Our FREE and easy price comparison will help you find cheap college textbooks to buy. With Kno and Inkling, each book or chapter on Inkling is fully purchased and yours forever if you chose. Smart, all of their e. Books are rentals, and are disabled from your account at the end of the rental period. Renting print and e. Smart, nearly all of their rentals are for a 1. Unlike Inkling, but similar to Kno, Course. Smart has a 1. Of course all your books, or chapters of books, need to be. In my opinion this is one of the strongest features Course. Smart has to offer, since even today in the 2. Internet connection is not always available. Lets dive right into using the e. For instance you can write notes that become anchored to the page they are written on. These notes are then accessible through the menu sidebar and are sorted by page number. This is pretty standard but what I found interesting is that you can also see all your notes inany book directly from you bookshelf. This would prove very handy if you take heavy notes to study from later. Highlighting is also a standard feature, although Course. Smart only allows one color, yellow. Anything you highlight is also organized in the sidebar like your notes and you can quickly jump between important sections using this menu. Instead of being saved on your clipboard to be pasted later, when you copy text, Course. Smart pulls it out in a pop up window and converts it to plain text. As someone who prefers bulleted lists for studying instead of long passages, this would be helpful for sifting out only the important text and having it in a workable, editable format right in the e. One feature I was disappointed in was the zoom tool. However, when using Course. Smart on the web, the zoom tool simply toggles between normal view and a slight zoom, probably around 5. A weak zoom tool is certainly not a deal breaker, but it is more than made up for by two features Course. The best thing about this feature? It saves your highlights and notes from that page. Which leads me to the next great study feature. Smart allows you to print up to a 1. Selecting print allows you to select a start page defaults to the page you are currently viewing and up to 1. Just like sharing a page through a link, this feature also preserves highlights, however notes are not printed along side it. Smart is the ability to read offline. Attempting to check out a 6th title will prompt you to check in one of your other books. To access your books while offline, you need to first be online. From your bookshelf you can select. However, after you download the chapter s , you need to bookmark the offline section by visiting coursesmart. Then, to access your books offline you simply open your browser, click your bookmark for offline bookshelf and all your downloaded titles are waiting for you. There are mobile apps for Android and i. OS devices, but being able to read from any device that can get to the Course. Smart website seems like a pretty handy feature. However, while the e. Resource component of Course. Smart texts delivers valuable extra features, but they are features that are already embedded in the text on other platforms. Features like online homework, quizzes and exercises, simulations and videos or links to outside websites with related content. To me, this is sort of missing the point of an e. Books have no limits to the kind of content they can display which is what makes them so exciting. Being able to tap on a diagram and hear a professor explain photosynthesis, or spinning a chlorophyll molecule around in a 3. D image, or opening full screen videos that literally show you how evolution works is what separates e. Books from print books. Separating these features into a seperate e. Resource section seems like a step backwards to me. Book and it was simple to use and navigate within a book. I was disappointed in the lack of multimedia features within the text, but the study features like printing and sharing are very useful and not available elsewhere. However the best part of the Course. Smart platform is the ability to read on or offline, and the variety of devices you can access your books from. Being restricted to the i. Pad on other platforms is like print books in that you only have the one copy, but Course. Smart is like having a copy anywhere you have an Internet connection. Smart is doing a lot of things right, and they have a very solid e. Textbook platform that covers all the bases, however I look forward to watching them innovate in the years to come as certain features become industry standards.
