Additional Information In lieu of an abstract, here is a brief excerpt of the content: My mother and father met as university students in St. Petersburg in , where they were both studying law. Turbulent times and the Russian Revolution brought each of them by different routes back to Estonia, where they met again at the opening of the Constituent Assembly on 23 April Their lively correspondence culminated in the decision to get married. Their wedding took place in Haapsalu on 24 September , and the young couple immediately went to Saaremaa , because my father had been elected chairman of the Saare county government. He was 26 years old, my mother Tanni Kents Born i3 Kirss. A great blow to my mother was the sudden death of her beloved father in March My father and mother were unable to attend the funeral in Tallinn, since the sea was full of drifting ice floes in early spring, and connections with the mainland were broken. This prompted the decision to leave Saaremaa for the mainland in order to complete their interrupted university studies. My birth did not change these plans; Father went on ahead to Tartu and re-enrolled in the university; my mother followed with me a few months later. It was hard to find a babysitter, we had no relatives in Tartu. At the time we were living in Tallinn. It took my mother over four more years to complete her university studies, and by then she already had four children. My memories of our time in Tartu are very limited; most of them come from stories my parents told. We lived in two furnished rooms in the five-room apartment of an impoverished German spinster. The rooms were filled with old moth-eaten furniture. My father had been appointed judge of the Tallinn-Haapsalu Court of Common Appeals, and our life in Tallinn was quite different from our life in Tartu. You are not currently authenticated.
