted that Dean Winchester could fall in love. Especially not with a self-righteous prick of an angel, who seemed to be causing more damage than good. Thus, he did as a Winchester did, and ignored it. He evaded the incorrigible thoughts, he jumped over the odd desire, and he ducked behind his pride, often avoiding his nonexistent affections, by yelling at Castiel to get off his ass, and do something. Which, frankly, was a little damn rude, considering that the angel was their only saving grace, at the moment. Not that he cared. Sure, they were friends. Sure, Dean often wondered if Cas would return to heaven after the apocalypse was all tied up if the apocalypse was all tied up, his, rather annoying, brain reminded him. Not that he wanted to have sex with Cas, it was just an example. A really bad one. Dean tilted his head. There were so many rules he was breaking, and all for somebody he was desperately trying not to fall for. So did losing consciousness, and almost becoming prey to a run-of-the-mill vampire. But, no, what sucked worst of all was Castiel, glaring at him like he was the most moronic man alive. Which, in hindsight, he probably was. Either that, or he was seriously reaching. What the creeping hell was wrong with him? I just wish you would stop putting yourself in danger. I made it clear it was for you, Dean. Did it never occur to you, Dean, that I maybe somewhat compromised? He stood up, shakily. You glare too much, and you perpetually frown. Some days, you seem like you want to throw me back in hell. You have consequently flipped everything I have ever known about myself on its axis. The latter seemed inherently surprised, but Dean captured his choked noise and silenced it. It was hungry, but still considerably chaste, and Dean felt like a weight had flown off his shoulders. He smirked, before pulling back. Cas, hair disheveled, trenchcoat precariously falling off his right shoulder, seemed downright gleeful. Your review has been posted.

Chapter 4 : Prophecies of the Messiah

Ignoring the Apocalypse. Why Planning to Prevent Environmental Catastrophe Goes Astray. By David Howard Davis. Praeger Press,

Therefore I poured out My fury on them for the blood they had shed on the land, and for their idols with which they had defiled it. So I scattered them among the nations, and they were dispersed throughout the countries; I judged them according to their ways and their deeds. And I will sanctify set aside My great Name, which has been profaned among the nations, which you have profaned in their midst. I am the LORD. You shall not lie with a male as with a woman. It is an abomination. Passing descendants babies "through the fire". Do a study of Molech and "passing children through the fire" in the Bible and you will find they refer to sacrificing babies for pleasure and convenience. Today we call this baby sacrifice "abortion. Then, an unwanted baby would "pass through the fire" by having the priest doctor place the small baby on the glowing arms in the fire in order to kill, or "offer" this unwanted baby to Molech, the "god" of pleasure convenience is a form of pleasure. Although our methods and technology have changed, the result and the intent are the same - abortion is sacrificing a baby to a god of pleasure and convenience. If you study this abomination and profane activity of abortion - "passing children through the fire" worshipping Molech in the Bible, you will find it not only incites and angers God, but it also deeply affects and grieves Him. Men lying with men as a woman. The Bible is not ambiguous in its message concerning homosexuality. God never judges anybody or calls for capital punishment against anything that is simply "genetic. Homosexuality is not new. Please remember, our God is a forgiving God who will forgive any and all who have sinned against Him. Any sinner, including those who have walked the path of homosexuality or have had an abortion, can be lovingly forgiven and washed clean through the blood of the Lamb. Jesus died for all sinners. And we are all sinners. God hates the sin, but He loves and cares for the sinner. He pleads with all of His lost sheep to stop and repent from doing those things that are wrong, and with tears of joy He will richly forgive and welcome all back with the open arms of a loving Father. The reason it is important to take such a long look at these verses is because this generation is unique in making homosexuality and abortion their issue. In the Bible, God says these activities are wrong. This generation says God is wrong. So, in order to approve of or accept these things, one must deny God. The prophets warned we would see a generation rise who would do just this. Incredibly, special rights are being proposed which would lift these groups above the average citizen. When we look at those who advocate and promote these activities, we even find many who call themselves Jewish and Christian at the forefront, angrily accusing anyone who believes these activities are wrong of being filled with "hate" or "intolerance. Look at the spreading AIDS epidemic. AIDS is the first politically protected contagious and fatal disease in the history of this nation. Who is protecting the civil rights and the safety of the uninfected? Although our heart goes out to those who are sick, and they must be cared for, we must also protect the uninfected. Laws which were passed in earlier generations to protect against deadly and infectious diseases are being ignored. In this generation we find church leaders allowing practicing homosexuals to be ordained as shepherds over their flocks, and powerful Jewish leaders loudly promoting abortion. As we just read in Ezekiel, God is aware and conscious of these things. Our God is a forgiving God, but we sadly find He will turn His back on a nation and a people who have turned their backs on Him. The Bible warns those who simply "approve" of those who do such things will be held as accountable as those who do these things. For even their women exchanged the natural use for what is against nature lesbianism. Likewise also the men, leaving the natural use of the woman, burning in their lust for one another, men with men committing what is shameful homosexuality. Many other offenses are listed in addition to those listed here. As with any sin, there are people caught up in these activities who are struggling in their effort to stop and to change. We, as Christians, are to love them and help them in any way we can. We are all sinners. The heart of Jesus is filled with love for little children. Therefore whoever humbles himself as this little child is the greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven. Whoever receives one little child like this in My Name receives Me. But whoever causes one of these little ones who believe in Me to sin, it would be better for him if a millstone were hung around his neck, and he were drowned in the depth of the sea. Woe to the world because of offenses! For offenses must come, but woe to that man or woman by whom the offense comes!
