

Chapter 1 : Oman registers moderate rise in inflation in October - Times Of Oman

Your number one source for the latest breaking news in the Sultanate of Oman.

History[edit] Times of Oman was first published on February 23, and was launched as a weekly tabloid newspaper. The main reasons for starting Times of Oman were to publicize Oman abroad and to address non-Omanis in the country. This explains why the newspaper dedicates more pages to news about the Indian Subcontinent since the majority of expatriates in Oman are from that region. A reader survey in stated that amongst the English dailies in Oman, Times of Oman was favored by 5. The publishing house is behind a number of different publications from broadsheet dailies to tabloid weeklies and monthlies as well as weekly magazines both in Arabic and English. In WAP editions of the newspapers were made available on cell phones. Newspaper[edit] The paper is published six days a week from Saturday to Thursday. The website is also updated every day in every hour. The newspaper is organized in three sections. The first section, section A, contains pages of local news, regional news, news on India and Pakistan and world news. It also has a commentary section with perspectives from respected political analysts and opinion writers. Section B is a Market, Business and Finance section bringing news on local, regional and international financial matters. It also contains a Life and Style part in addition to entertainment pages with crosswords, daily horoscope, airlines and bus schedules. The back pages are dedicated to Bollywood news and feature articles. The C section focuses on national and international sports. The D section, called Connect, is the daily guide for the inhabitants of Oman with local ads and classifieds. The newspaper, printed daily with pages varying from 44 to 52 pages, is a blend of black and white and color pages. Electronic devices[edit] In , Times of Oman launched their website, which additionally made MPPH the first publication house in the region to develop a website for news information. In December , the Times of Oman website was redesigned to include more sections for news coverage in the local department and across the globe. The average visit duration is 5. In , Times of Oman launched its first mobile application for iPad and smart phones. It was a family magazine, which came out with the main edition of Times of Oman every Thursday. The magazine targeted readers among expatriate and Omani working women as well as housewives. On June 23, , the last issue was published, with the magazine folding into the pages of Times of Oman. Sister publications[edit] Hi Weekly, launched on March 30, , is a freely circulated weekend newspaper in tabloid format. It consists mainly of light-reading content and is distributed every Friday instead of the daily paper. Hi offers in-depth analyses of international events as well as an informative and investigative approach to local events and issues ranging from civic amenities to social responsibilities, culture, heritage, arts, literature, beauty, fashion, environment, business and sports. Faces is a monthly magazine of Times of Oman, which targets business expatriates, working professionals and the local Omanis that fall in the age group. It features stories on local personalities, reviews on movies, books, and restaurants, in depth editorial content on international news, health, fashion, relationship, food, travel gizmos and more. Supported by its online presence, Faces now reaches out to a pan-Gulf audience.
