Trace the following latitudes around the globe: Shine a flashlight, which represents the sun, directly at the equator. Slowly spin the globe on its axis. Which parts of the earth receive direct sunlight places between the Tropic of Cancer and the Tropic of Capricorn. These places have the warmest climates. Which parts of the earth receive only slant rays of the sun places north of the Arctic Circle or south of the Antarctic Circle. These places have the coldest climates 6. Ask them what shape would be the easiest to govern and to unify, all else being equal. A circle has the shortest boundary to defend and the shortest distance to places at the farthest perimeter. Although there are no countries that are perfect circles, have students find examples of countries that come close. Then ask them to find examples of countries that are in pieces, or fragmented these countries are usually made up of islands. Discuss the problems such countries might face in trying to unify their people. Note places where the mountain ranges block rain-bearing winds. They can detect such places by the pattern of the rain on the ocean side of the mountains and dry land on the landward side. Throughout the month, present students with an animal sticker as a reward for good behavior or work. Have the student place the animal on its home continent using the pictures in the Exploring Our World Atlas as their guide. Have them prepare a one-minute TV commercial that will convince the company to hire you. Include as much information about an atlas and its benefits as possible. The features it describes were important parts of the world-view of ancient Greeks. Using their Historical Atlas of the World, have students match the places mentioned in the poem with the modern features.
