

Chapter 1 : Hopeless Quotes - BrainyQuote

Women, like men, crave what they can't have. Whether it's designer clothes, unlimited bread sticks or men who will never settle they long for what they know is bad for them.

There is a lot of advice out there for men, but for one group of men who have never really had any success with women, none of that advice seems to be of much use. Our hero is a man who feels utterly defeated. Whatever hope he may still have for himself left walled off, knowing thinking like that only leads to misery. This is a shitty, tough, place to be. The longer you stay here the more comfortable you get, and the more difficult it seems to make any changes. But the truth is, any zero can become a hero. If you believe that every girl is out of your reach, and act accordingly, you will make it true. The truth is the exact opposite: There are no such thing as leagues. Thinking that way is a dangerous mind trap. Learn how to sell yourself A friend of mine wrote the other day about his struggle with depression and his self image. It hit home for him when he asked a friend to set him up with some of her girlfriends. Girls be geeks too. When in a funk, without a track record of success, too often we fall into the habit of focusing entirely on our flaws, turning our self-image into a rotten pile of negativity. The first thing you need to do is sell yourself, to yourself. Take the example of a man, unemployed, living at home, overweight, no real success with women, and broke. But changing his perspective is all it takes to start on the path to getting what you want. If you look at yourself and turn the negatives into positives, it makes it easier to build the confidence to start progressing forwards. Instead of the negative description of the man in this example, he needs to instead think of himself in terms of his strengths. What do you think is more attractive to a woman: What about not having any success with women? Instead of framing that as a negative, own up to the main reason why: Own up to it, as there are plenty of women out there who will be as passionate about these things as you are. The key is having the courage to say: And having the will to continue working to better yourself. Winning at life is about making the best decisions you can, with the information you have. If you do that, the end results are out of your control, and do not reflect the person you are, or the integrity you have. But it deserves to be mentioned again. I can guarantee almost all of the men who identify with this article in one way or another have a fear of rejection. You need to stop doing this immediately. Rejection is absolutely meaningless. I have been rejected more times than I can count, but I can only remember maybe a couple. Getting rejected is not the end of anything, you still get to move on and try again, as many times as you would like. Failing, only because you had too much fear to make an attempt is stupid. The men who have success with women are no better than you. They have different skills, some of which will make it easier for them to succeed. Never take rejection personally. Learn from it, figure out if you made any mistakes you can fix, brush off the insults, and carry on. She did you a favor. Start giving a fuck about the details Do yourself a favor: You need to stop and objectively look at yourself. Do you have style, or is your wardrobe comprised of whatever was on sale at Walmart? Things like how you look affects how you feel, and how others evaluate you. And looking good is really just the act of making an effort. It can be as simple as a clean plain black tee shirt and some nice dark jeans. And finally, when you go out do so with a big smile on your face. There is nothing more beneficial to you, or attractive to others, than a smile. If right now you feel like you would have to trick someone into liking you, instead start by tricking yourself. Force yourself to smile, force yourself to act with confidence, force yourself to take risks. Soon enough you will start to realize that the man you were pretending to be is just another version of the man you are. Show your best self to the world, and it will open its doors to you. You will never have success until you get out there and start risking failure. Make the choice to stop being afraid, and start taking on the adventure.

Chapter 2 : Woman hopeless after no charges filed

It might seem like hopeless romantics are doomed when it comes to finding love in the current dating climate, but that's not necessarily a case. Women who dream of finding our own happily ever afters believe that they exist "we just need a guy who knows how to handle it."

A lot of people think the two things are mutually exclusive. Sure, there are some. Sometimes you just want to relax and enjoy silly love stories, but you often have to deal with the annoying guilt you make yourself feel afterwards. The bar scene can be exhausting. You feel stuck in a Catch situation. And it works the other way too. You can work for a little while, and after a few years, when things are financially stable, you really should settle down and focus solely on your family. People make you feel weird or selfish or bossy or demanding for having high standards. Standards like expecting a guy to make an effort to get to know you. Standards like expecting your companion to treat you like your career and your success are just as important and impressive as his. Standards like wanting to have a stable and independent life outside of your relationship. You run the show, but you still want hearts and flowers. And yet if you give off the vibe of being a talented, successful woman, guys often make the mistake of thinking you want nothing to do with date nights and sweet surprises and cute text messages. You sometimes feel like you have to keep these two different parts of yourself separate. At work and in your independent life you have to be one way, and in your romantic life you can be another way. You want your partner to treat you both as a strong, impressive, intelligent woman, but you also want them to be gentle and loving and complimentary and smitten with you. But a lot of the times, they only seem capable of treating you one way or the other. But at the same time, the point of having a relationship is having someone you can be weak and vulnerable with. When either one of these sides of you is going through something tough, you turn to chocolate. And, for some reason, chocolate is still not fat free, nor is it zero calories. And that is probably the biggest struggle of all.

Chapter 3 : Hopeless: The Woman with the Issue of Blood by Golden Keyes Parsons

An independent label dedicated to making a positive impact through music. Subscribe for the latest from the Hopeless family! % of our music, videos, occas.

By definition, a fearless woman is strong when it comes to facing hard situations. They are confident in who they are and what they believe, and in their example of fearlessness, they encourage others to be courageous and make a difference. While many think of men first when it comes to these strong figures, there are also a number of important women in the Bible who inspire, not only because of how they lived but also because of their rock-solid faith, even in some of the toughest of circumstances. We can learn a great deal from their stories. She laughed when told that she would bear a son, but that same laugh turned into amazement and triumph when Isaac was born. For I have borne him a son in his old age. God said so and it happened. This is the power of God. She left her comfortable and familiar surroundings to launch her journey with God. Sarah became a mother of nations and kings came from her. Referenced in the Book of Numbers, these young women stood fearless and firm and as result reformed the culture of their day. Du rot the ruling regarding the daughters of Zelophehad, women were included in the list of eligible heirs of property. Yet, God moves so mightily in her story and uses it to encourage millions. At the beginning of the book, Ruth is living in her home in Moab; a place and people that the Israelites frowned upon. On top of that, she had lost her husband and was living with her widowed mother-in-law. She also lost her husband without a child, some believing she may have been barren. Ruth showed remarkable faith for such a young believer. She had the faith to believe that God was who He said He was and faith to believe that God would provide for her and Naomi. Her bravery, faith and obedience can encourage us to be better followers of Christ. Ruth was able to overcome her past by giving her life over to the living God. By turning from her idolatrous way of life she was able to be used mightily of the Lord as the great grandmother of King David. Priscilla Priscilla ministered the Gospel together with her husband Aquila. The Bible describes her as an effective mentor, when she and her husband take Apollos aside and explain to him the way of God more accurately. The two were a Spirit-filled couple with a godly marriage that resulted in a powerful ministry of the Lord. Paul mentions to the church in Rome that the couple risked their lives for him. The two welcomed Paul into their hearts and home, to live with them and work with them, making tents. Paul established them in the doctrines of the faith, and they in turn, taught others such as Apollos. Priscilla is never mentioned apart from her husband. While they were equal as persons according to their marriage, their functions were different. In marriage, they were one. Mary Magdalene Mary Magdalene was delivered from a life of demonic oppression and experienced the resurrected power of Christ. As a result she was one of the first to announce the risen Christ. Though she has been reinterpreted over and over again, she remains a potent and mysterious figure. When Mary and the other women, along with the twelve joined Jesus, they were taking a serious risk. Jesus was spurred into action after the arrest of John the Baptist. Hannah Hannah is one of the most inspiring women in the Bible and also one of the most identifiable women in Scripture for a number of reasons. We recognize her for her sorrow. She wanted a child so badly but was barren. She prayed to God that she would be granted a son and in turn, promised to dedicate his life to the service of God. She left her son to be raised in the Temple, while still staying connected to him, providing counsel and wisdom to him throughout his life. She is also recognized in the Bible for her sacrifice. Her son later grew up to be one of the most influential and Godly figures in the Bible. One of the most inspiring things about Hannah is the fact that she never gave up hope that God would hear her prayer. She believed God for a son and He multiplied her faith by giving her many children. The Samaritan Woman Jesus loved women and treated them with great respect and dignity. This can be seen throughout the New Testament. For example, Jewish women were barred from public speaking. The oral law prohibited women from reading the Torah out loud. Synagogue worship was segregated, with women never allowed to be heard. The rabbinic oral law was explicit: And imagine how stunned this woman was that the Messiah was trying to reach out to her and offer her living water for her thirst soul. The woman at the well became one of the first mass evangelists for Jesus Christ. She was able to confront her past truthfully and transform into a motivating mouthpiece for the Lord.

Mary was the sister of Martha, and her brother was Lazarus from whom Jesus raised from the dead. We see Mary three different times in the Bible, beginning with the incident in her home of her sister, Martha referenced in Luke. This is probably her most recognized feature. Jesus further said that choosing the better thing, learning of the Lord, would not be taken away from Mary. Her priority in life was Christ, the knowledge of Him, and the nearness to Him has chosen what will last through eternity. Esther is an inspiring story about a remarkable woman who was willing to risk her life to save her people. She was a woman of principle who was willing to put the lives of others ahead of even her own life. She was an outstanding example of serving others even under the most stressful circumstances. Most of the time our lives may be pretty routine, but all of us have a few defining moments when we may be called on to put godly principle above personal benefit. Esther modeled bravery and courage when she risked her life to save the lives of her people. She teaches us that we must break intimidation and use our influence to bring glory to God. Jehosheba, daughter of King Joram, gripped by the power of motherly instinct, fled danger in order to protect her son from death and helped to preserve the future of Israel. When Athaliah, the Queen Mother, discovered her son, King Ahaziah was dead she had the entire royal family executed to hold her position as the Queen of Judah. However, Jehosheba curved the plans. She took her infant nephew, the prince Joash to safety and he was the only survivor of the carnage. Seven years after the massacre, her husband, Jehoiada, who was a priest, reinstated Joash on the throne. Deborah, prophet and judge to Israel, is known for her wisdom, courage and compassionate zeal for justice. One of the reasons she stood out is because of both her spiritual and civil leadership. During those years of extended turmoil, she was the only woman who served as a judge. She is an example of a woman with faith in God who arose as a light to her people. Deborah turned many of her countrymen to service to God and faith during a period where it was so needed. The Hebrew woman, Jochebed, and her daughter Miriam saved him by hiding him among the reeds at the edge of the river. Miriam was strategic, arranging that the real mother of the baby should be a wet-nurse for the baby. She was a self-possessed girl who followed and watched over Moses, ultimately saving his life. Later, Miriam, with her brothers Moses and Aaron, led the Hebrew people through the forty years when they reverted to the nomadic life, searching for the Promised Land. Caleb promises his daughter Achsah to whoever takes the town, and Othniel, son of Kenaz takes on the challenge. He succeeds and marries Achsah. She came with quite a bit of land as well. Achsah came with quite a bit of land, called Negev. The Negev is known for its dryness and Achsah asks her father for water. Caleb gives her springs known as the upper and lower springs. She stepped out on faith and claimed additional blessing for her family because she was bold enough to ask for more. Just like our heavenly Father is ready and willing to bless us, we must also go to Him with this same faith. Daughters of Phillip the Evangelist These four single young women had the gift of prophecy and their ministry is mentioned in the Book of Acts. They represent boldness, courage and a willingness to step out for the Lord no matter what season of life. They were highly esteemed. They held a prominent place in the early church. They exercised their ministry gift openly and with great vigor. Their leadership should not be underestimated, nor their influence. They were regarded as prophets, just like the prophets mentioned in the Book of Acts. Mary, the Mother of Jesus, is one of the most admired figures in Scripture and considered by many to be the greatest of all Christian saints. She was a willing servant who trusted God and obeyed His call. While her life held great honor, her calling also required great suffering. Though there was joy in motherhood, there was great pain in the privilege of being the mother of the Messiah. Despite these things, she responded to God with great obedience and submission to His plan. Her life never robbed Jesus of His glory, for her mission was to witness the glory of the Son of God.

Chapter 4 : 22 Fearless Women in the Bible - Beliefnet

"Hopeless Woman" by Ellie Ann. Produced by Brian Sargent Photos by Lauren Lee Photography (c) Ellie Ann Music www.nxgvision.com

Enter your name and email and get the weekly newsletter My parents passed on in a terrible car accident when I was 3 and I joined my grandmother in the village. I remember the village so well although I left when I was 12, my uncle picked me saying I had to go to school. My uncle works for the mines as a geologist while my aunt is a housewife. She is nothing like my mother, yes I do remember my mother so well. She was light skinned and beautiful, with hair that fell over her shoulders. I hear my parents were so rich and they were the bread winners of the family, I can imagine what that means because if they were better than my uncle then they should have been stinking rich. You should be thinking for people who are so rich, I must at least be a middle child. At the back of this mansion is a chicken run and in the next room is a neglected storeroom. Its neither painted nor vanished its simply another room that should have equally been a chicken run. Well to cut the long story short, that is my room. Its very accommodating to all my needs and I guess i am happy. For me, happiness is a choice. Like you choose to be sad, I have chosen to be happy in all situations. So when given an opportunity to choose, I choose happiness. My aunty and uncle have two children together, they are twins. I call them my sisters from another planet, not in their faces of course. They are sisters from another planet because they are blessed with hate that I can not explain, very bitter beings. My uncle is in a world of his own and in his world I barely exist, talk of being invisible. She loves me but in a very tough way. Her children, the twins She calls them miracle babies because she struggled in labor. Well, they go by the names. Other than that, they look so much alike. They are 18years of age, very beautiful and very spoiled. My uncle promised that I would be starting first grade again on my 21st birthday. I did learn from 1st grade to 7th in the village, hence I can write and read fluently. Anyway my birthday is in two weeks and I am so excited. I was supposed to be in night school with other adults but my aunty said no. I am a survivor. I survived this life, I survived everything my aunt threw at me. I will survive this one too, I just want to learn more how to read and write. I Like to read and write a lot but my English is basic. I have absolutely no interest in arithmetic or any other subjects. One day I hope to be a writer. I believe I will sale a lot of books. The first thing I would like to buy when I become successful is a house, because this steel roof above my head steals every inch of sleep I have. It makes serious noise when it rains and I often wake up in tears staring at the mansion and wondering how life turned out this way for me. Another thing I would like is a beautiful bed bought from a furniture shop. I want so many things but firstly I want school.

Chapter 5 : Hopeless (Roy Lichtenstein) - Wikipedia

TEARS OF A HELPLESS WOMAN CHAPTER 1. My name is Mwansa Yande, I am an orphan who was raised by my uncle and his wife. My parents passed on in a terrible car accident when I was 3 and I joined my grandmother in the village.

Chapter 6 : For the Hopeless: How to Start Having Success with Women | Real Men Drink Whiskey

A hopeless romantic is someone who believes the stories, poems and songs that tell of perfect love and happiness. Romantics enjoy the business of spoiling, caring for and thinking about their beloved.

Chapter 7 : 16 Struggles Of Being Both An Independent Woman And A Hopeless Romantic | Thought Catalog

A woman who is a hopeless romantic loves surprises. If she knows she's appreciated for who she is by the way you treat her, she's likely to surprise you in bed and out.

Chapter 8 : TEARS OF A HOPELESS WOMAN PART 1 Â· WELCOME TO EMPERORBLOG

For the Hopeless: How to Start Having Success with Women by Sean Lind | Jun 24, | How To, Life | 2 comments There is a lot of advice out there for men, but for one group of men who have never really had any success with women, none of that advice seems to be of much use.