Licensor and Licensee acknowledge and agree that the Old Agreement shall automatically terminate as of the Commencement Date of this New Agreement. Notwithstanding the foregoing, any and all obligations of Licensee accruing under the Old Agreement prior its termination and the obligations of the parties that expressly survive the Old Agreement shall survive such termination, including any amounts that were due and payable by Licensee thereunder prior to such termination. Subject to compliance with all laws, Licensee may at its own cost and expense, use the portion of the Premises shown on Exhibit A to install, operate, maintain, repair, replace, protect and secure the Facilities, as set forth herein, or as subject to the written approval of Licensor. Upon the termination of the License, the Facilities shall be removed from the Premises by the Licensee no later than ninety 90 days after the date of the termination of the License. Subject to the foregoing, Licensee shall have twenty-four 24 hour a day, seven 7 day a week access to the Premises and the Facilities for maintenance, unscheduled repairs and other emergencies. Licensee will be responsible for all obligations of compliance with any and all environmental laws, including any regulations, guidelines, standards or policies of any governmental authorities regulating or imposing standards of liability or standards of conduct with regard to any environmental conditions or concerns as may now or hereafter be in effect with respect to the Facilities being installed on the Premises by the Licensee or any sub-licensee. Licensee shall cure, remedy and be responsible to cure or remedy any environmental condition which is created on the Premises by Licensee. Licensor represents that it has no knowledge of any substance, chemical, waste or Hazardous Material in the Premises that is identified as hazardous, toxic or dangerous in any applicable federal, state of 4 Mason District Park; local law or regulation. Additionally, Licensor agrees that it will not use, generate, store or dispose of any Hazardous Material on, under, about or within the Premises in violation of any law or regulation. This paragraph shall survive the termination of this New Agreement. Promptly upon completion of the forgoing modifications or maintenance, Licensee shall, at its own cost and expense, repair any damage to the Parcel resulting from such construction, installation or maintenance. Notwithstanding the foregoing, Licensee shall give written notice to Licensor to terminate this License within thirty 30 days after the occurrence of any of the foregoing described events which is the basis of termination. The License hereby granted shall automatically renew for each Renewal Term unless, at least sixty 60 days prior to expiration of the then existing period, Licensor or Licensee provides written notification to the other party of its intention not to permit the License to renew. If either party provides the other party with such notice, the option s remaining shall be rendered null and void and the License shall terminate at the end of the then current period. Each Renewal Term shall commence upon the expiration of the immediately preceding Term or applicable Renewal Term. All references in this Agreement to the Term hereof shall include, where appropriate, all Renewal Terms so effected. If at the time of assessing any late fee, the applicable interest rate exceeds that which Licensor may lawfully assess, the interest rate for that late fee shall be the maximum that the Licensor may lawfully assess. Notwithstanding the previous sentence, effective September 1, , the amount of annual license fees due shall be no less than the amounts set forth in Paragraph 4 a through 4 d above. This Security Deposit shall be held in a non-interest bearing account by the Licensor and shall be returned to Licensee at the termination of the License, provided the Licensee has performed all obligations under this New Agreement through the date of termination. In the event that Licensee does not remove all of the Facilities from the Premises as set forth in Paragraph 2 c of this New Agreement, Licensor may apply all or any portion of the Security Deposit to the costs incurred by Licensor in removing the Facilities. Sub-Licenses and Modification of the Premises. Licensor has previously approved under the Old Agreement all existing plans, specifications, drawings, renderings, permits, applications and descriptions provided in Exhibit B and no additional approval of same is necessary. Licensee shall have full responsibility and shall pay all costs for plan preparation and procurement of all necessary permits and other approvals from the appropriate governmental agencies. Except as amended herein, all of the terms, covenants and conditions of the Agreement shall be and remain in full force and effect. Licensee agrees that no modification to the Facilities will be performed until Licensor provides a signed Consent to Equipment Modifications letter. Licensee shall be obligated to respond to the problem of interference within four 4 hours of receipt of notification from the Licensor and if the interference is not corrected within one 1 day of receipt of notification, the Licensee shall immediately turn off the Facilities causing such interference until the Facilities can be repaired or replaced. In the event the Facilities cause such interference, Licensee agrees it will take all steps necessary to correct and eliminate the interference consistent with appropriate government rules and regulations upon receipt of written notification of the interference. Licensee shall be obligated to respond to the problem of interference within forty-eight 48 hours of receipt of written notice from Licensor, and if the interference is not corrected within five 5 days of receipt of written notification or such time as may reasonably be required with exercise of the due diligence provided such repairs are begun within said five 5 days , the Facilities causing such interference shall be immediately removed from the Premises. Condition of the Premises. Maintenance and Repairs of Facilities. Licensee shall be responsible for all maintenance and repair of the Facilities and any appurtenant equipment or facilities of Licensee during the term of this New Agreement. Licensee shall promptly and diligently respond to any request by Licensor for any such maintenance or repair. If Licensee selfinsures, Licensee shall provide Licensor on each anniversary of the Commencement Date a certified financial statement of Licensee prepared by an independent accounting firm, and upon execution of this New Agreement shall provide a financial statement guaranteeing equivalent coverage through self-€”insurance satisfactory to Licensor. Licensee shall provide Licensor an original certificate evidencing such insurance or self-insurance upon i the Commencement Date of the term of this New Agreement, ii each anniversary of the policy renewals, iii a change in coverage that affects the requirements of this New Agreement, and iv at any other time during the term of this New Agreement upon the request of the Licensor. In the event of damage to or destruction of the Facilities, neither Licensee nor Licensor shall have any obligation to restore, replace or rebuild the Facilities for any reason. If the Premises or Facilities are destroyed or damaged and rendered unsuitable for normal use, Licensee may terminate this New Agreement upon providing thirty 30 days written notice to Licensor. In such event, all rights and obligations of the parties shall cease as of the date of the damage or destruction, without further liability hereunder. Licensee shall promptly pay for all work, labor, services or material supplied by or on behalf of Licensee at the Premises or in connection with the Facilities. Upon the completion of the construction of the Facilities or upon the completion of any approved modifications thereto, Licensee shall obtain and provide to Licensor lien waivers from all contractors and subcontractors which provided services or materials in connection with the construction or modification of the Facilities. Licensee shall, at is expense, throughout the term of this New Agreement, obtain all building permits and other governmental or quasi-governmental licenses, permits, consents and approvals required for the construction, installation, operation and use of the Facilities in compliance with all applicable laws, rules, orders, ordinances and requirements, including but not limited to, all laws, rules, orders, ordinances and requirements which relate to the Federal Aviation Administration, Federal Communications Commission, health, safety, environment or land use. and shall repair any damage to the Premises and associated public utility areas caused by the installation, operation or removal of the Facilities. The license fee for such holding over shall remain in effect until Licensee removes the Facilities. Acceptance of the license fees upon termination shall not be a waiver by Licensor of any of its other remedies at law or in equity. Paragraphs 6, 11, 13 and 16 of this New Agreement shall survive termination of this New Agreement. Notwithstanding any other terms or conditions set forth in this New Agreement, Licensor reserves the right to terminate this New Agreement if Licensee fails to comply with the requirements for Collocator use of the Premises or Facilities. Failure by Licensee to provide this information within the fifteen 15 day response period shall be considered an Event of Default. Neither the publisher nor the authors or the editors give a warranty, express or implied, with respect to the material contained herein or for any errors or omissions that may have been made. During its years of colonial rule from to , the colonial leadership combined with a Chinese effort from the administrative to grass-roots levels made Hong Kong unique. In addition to its values and lifestyle, this city-state has its own social, political, and economic systems. The urban architecture seen in the city today was formulated mainly during the s and fermented to maturity. Since , when China opened its doors, Hong Kong has served as an example of economic success, and its experiences have directly contributed to the success of mainland China. Since then, it has contributed its wealth of experience to other parts of China. In the s and s, Hong Kong was busy relocating refugees and developing local industry. The tiny island took its own path apart from UK and China. The independence and uniqueness of its built environment are worth exploring. Although the port city was shaped in the nineteenth century, the buildings constructed before the war were mostly demolished when the economy took off in the s. The buildings constructed after the war mostly followed modernist principles and resonated with the modern architectural movement in the Western world during the s. More than half of the post-war buildings have been or are being replaced by new skyscrapers. Some buildings in the central business district stood for less than 30 years before they were replaced by a new generation of skyscrapers. This modern heritage deserves further exploration. My study of Hong Kong architecture is further motivated by the following questions. I have written and published several books, chapters, and papers about contemporary Chinese mainland architecture including a few about Hong Kong architecture for decades, and hope to extend my study to this corner of the South China Sea to compare developments in mainland China and Hong Kong. By answering these questions, I hope to establish a framework of Hong Kong architecture from to now, contribute to the architectural history of this vibrant city and enrich the discourse of city-state development. On the practical side, a study of Hong Kong architecture would reveal its design and development and provide a reference for architects, developers, government, scholars and members of the public. Hong Kong architecture involves the development, design and management of a high-density environment, and its study should be useful and meaningful for other cities facing similar problems. Due to space limitations, only the most representative works are discussed. Preface vii British Colony and Hong Kong History British overseas colonies reached their heyday in the nineteenth century. Building design was partly mentioned. Several books have described the history of Hong Kong in different ways. For example, Akers-Jones focuses more on the human rather than administrative aspects, but provides many insights into the recent history of Hong Kong. Welsh evokes the history of Hong Kong and the characters of those who shaped it, from its buccaneering origins to its post-war growth. Ching and Faure analyze the social formation of Hong Kong, the interaction between its government and society, the internal and external factors underlying its social evolution, and the emergence of its culture and identity. Li reveals the government decision process in the last colonial administration period through reading the released archives in London. Blyth and Wotherspoon examine the oral histories of more than 30 people. Lui analyzes the social factors experienced during the s. The last two books provide a voice from grass-root citizens, which are rarely heard in formal historic accounts. No matter how strict the law was enacted, people have their own innovative ways of resistance, resilience, and survival. The government has also recorded population, housing, and other changing statistics in its annual reports and other documents. Sit compiled a factual panorama of the city. Living in and speculation of real estate have been the driving force of urban construction and building design in Hong Kong. Bristow records the history and progression of land policy implementation from the viewpoint of land-use planning. In another book, Bristow covers the historical and conceptual origins of new towns and satellite towns worldwide and the Hong Kong cases, in addition to development procedures and controls, design aspects and problems, and the role of government and the private sector in catering to the public need. More critical review of public housing comes from Castells et al. Nissim explains both the historical development and current practice of land administration. The Hong Kong government has also published urban study materials that consider the city and its statutory system. For example, the government manual entitled Hong Kong Planning Standards and Guidelines provides criteria for determining the scale, location and site requirements of various land uses and facilities. Hong Kong architecture Most of the books and articles about Hong Kong architecture have been published in the Chinese language. The book is intended for consumption by the general public at the expense of academic depth. Two by-product books from the HKIA investigation, including Loving Architecture comprising dialogues with 15 veteran architects and Jianwen zhuji a biography of old architects were published in , and serve as vital records of famous architects between the s and s. Gu records the endeavor of Chinese architects and clients to construct the Chung Chi College buildings at the Chinese University of Hong Kong in the s and s. These books delineate a line of development from the post-World War II period to Other Chinese books have been written by cultural commentators and published by non-government organizations Woo ; Fang , and express personal ideas and observations. Some English books have focused on Hong Kong architecture. Their book provides information about milestone building projects from the s to s. Cities Without Ground focuses on this interest in the academic and professional worlds. Books by Chung and Lampugnani et al. Both books focus on prominent building cases completed before The books Professional Practice for Architects and Building Design and Development in Hong Kong cover a wide range of topics related to building design and property development practices in Hong Kong. The government departments publish materials about their work, such as books about public housing Yeung and Wong ; Leung , and reports related to subways Tang et al. Journals in China and abroad occasionally publish design works or articles about Hong Kong. They record ample factual material and timely information. However, quality writing about post-war Hong Kong architecture is rarely published. Although professionals know about many buildings and events, they have not yet captured them in writing. In view of this gap, I published a Chinese book entitled Contextualizing Modernity: Hong Kong Architecture in the summer of It was warmly welcomed by readers in Hong Kong, Taiwan, and mainland China. From Colonial to Global My observations of Hong Kong architecture in this book are set against the background of Greater China and world architecture. I have read most of the aforementioned materials and immersed myself in the life of Hong Kong over the past 20 years, following the construction of key buildings and participating in design projects and social events. My view of Hong Kong architecture was gradually formed during a process of close examination, experience, and contemplation. Most books on architecture highlight built works with attractive and tasteful pictures. Initially, I intended to focus on building design and formal evolution in this book. Some buildings deserve description and broadcasting. Some buildings are generic, and only serve the operation of the busy capitalist urban machine and provide usable space to owners, end users and speculators. These buildings lack prominent qualities and glamor. That is the meaning of Hong Kong architecture and also the departure point of this book. The text and illustrations provided in this book explain this process. Overseas colonization started from ocean navigation and venturing expansion. In the turbulent years of modern Chinese history, Hong Kong acted as a refuge, a buffer zone, and an enclave between political powers and cruel wars. The cultural seeds of East meets West were planted from its inception as a port city. Preface xi Looking at the 50 years of Hong Kong history from to , an obvious demarcation line can be drawn in Post-war reconstruction turned a new page for Hong Kong after the dark days of Japanese rule. London directed the governance of Hong Kong, which stepped into the free capitalist world. Meanwhile, the Chinese mainland suffered from endless turmoil as a result of internal war and political movements. The Territories received an influx of migrants from the Chinese mainland in the s and s, providing a direct supply of labor for the newly sprouting industry. Hong Kong experienced gains and losses. The transitioning immigrants improved its culture and technology, and money escaped from Shanghai after the communists came to power in 1949. Therefore, Shanghai had the dominant influence over the culture. Settling the refugees, providing shelters for low-income people, regulating the developmental potential and dense conditions, building schools and hospitals—all of these active governmental measurements thoroughly modernized an otherwise dilapidated port city full of squatter areas. As Castells et al. The architectural magazine at the time reflected an enthusiastic pursuance of modernist method Tan and Xue Hong Kong gradually decided its own developmental path. More Chinese elites began participating in political and administrative affairs. The installation of new governor Sir Crawford Murray MacLehose in 1959 marked a new economic era and social life in the territory. See Castells et al. The government was keen to introduce these Chinese elites to the Legislative, Executive and Urban Councils. The private sector, private and public cooperation and semi-public sector emerged. This situation was quite different from that seen in the 1930s and 1940s. A watershed moment occurred in 1977, when the government and private forces led Hong Kong through its colonial years in the last half-century in two stages, respectively. The government channeled economic activities into a more thriving direction. From 1977 to 1997, Hong Kong saw its economy take off and witnessed the prosperity and internationalization of the city. After 28 years behind the iron curtain, China opened its windows and let its people see the affluent lifestyles, advanced technologies, and management practices of Western countries. However, the West was located far away, with the nearest example being economically successful Hong Kong. People and companies on the Chinese mainland were eager to learn from the West, and multinational corporations showed an intention to enter the China market.

NIFA, which funds competitive research grants at U.S. Both agencies have struggled to recruit and retain qualified staff in the Washington region, Perdue said in his statement. That was one of three reasons the administration has given for relocating ERS and NIFA, along with cutting costs and moving researchers closer to farming communities. Letters may be edited for clarity and brevity. Guest columns of up to 1,000 words may be submitted as well. Letters to the editor, The News Herald, W. The result was a surge in voter registration among young people. Younger voters participated more in the election, giving them a slight majority over older voters, but among the younger cohort, Gen X voters who range as old as 52 outstripped Millennials aged 20 to 37 this year. They have seen mayors, county commissioners and state lawmakers stand with them at rallies across the state. And they have seen others make political hay from mocking the Stoneman Douglas students. If they were watching, and many were, these young voters were also being shown how decisions made at all levels of government could impact their own futures. Even before Parkland, young voters were keenly aware of the issues most important to them: Social and racial inequalities. Climate change and environmental decline. The push to create good jobs and strong communities to raise families of their own. These are all issues that resonate up and down the ballot. They spent every penny the moment it came in. This started as soon as they created Social Security. They assumed that FICA payments from young workers would cover the cost of sending checks to older people. After all, at the time, most Americans died before they reached 65. Now, however, people keep living longer.

Hoyt and Jeff Knurek Unscramble these four Jumbles, one letter to each square, to form four ordinary words. Our office offers a large indoor showroom displaying more than seventy-five memorials. Hall Monument has a new manager, his name is Verne Climer. Verne and Shirley Peters are here to assist you and your family with a memorial solution to meet your needs. Hall Monument Company designs and produces memorials, granite and bronze, for all cemeteries in the tri-state area. Through the ages the creation of a memorial has been one of the most important forms of remembrance. Did the person being memorialized have a special love in their life, hobby, maybe a favorite poem? If the memorial is for yourself, is there a certain way you wish to be remembered? Modern technology allows the memorialist through shape, texture, image and inscription to create a personalized and unique monument. Whether it is freeform, entwined hearts, or a special object, your choice in shape and design is limitless. Remember, monument designs can be classic or contemporary. The choice is yours to make. Hall Monument uses techniques such as sandblasting, shape carving, laser and hand etching to achieve the design that best reflects your individual and personal preferences. Hall Monument Company is located at S. I suppose everyone is trying to get in a last bit of camping before summer ends and the kids head back to school. We have a camper. Going camping in that is not exactly roughing it and certainly nothing like what I did as a kid. Those guys got to do all the neat stuff like carving real wood with a real knife instead of a bar of soap with a dull butter knife like Cub Scouts, but more importantly they also got to go on overnight camping trips. I remember shortly after joining Boy Scout Troop 67 we were all introduced to our new scoutmaster. Our new scoutmaster was Jerry Hoban, who looked to be not a whole lot older than we were. He was probably in his early twenties. Jerry started off by getting to know each of us and even gave some of the guys a nickname. As it turned out Jerry loved camping as much as we did, and we went on overnight campouts almost every weekend, plus we got to go to Camp Cedars near Fremont, Nebraska, for two weeks in the summer. I liked summer camp but those weekend trips were my favorite. Maybe it was because they happened all year round and in every kind of weather. I remember one winter overnight camping trip when I mistakenly left my boots outside the tent. I woke up the next morning only to discover those boots were full of snow. I made a mental note to make sure everything was inside the tent before going to sleep. During all our camping trips we were responsible for not only pitching our two-man pup tent but also for cooking our own food and washing our own dishes. It was a great idea or so I thought. That night the campfire was going strong and I placed the can of chili con carne at the edge to heat it up. I went back to my tent to get a spoon and some crackers. As I was digging through my pack I heard an explosion. Wondering what that was I quickly turned around only to see the contents of my can of chili flying through the air along with half the campfire. These days, staying in a campground without Wi Fi is roughing it and I now heat my chili in the microwave. Terry Turner is a Prime writer who can be reached at turnert outlook. The small town of a little over 5, just southwest of Des Moines has a quilt shop, a Ben Franklin Store with a fabric department, and now a quilt museum.
