

Chapter 1 : Missouri Bound Part Four: The Tschudi/Judy Family | Donna Croy Wright Writing Family History

A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man Part 5, Section 1 (pg.) After the vision of the bird girl, we find Stephen right back in the greasy of life again, drinking watery tea and eating crusts of fried bread with his mother and siblings before his day starts at the university.

I detailed my attempt to determine the parentage of Thomas H. The results were inconclusive. His parentage remains a brick-wall. I provided evidence of the movement of son of Isaac Ely, Sr. Now, what about the Judy family? Four men with the Tschudi name came to Philadelphia between and They all came from the Canton of Basel in Switzerland and many given names were the same. Afterward, Martin and Anna had three more known children: Winepark Weinbert , David, and Samuel. While numerous records for a Martin Tschudi exist, there is no clear evidence of where the family resided before in Bourbon County, Kentucky. By then Martin Jr. Some family historians indicate the father of Martin Sr. I mention all this speculation because it is floating out there as fact, so I wanted the reader to be aware of it. If anyone has validating information I would love to see it! She married Isaac Ely, in , and by , they had moved to Missouri. It ranks as the second highest-grossing Walt Disney Animation Studios film. Contents [show] Synopsis The modern mammal metropolis of Zootopia is a city like no other. Determined to prove herself, she jumps at the opportunity to crack a case, even if it means partnering with a fast-talking, scam-artist fox, Nick Wilde , to solve the mystery. One day, Judy Hopps, a bunny rabbit from rural Bunnyburrow, fulfills her dream of joining the Zootopia Police Department as the first rabbit officer, however, she is regularly assigned parking duty by Chief Bogo. During one of her shifts, she is manipulated by Nick Wilde , a con artist fox. Otterton , an otter, arrives pleading help on locating her missing husband, one of the many recently missing predators. With Nick as a key witness of Mr. Big , an arctic shrew crime boss in Tundratown. Big spares their lives after learning that Judy had rescued his daughter earlier, and informs the pair that Mr. Otterton is his florist and had been picked up by his chauffeur Manchas, a black jaguar, to bring him to Mr. Big to talk about something important. However, en-route, Otterton suddenly "went savage" - reverted to a feral state - and attacked Manchas before running off. Judy and Nick locate Manchas at his home in the Rainforest District for questioning. Manchas describes the attack on him and mentions that Otterton had been yelling about " night howlers ". However, before he can reveal anything else, Manchas suddenly turns savage himself and chases the pair, but they manage to escape. Judy calls the ZPD for help, but when Bogo and his reinforcements arrive, Manchas is nowhere to be found. As the pair leave the Rainforest District, Nick opens up to Judy, revealing that he was bullied by prey animals as a cub for being a fox and subsequently became a con artist, resolving to live out the "sly fox" stereotype, as no one saw a fox as anything else. They then discover that Manchas was captured by wolves, which Judy assumes is what Otterton had meant by "night howlers". Judy and Nick locate Cliffside Asylum, where the wolves have detained the missing predators including Mr. Otterton , all of which have gone savage, and eavesdrop on Mayor Lionheart consulting with a doctor about their condition, revealing that he is keeping the savage predators hidden from both the public and the ZPD, and that the cause their strange behavior is unknown. The pair escape, inform Bogo and the police swarm the area, arresting Lionheart and those involved. Bellwether subsequently becomes the new mayor. Having developed a friendship with Nick throughout the case, Judy requests that he joins the ZPD and become her partner, which Nick happily considers. When fear and discrimination against predators spreads across Zootopia, a guilt-ridden Judy resigns. During this time, Gazelle holds a peaceful protest and publicly asks for the harmonious Zootopia she loves to be restored. Two to three months later, [2] Judy has returned to Bunnyburrow and rejoined the family business as a carrot farmer. However, she later learns from her parents and reformed childhood bully, fox Gideon Grey , that "night howlers" are toxic flowers that have severe psychotropic effects on mammals. Realizing that the flowers are what Otterton was referring to and that they must be the cause of the outbreaks, Judy returns to Zootopia, where she reconciles with Nick. They then locate Weaselton, who explains that he has been collecting night howlers for a ram named Doug Ramses , who owns a lab hidden in the subway tunnels. The pair finds the lab and discovers Doug creating a night howler serum which he has been exposing to predators via paintball-like pellets fired by an air-powered sniper gun. Just short of the ZPD, the pair encounters Bellwether who insists she takes the evidence. Realizing she is the mastermind of the conspiracy, Judy and Nick try to flee but are knocked into a pit by her henchrams. Bellwether shoots a serum pellet from the evidence case at Nick and frames a call for help to the ZPD. Later, Judy is reinstated into the ZPD. An antidote is discovered for the effects of the night howlers and all the infected predators, including Mr. Jenny Slate as Bellwether , a diminutive female sheep who is the assistant mayor of Zootopia, and is later revealed to be the mastermind behind the savage attacks. Simmons as Mayor Lionheart , a lion who is the noble, but pompous Mayor of Zootopia. Alan Tudyk as Duke Weaselton , a small-time weasel crook. Shakira as Gazelle , a gazelle who is a popular pop star. Maurice LaMarche as Mr. Big , an arctic shrew crime boss. Phil Johnston as Gideon Grey , a red fox from Bunnyburrow who used to bully the young rabbits and sheep when he was young. As an adult, he has made amends with those he picked on and become a much-respected baker. Persi as Flash , a three-toed sloth; Raymond also voices Officer Higgins, a hippo. Katie Lowes as Dr. Why is this happening?

"There was a large central space filled with trees and plants, above them a blue sky. (Not really a blue sky, only the curved ceiling of the bubble-dome, with a clever projection device that simulated dawn, sunlight, evening, night.

A box of used clothing sits at the table. The Dedalus family is still poor, wearing donated goods now. Focusing on the light and the smell of the wet leaves, he is gradually able to calm himself. Davin refused, but the thought of this woman calling a stranger to bed makes Stephen think about the passions of his people--the poor of Ireland. Stephen is interrupted by a girl trying to sell him flowers--he has to refuse, for he has no money. He arrives early to the lecture hall for his next class, and finds the dean crouched before the fireplace, trying to light a fire. The dean is also an Englishman, and because he is not Irish he gets Stephen thinking about something that seems to trouble him a lot these days--how the English language is for the Irish people a borrowed language. The object that the dean calls a funnel is a tundish to Stephen. I have not made or accepted its words. My voice holds them at bay. My soul frets in the shadow of his language. Language 13 The two part amicably enough and in class Stephen shows himself to be a pretty distracted student, though no more so than most of those in the classroom. In the hall after class, some of the students are working a table to get signatures for a petition for universal peace. At this table begins a spirited, though sometimes difficult-to-follow discussion between the schoolboys that takes up much of this section. The boys throw around Latin phrases and literary references and the conversation is in turns joking and argumentative, as different students drift in and out. There is a lot of discussion about Ireland and the nationalist issue. Among the boys who talk are Temple , Davin, Cranly and Lynch. Stephen and Lynch go off for a walk, and Stephen starts to explain his aesthetic theories. Laid out in detail, the theories are heavily based on Thomas Aquinas. Some of the main points include the belief that true art does not excite a physical reaction from its audience it is "static" rather than "kinetic". He observes that for something to be beautiful it must have the qualities of "wholeness, harmony and radiance" pg. The Artist 10 A slight rain begins to fall, and Lynch and Stephen head to the library steps, where more students are talking. Stephen drifts out of the conversation, however, when a girl walks by and pulls his attention with her.
