They adore each other. He is a beautiful Lionhead bunny that was evidently used at one time as a breeder. He will not tolerate being rubbed, held or loved in any way, shape or form. He is his own little man, so I allow him his space. Just having him as my baby is enough for me. I try to understand what his past life must have been like. He trusts me though. When I lay on the floor he will come up to me and sniff all around me and even put his little feet up on me. When I sit at the computer, he will come up and play with my bunny bedroom shoes. He loves to binky! How wonderful it is to see that because I know that he probably never got the space to do it before I had him. So I guess he knows who loves him. I am just so happy to give my beautiful little Thumper the happy life he deserves! My darling Thumper succumbed to his disease at 4: I was holding him in my arms like a baby and trying to soothe him for hours before he finally went gently to the Bridge. I loved him so much and always will. He was the Daddy to all my other buns except his bunwife, Sadie, and his granddaughter, Molly. We have to endure this pain when we have these little furball angels in our lives, I guess. Binky free my sweet one. You will always be in my heart.

As such, Simba is perhaps the most popular choice for Disney cat names. Sure, it might not be the most original option, but naming your cat Simba is fun and nostalgic, especially for those of us who grew up watching the beloved animation. Nala is the childhood best friend of Simba and eventually marries him and becomes queen of the jungle. He is the strong, benevolent king until he was killed by his brother Scar. A generation of kids grew up fearing this menacing lion. But I guess with a name like Lucifer, what do you expect? Luckily, he is not successful. The treacherous pair wreaks havoc in the house and ultimately get Lady in trouble. Walt Disney loved this character so much that he wanted him to appear in his works as much as possible. A mouse with a pet cat? Despite the character flaws, the name Gideon still makes a super cute name for a rascally cat. She can always count on him as her best friend and fiercest protector. This powerful and suave Bengal tiger is fiercely intimidating. All he has to do is show his face and the jungle creatures are terrified! Actually, two of them. He is terrified of fire and guns. Considering all these names, we think Shere Khan would make an awesome name for a strong, alpha male cat. Bagheera is the serious foil to Baloo, the goofy, fun-loving sloth bear. If you have a large, strong cat, this makes a great name. Or you could use it ironically for an itty bitty kitty. How funny would that be? Unlike the young cats, he has no interest in chasing down mice. In fact, he works with them to help find Penny. We love this gruff but lovable name and consider it a gem within the Disney cat names. Instead, she is reunited with Alice at the end when she awakes. Who could forget the eery grin of the Cheshire Cat? The devious and mischievous cat can disappear on will and contorts his body to frighten his visitors. Of all the mad characters, he might just be the craziest of all! Duchess The Aristocats In animated film The Aristocats, opera diva Madame Adelaide decides to leave her fortune to her cats, Duchess and her three kittens. The greedy butler, however, has other plans. This is certainly a fun, scrappy name for a boy cat! He aspires to meet a tough alley cat which is why he adores Thomas so much and sees him as a father figure. Still, he has plenty of spunk at times and can be mischievous and grumpy at times. Not only is she very bossy at times, but she also believes that by being female, she is the best of the three kittens. She, like Toulouse, grows to love Thomas like a father. In the film, the mischevious Siamese tomcat D. Once a 17th-century boy living with his family in the country, Thackery is turned into an immortal black cat when he crosses paths with the Sanderson sisters, a trio of witches. Using a special collar, he is able to communicate with humans so he can try to find his mothership. He created the world as a replica of his own home, a mysterious and peaceful world similar to the afterlife. We love this unique, soulful name and think it would be great for a pet cat. Sarcastic and witty, Sassy is a Himalayan cat who has a sibling-like relationship with the two dogs:
