Brownies were a race of the Lesser Faery, that looked like miniature versions of Daikinis (9 inches on average) and lived in the woods. They were warriors, masters of the bow and arrow arranging themselves in small communities that they hyperbolically referred to as kingdoms.

Plot[edit] When a prophecy states that a female child with a special birthmark will herald the downfall of the evil sorceress Queen Bavmorda, she imprisons all pregnant women in her realm to prevent its fulfillment. When the child is born, the mother begs the midwife to hide the infant and smuggle her to safety. The midwife reluctantly accepts and leaves Nockmaar Castle unnoticed. The mother is executed ; the midwife is hunted down and eventually found. Knowing she cannot escape, the midwife sets the baby on a makeshift raft of grass and sends her down a river before being killed by Nockmaar hounds. The baby drifts downriver to a village of Nelwyn dwarves. She comes into the care of Willow Ufgood, a kind farmer and conjurer with hopes to become a real sorcerer. His wife Kaiya and his children fall in love with the baby immediately, and Willow, after some resistance, quickly grows to love her as well. The village is attacked by a lone Nockmaar hound; after being killed by the village warriors, they deduce it was after a baby. Willow reveals the baby to the High Aldwin, the village sorcerer. He declares the child special and that she must be taken back to the Daikini humans. Willow, due to his love for the child, is selected to accompany the party of volunteers in returning the baby. While the rest of the party want to give the baby to Madmartigan and go home immediately, Willow and his friend Meegosh refuse, so the others leave. As Meegosh and Willow are headed home, they find the baby was stolen by a group of Brownies. They chase the Brownies and are trapped, but are rescued by the Fairy Queen Cherlindrea. She gives Willow her wand and assigns him the task of helping Elora fulfill her destiny. The three of them find Madmartigan at a tavern, where he is disguised as a woman to hide from Lug, a cuckolded husband. Sorsha arrives and reveals his identity; Lug, furious upon the realization that Madmartigan is not a woman, starts a brawl, allowing Willow, Madmartigan, and the brownies to escape. Madmartigan guides them to the lake where Raziel lives before departing. They find Raziel, but discover she has been transformed into a possum by Bavmorda. Willow and his party return with her to shore but encounter Sorsha, who already has Madmartigan in custody. They are taken to a snowbound mountain camp of the Nockmaar army where Willow tries to restore Raziel, but turns her into a rook instead. Madmartigan is accidentally dosed with love dust by the Brownies during their escape and ends up declaring his undying love for Sorsha, much to her disbelief. The prisoners escape with the baby and reach a village at the foot of the mountain. Madmartigan proclaims his loyalty to the Nelwyn and promises to protect Willow and Elora. They take Sorsha hostage, but she escapes to tell Kael where they are going. They arrive at the castle of Tir Asleen only to discover that it is now overrun by trolls and the inhabitants have all been cursed by Bavmorda. Madmartigan finds armor and weapons as he prepares for the assault from Kael and Sorsha. During the fighting, Sorsha realizes she has feelings for Madmartigan and decides to join him and Willow in opposing her mother. Willow accidentally turns a troll into an eborsisk, a massive, fire-breathing, two-headed dragon-like monster that begins attacking everything it sees. Airk arrives with his army, turning the tide of battle. Willow escapes when Raziel has him use a spell to avoid transformation. They trick their way into the castle and, in the ensuing battle, Airk is killed by Kael, who is in turn slain by Madmartigan after a lengthy sword duel. Bavmorda incapacitates Sorsha and then duels magically with Raziel; Raziel loses but is only knocked out. Willow uses an "old disappearing pig trick" to fool Bavmorda into thinking that Elora has been sent to a dimension beyond her reach; enraged, Bavmorda accidentally triggers the final part of the ritual, banishing her own soul instead. Willow is rewarded with a magic book to aid him in becoming a sorcerer, and Sorsha and Madmartigan remain in a restored Tir Asleen to raise Elora together. Cast[edit] Warwick Davis as Willow Ufgood, a Nelwyn dwarf and aspiring sorcerer who plays a critical role in protecting infant Elora Danan from the evil queen Bavmorda. Patricia Hayes as Fin Raziel, the aging sorceress who is turned into a possum [4] [5] due to a curse by Bavmorda. Billy Barty as The High Aldwin, the Nelwyn wizard who commissions Willow to go on his journey, realizing the potential that Willow possesses in magic. Pat Roach as General Kael, the villainous associate to Queen Bavmorda and high commander of her army. Mark Northover as Burglekutt, the leader of the Nelwyn village council who maintains a running enmity with Willow. Phil Fondacaro as Vohnkar, a Nelwyn warrior who also accompanies Willow partway on his journey.

Chapter 2 : Willow (film) - Wikipedia

Joined by his allies: swordsman Madmartigan, sorceress Fin Raziel and the Brownies Franjean and Rool, Willow takes it upon himself to protect Elora from Queen Bavmorda, who intends to kill Elora and prevent Elora from fulfilling her destiny.

He was named for a fallen willow tree near the River Freen. Willow showed magical talents as an infant, and the High Aldwin declared that he was special upon his birth. However, during a festival, little Willow was impressed by displays of magic and stagecraft from the traveling entertainer Pesto the Magnificent. He decided to study magical trickery and even pestered High Aldwin to take him as an apprentice, but he was reticent to take on a new learner. Willow practiced only festival stagecraft but was ambitious of someday becoming a sorcerer. Trada died when Willow was six. Willow married Kiaya Ufgood and raised his two young children, Ranon and Mims. One of his problems was the surly Prefect Burglekutt, who kept Willow toiling in the fields to pay his taxes, and threatened to send him to the mines should his upkeep ever fall short. During the Planting Festival of the year, Willow was one of the hopefuls that the High Aldwin would choose as his next apprentice. He asked his initiates to identify which finger held the power to control the world. Soon later, Elora Danan was rescued from the River Freen by his children. The village was afterwards raided by Death Dogs. The villagers were angry for the one who caused the disaster. Willow wanted to keep the baby secret, but then it was decided that he should take the child to the Daikini crossroads and be given to a Daikini human. Meegosh would accompany him. Willow with Elora Danan. Willow with a fairy. The trek was lengthy, until they met a captive swordsman, Madmartigan, to whom he gave the baby, only to find it a short while later captured by mischievous Brownies. The fairy tasked Willow to take Elora to the sorceress Fin Raziel, held captive on an isolated island. Willow soon crossed roads with Madmartigan, who joined him in his quest. Eventually they found Fin Raziel shifted in animal form by a spell, and Willow failed to dispel. Tir Asleen was invaded and absconded with the baby. The two sorceresses engaged in a magic battle while Willow rescued baby Elora Danan from the sacrificial altar. Using a simple trick, Willow made it seem as if he had teleported Elora to safety. Bavmorda lost control of her roiling spells, and was consumed by her dark powers. With Bavmorda eliminated, the dark pall she cast over the world vanished. Raziel restored Tir Asleen, and Elora Danan was delivered to foster parents. Raziel gave Willow her book of magic, and Willow returned to the Nelwyn Village. The Shadow War Saga Edit A year later, as Willow fell asleep, distraught over not being able to attend a party for Elora, he dreams that night of riding on the back of Calan Dineer a great dragon, who drops him off at Tir Asleen. After bantering with Madmartigan and Sorsha, during which Sorsha bestows upon him a new name, "Thorn Drumheller" and continues on to see Elora and give her a gift that he has created: Leaving the sleeping child with her gift, he converses with the two brownies, Rool and Franjean, and leaves. He wakes up the next morning to find two Brownies sitting at the end of his bed and that a horrific Cataclysm has wiped out 12 areas in the world, including Tir Asleen. Places of Power suddenly erupted in terrible blasts, leaving only rubble behind, the Scars. Willow first visits the Scar that once was Tir Asleen. Devastated, Willow shed his past, adopted the name Thorn Drumheller and spent the next dozen years wandering Andowyne, searching for answers behind the Cataclysm. Early in his travels he brought the boy Faron to the world. With the brownies and a pair of eagles, Bastian and Anele he met along the way, he mastered sorcery and achieved many abilities. But still he was unable to discern more about what caused the Cataclysm. While investigating the final Scar that once was a peak of the continental barrier, he fought a pack of death dogs trailing the Daikini warrior Geryn Havilhand. Thorn saves him, and the two travel to see the Ascension of Elora Danan, at the far land of Angwyn, where Elora ruled as a Sacred Princess but try as they might, chaos ensues. They start a perilous journey to a land undisturbed since the dawn of time that will end at the unbreachable citadel of the dragon, where a chilling betrayal changed the fate of Elora, Thorn, and the Thirteen Realms forever. Elora Danan slew the dragons that were the embodiment of the soul of Creation to save the dragons from the Deceiver, who would have used them to rule the Realms. It is a dire spell that ensures none of them will betray their cause And if one of them dies, the magic of the eggs is lost forever.

Pursued through a land of shadow predators by the dreaded Black Rose, Elora and her allies went to the free city-state of Sandeni. With defeat all but certain, Elora convinced the Sandeni people to continue the fight. For the Deceiver is her own dark twin from a potential future of unimaginable evil And the only way Elora can stop the future is to befriend an enemy whose insatiable appetite for destruction could destroy all of Creation. Personality, appearance and traits Edit During his wanderings, Thorn became lean and tough. His skin was tightened, and his highlighted chin and jaw, made him appear twice his age. His hair grew long in the fashion of a Daikini warrior and from mahogany with red highlights it became auburn. Under his wild brows, his eyes turned from hazel to green and blue mixed with gray.

Chapter 3 : Willow () - Plot Summary - IMDb

Willow is a American high fantasy film directed by Ron Howard, produced and with a story by George Lucas, and starring Warwick Davis, Val Kilmer, Joanne Whalley, Jean Marsh, and Billy Barty.

Edit A young farmer named Willow Ufgood is drawn away from his sheltered home to save Elora Danan a baby girl with a destiny from the evil sorceress Queen Bavmorda who would see her destroyed. Willow is aided by the disillusioned master swordsman Madmartigan, who has turned to a life of roguery after the fall of his kingdom to the evil queen, and the sorceress Fin Raziell, who has been turned into a muskrat by Bavmorda. For many years, Bavmorda has ruled the land with an iron fist from her castle Nockmar. Then, a prophecy is made: This little girl will grow up to become a powerful empress, and she will bring about the downfall of Queen Bavmorda. She cannot simply kill the child. The baby girl is finally born, recognizable by a mark on her arm. She agrees to help. She hides the baby in a basket of rags and gives the mother a bundle of rags as a decoy. The midwife then sneaks the baby out of the castle. When the Queen arrives and discovers the decoy, she suspects the midwife. She sends her soldiers and Devil Dogs after her and has the mother killed. Over the next few months, the midwife makes her way across the country, keeping the baby safe. One day, the Devil Dogs catch up to them. To protect the baby, she puts her into a basket made of sticks and twigs and pushes her down the river. The Devil Dogs then kill the midwife. The baby is found by a Nelwyn named Willow Ufgood and his family. Willow is a young farmer and a sorcerer-in-training and wants nothing to do with the baby, fearing that it may be a bad omen, but his family overrules him. After holding the baby for a few minutes, Willow smiles and starts to accept the baby as one of his own. The next day, Willow and his other two children, Mims and Ranon, attend a festival in the Nelwyn village, where Willow performs magic tricks. The festival comes to a stop as one of the Devil Dogs attacks the village. The village warriors quickly kill the dog, but the whole town is shook up. Willow realizes that the baby is what the dogs are after and tells Kaiya that they have to take it to the village council. When the Ufgoods arrive at the village council with the baby, they overhear the village prefect, the snobbish Mr. Burgelcutt, saying that whoever is responsible for the attack will be severely punished. Willow presents the baby to the village council and Burgelcutt suggests giving it to the dogs. The High Aldwin senses something special about the child and decrees that the baby must survive at all cost. He orders them to take the baby to the Daikini crossroads and give it to the first Daikini tall person that they see. Bavmorda laughs, "I trust her loyalty more than I trust yours. Having found a daikini, Burgelcutt tells Willow to give Madmartigan the baby. The next day, an army marches by. Madmartigan "smells" a battle. Willow tries to give the baby to one of the soldiers, but no one cares. Madmartigan sees his old friend, Airk. Airk informs Madmartigan that the Nockmar army has destroyed the kingdom of Galadoorn. Madmartigan tells Airk to let him out so he can help in the fight against Nockmar, but Airk, remembering how selfish Madmartigan can be, leaves him to rot. After the army passes, and seeing no other option, Willow and Meegosh free Madmartigan and give him the baby. Madmartigan heads off promising to take good care of the baby. As Willow and Meegosh head back towards home, they see an eagle, carrying the baby and being ridden by a Brownie, fly by. They chase after the eagle and are eventually captured by the other brownies. Willow and Meegosh wake up hours later, tied to the ground and surrounded by a pack of brownies, led by Franjean. A voice from the forest orders Franjean to release Willow and Meegosh. The brownies, quickly, cut their ropes. The forest sorceress, Cherlindrea, appears to them and greets Willow. The baby is under her protection. Elora has chosen Willow to be her guardian, because she likes him. She gives Willow her magic wand and tells him to take it to Fin Raziell, an old rival of Bavmorda. She will guide Willow to Tir Asleen. The next day, Willow decides to continue on and sends Meegosh back to the village. Willow starts out for the island of Fin Raziell, guided by Franjean and Rool. At a tavern along the road, they run into Madmartigan. Neither are happy to see each other, since Willow feels Madmartigan is untrustworthy, and Madmartigan believes Willow is an annoyance. Madmartigan accompanies them on their way to the island. When they get to the island, Madmartigan goes his own way, and Willow goes to find Raziell. He takes her to see Elora. Just then, everyone hears horses approaching. Raziell, Elora and Willow are captured and taken to a Nockmar encampment in the mountains. Franjean and Rool are left behind and are forced to track the horses up the mountains. Rool comments that this should be fun. Willow and Madmartigan free Raziel, despite still being locked up, and Willow attempts to change her back into her human form. He fails, accidentally changing her into a crow. Franjean and Rool arrive and offer to help them out of their cage. Franjean uses his spear to pick the lock, but not before Madmartigan tries to intervene and is immediately struck with a sack containing a very powerful, fairy love potion. Sorsha awakens and threatens to kill him, but is swooned by his poetry- at least, until Kael arrives with Willow and the baby. Presuming that Madmartigan was lying to her as a distraction, they all begin to attack him- he grabs a spare sword and destroys the tent support, kissing Sorsha and then cutting his way out. It is at this point that Madmartigan proves his claims of being an expert swordsman is not merely talk, dispatching three soldiers in a matter of seconds. Using a shield as a sled, Willow and Madmartigan ride out of the camp and down the hill toward a small village. Franjean and Rool are left behind once again, however, and after falling off the sled and smashing into a house as a human snowball, Madmartigan seems to come out of the effects of the love potion. Raziel catches up and warns everyone in the village that Kael and his men are coming. Willow and Madmartigan hide with the rest of the villagers and meet up with Airk and his remaining soldiers- he has lost half his forces to Bavmorda, and even after capturing Sorsha he doubts highly that Madmartigan and Willow could ever take Bavmorda on. Nevertheless, Madmartigan remains loyal to Willow, and the two escape, with Sorsha as their captive. Airk and his men cover their escape. On the road to Tir Asleen, Sorsha asks Madmartigan if he was serious about being in love with her. Insulted, Sorsha escapes from Madmartigan and Willow and goes back to find Kael. The arrival at Tir Asleen is quickly tempered when the group realizes that the castle has been cursed by Bavmorda- it is now overrun by trolls, and its inhabitants are frozen in quartz-like rock formations. After barring the gates, Madmartigan uses what little time he has to set up defenses, while Willow fights off a troll, turning it into an Eborsisk, a two-headed dragon which he promptly kicks into the moat below in disgust. As Kael shatters the gate with a battering ram, the Eborsisk grows at an alarming rate, forcing Kael to shift his men between fighting Madmartigan, the beast, and searching for Elora. Back at Nockmar, Bavmorda is pleased to see that Elora has been finally caught, but is infuriated to hear that Sorsha has turned against her. Bavmorda promptly turns the entire force, excluding Willow and Raziel, into pigs. Willow, knowing the hour is desperate, tries a final time to return Raziel into human form, as she undergoes a massive transformation from a menagerie of animals, until she is finally human. Taking the wand, she proceeds to return the army back to human form- at this point, Bavmorda has already prepared the ritual. With little in the way of plans, Willow suggests a strategy that will get them inside the castle- though it is a long shot, it is also their only hope. During the battle, Airk is killed. Before he dies, he tells Madmartigan to win the war for him. Madmartigan attacks Kael in a rage. Though evenly matched, he manages to impale Kael on his own sword, throwing him to his death afterwards. Fin Raziel and Bavmorda begin fighting over the wand, and eventually Raziel is choked until she is also unconscious. On his own, Willow manages to grab Elora, but is cut off when Bavmorda seals the doors. Though it seems all is lost, Willow tricks Bavmorda by seemingly making the child disappear- in a rage, Bavmorda knocks over a vial of blood that would have been used on Elora. Moments later, she is struck by cursed lightning, instead exiling her own soul to the Netherworld. As Madmartigan arrives, and Sorsha and Raziel regain consciousness, Willow explains that he used his classic "disappearing pig trick" to hide the baby. Elora is safely hidden behind a stone table. Back at Tir Asleen, the curse is lifted, and the kingdom is restored to its former glory. Madmartigan and Sorsha stay and raise Elora Danon as their daughter. Raziel gives Willow a book of basic magic, and tells him that he is on his way to becoming a great sorcerer. He is sent home on a white pony. He is happy to see Meegosh, the High Aldwin, and especially his family again. Development Edit The film was notable for employing more dwarfs than any production in many years, and was widely praised by the "little person" community for employing Warwick Davis as the lead. The film also used morphing special effects to transform an old sorceress into various animals, a revolutionary effect for the time.

Chapter 4 : Essay on Book Reports. Research Paper on Willow

Are you suggesting we go home? Naa, this is more fun!

Absolutely, under no condition whatsoever, is anyone in this family to fall in love with that baby! Madmartigan[edit] Goodbye, Sticks. If you really are a princess, take care of him. Well my mother raised me on blackroot. Let me out of here, Airk. Burglekutt, let me out of here. Just let me out of here Vohnkar, let me borrow that spear just for a minute. Well at least give me some water. Well that was really stupid, Peck. It holds vast powers. Only a real sorcerer can use it, not a stupid peck like you. Cherlindrea[edit] Elora Danan must survive. She must fulfill her destiny and bring about the downfall of Queen Bavmorda. Her powers are growing like an evil plague. Unless she is stopped, Bavmorda will control the lives of your village, your children, everyone. All creatures of good heart need your help, Willow. The choice is yours. High Aldwin[edit] Magic is the bloodstream of the universe. Forget all you know, or think you know. All that you require is your intuition. I will consult the bones!! The bones tell me General Kael, at last. You will do as I say, child. Why is it with my powers and the strength of my great army you cannot so much as find one - little - child? I must despise you now. Is that the extent of your power, little one? Now you will watch me call upon the power of the universe to send that child into the Netherworld! I shall destroy you and the child with you. Peck, peck, peck, peck, peck, peck! Into a realm where evil cannot touch her! We need your help! Why would you need my help? Well, looks like I got ya here. What did you do? All you did was hang around, and eat our eggs! Franjean and Rool growl threateningly Rool: Madmartigan, you never, ever drive that fast with an infant! Smells like a battle. I am the greatest swordsman that ever lived. Say, um, can I have some of that water? Three drops of your blood must be put in the potion. Did I really say those things, last night, in your tent? You said you loved me. You lied to me. I suppose my power enchanted you and you were helpless against it.

The legend told her that the prophecy was the queens grates fear and now it was about to some true. Willow Ufgood had always wanted to be a magician. His dreams were about to become true. All of these things you will read in my report. The main charters of this book are Willow ufgood- a nelwyn that wishes to be a magician that will soon come true. Madmartigan- a master swordsman and womanizer who is drawn into this prophecy. Shorsha- daughter of queen Bavmorda that falls in love. General Kail- a evil man at the top of Bavmords army Queen Bavmorda- Destroyer of Tersline that is searching for a child that can destroy her The book starts of at Nockmar castle. A child is born in the dongon with a mark. The same mark Bavmord is looking for. One of Bavmords servants smulgs the child out of the castle and miles away to a creek bed. She is being tracked by dethdogs so she bundles up and sends the child down the stream in a basket. She is killed by the death dogs but wile the child is floating down the stream. The child traveled down the stream until it a nelwyn village. Two children "willows children" found her and brought her to Willow. The next day Willow and his children went to the carnival in town. Kya stave with the child. Willow was going to see if he could win a apprentice contest to become a apprentice to the High Aldwin. Vonhkar kills it with the help of of his worriers. Then the town held a meeting to finger out why the dethdog attacked the cradle. Willow afraid that his wife was killed by the dethdog before it got to town he ran home to see if she was all right. His wife told him to take the child to the High Aldwin. He goes and talks to the High Aldwin at the town meeting. The High Aldwin tells him if he loves this child that he must take the child to the dikine crossroads and give it to the first Dikine he sees. All the apprentices that wanted to be the High Aldwins apprentice witch finger held all the power. Willow guessed wrong at the carnival but the High Aldwin asked him what was his first answer Willow told him his own which was correct. Then the High Aldwin sad that if he came back alive that he might become his apprentice next year. They traveled on there jurnayand one night Vonhkar told Willow of his quest for Tersline. He never found it but one night in winter when he was passing through the mountains he stopped in a cave. They had a legend that a little warrior would rule them they thought it was him. Vonhkar declined the offer but they gave him a ring that had a design on it. They said that one day he would help some one that will bring peace to a crude land. That child had the same mark. That is why he wanted to go on this journey. When they got to the dikine crossroads they saw a man in a crows cage "Madmartigan". They waited for some one else to ride by but the only thing that did was a army marching to battle. So he let Madmartigan out and gave the child to him. On his way back hawk with a brownie on its back yelling "i got the baby". Willow chases after him then gets attacked by brownies and falls into a pit. He wakes up lying on his back with a brownie on his chest. A glittering lute tells him to let Willow go it is Chilendra. She tells him of her tale and of why this child is so important. She tells him he must go to the lake of Fin Razal and give her Chalandras wand then to go to Tersline. Willow asks why must go, She tells him it is because allora dannan likes him. Willow gets kicked around and he falls through a wall and runs into madmartigan dressed as a woman. He slept with another mans wife and had to hide. Than shorsha and some nockmar solders came in wanting to inspect the babes. They ask Willow to show them the babes arm. He tries to kill Madmartigan and gets Willow and him self out of there. They steal a wagon and run from the nockmar solders. They allude them and take off on foot Willow notices how good he would be to them and asks him to protect them on there trip. Then mad martigan tells him about his life. How he was a rich mans son, how he became a knight at a young age, and how he was banished sense he told a vision to his wife. They make it to the lake of fin razal madmartigan tells him that his job is done and takes off. Willow crosses the lake to a island. He lands on the island and sees a bunch of dead bodies. He sees a squeal and it talks to him. It is Fin Razal. He seems disappointed and takes her across. She tells him that he must turn her back into what she once was. He tells her that he is only a magician not a wizard. She gets all ticked off then the nockmar solders show with madmartigan. They argue with each other and then decide to save them. They are at a nockmar camp held captive. Willow and Madmartigan are in a cage and Fin Razal is in a basket hanging from the wagon. Shorsha has the baby with her in her tent. Willow is concocting a potion to change Fin Razal back. The brownies show up to release them it took them a while but they got there. The brownies try to pick the lock and madmartigan gets frustrated with them they take a pouch with fairy dust and hit him with it. It put him in love with the first woman he sees. Willow gets the potion ready and tries to change Fin Razal back to her original self. He messes up and turns her into a mocking bird instead. They get out and head to Shorshas tent to get Alora Dannan then escape. Madmartigan goes in and falls in love with Shorsha and she wakes up. He speaks poetry to her and Willow sneaks in and grabs the child. The guards walk in and Madmartigan takes a sword and cuts down the main support beam to knock the tent down. They race out of there and willow grabs a shield Madmartigan is fitting his way to Willow and gets on the shield and escape. They make it to a town and hide in a secret hiding place in a barn where they find some soldiers the same ones that marched by at the crossroads but a lot smaller. The nockmar soldiers make it the town and talk to the elder. Shorsha walks into the barn and steps on the hidden door she opens it and then says to torch the barn. Than Madmartigan walks out and grabs Shorsha. They sold her captive and get to there horses. They ride off and the soldiers that was hiding ambush the nockmar soldiers. They ride off with Shorsha captive with General kale following. They find a hidden save and ride through it, it seems to have been a old dwarven hold that was attacked by trolls. They run into a giant wall made of thorns. Fin Razal tells Willow to destroy it with the wand at this Shorsha runs off she hears her soldiers behind and Madmartigan lets her go. Willow is chanting a charm to burn down the wall and succeeds. They ride to Tersline. They get to Tersline only to find out that the place is frozen by one of Bavmords spells. The nockmar soldiers are riding towards the castle so Madmartigan shuts the gates. He goes to see what he could use to find them off in the armoriey. He finds some weapons and the kings armor he tries it on and it fits. While the nockmar soldiers are knocking down the gate he sets boobie traps and Willow goes and rids the baby. They knock down the gate and charge in they get hit by crossbow arrows and rocks from catapults. While willow is hiding the baby he gets attacked by a troll. He uses the wand to protect himself and turns the troll into this odd form and kicks it off the bridge into the water below. Madmartigans traps run out and perpairs to attack the army. At this a giant two headed dragon appears behind him.

Hilarious scene from Willow when Madmartigan is affect by love dust and declares his love for Sorsha.

Preheat the oven to degrees F degrees C. Butter and flour a 9 x inch 33 x cm baking pan; set aside. Place the chocolate and butter in a medium saucepan and place the pan over low heat. Stir until the chocolate and butter are melted and well combined. Remove the pan from the heat source and pour the chocolate mixture into a large mixing bowl. Let the mixture stand until it is barely warm to the touch, about 10 minutes. Stir the sugar into the cooled chocolate mixture with a large wooden spoon. Add the eggs, one at a time, stirring well between each addition. Stir in the vanilla. Add the flour and salt and stir until just combined. Gently fold in the walnuts. Pour the mixture into the prepared baking pan and smooth evenly with the back of the wooden spoon. Bake for 22 to 25 minutes or until a toothpick inserted into the center comes out mostly clean with a few moist crumbs clinging to it. Allow the brownies to cool completely in the pan. Make the cream cheese layer: Beat on low speed with an electric mixer until just combined. Increase the speed to high and beat for 3 minutes, or until the mixture lightens in color. Add the vanilla seeds and beat for 1 minute longer. Spread the frosting evenly over the brownie layer and chill until firm, about 2 hours. Make the semisweet ganache glaze: In a small saucepan, combine the chocolate, butter, and heavy whipped cream. Cook over low heat, stirring slowly and constantly with a whisk, until the mixture is smooth, 5 to 7 minutes. Remove the pan from the heat source and stir in the corn syrup. Let the glaze cool to room temperature, about 25 minutes. Pour the glaze over the set cream cheese layer and use an offset spatula to spread the glaze evenly to the corners of the pan. The flavors really meld so nicely! Cut the chilled brownie slab with a sharp knife. Garnish each slice with a 2-finger pinch meaning, pinch the salt between your thumb and 2 fingers of Maldon salt; add more to taste. But try to be patient!

Share Willow Ufgood Willow Ufgood is the main, titular protagonist of the sword and sorcery fantasy film Willow and its arcade game adaption and videogame adaption. He is a reluctant Nelwyn dwarf and aspiring sorcerer who plays a critical role in protecting the special infant Elora Danan from the evil queen Bavmorda. He was portrayed by Warwick Davis who played Wicket W. Warrick in Star Wars. History Fearful of a prophecy stating that a girl child will be born to bring about her downfall, the evil Queen Bavmorda imprisons all pregnant women within her realm, the formidable stronghold of Nockmaar. The child, Elora Danan, is born in the Nockmaar dungeons and identified as the prophesied child by a birthmark on her arm. Bavmorda sends her daughter Sorsha and General Kael, the leader of her army, after the midwife to retrieve Elora. After a long pursuit, Nockmaar hounds finally catch up with the midwife. The child washes up on shore near a village inhabited by a race of dwarf-like people called Nelwyns derisively called "pecks" by humans and is found by the children of Willow Ufgood, a farmer and amateur conjurer. Willow is at first reluctant to take in the baby, but eventually comes to care for her. During the celebration, a Nockmaar hound that was tracking the baby attacks the village. Once the cause of the attack is found, Willow is chosen by the town council to return the child to the world of the "large people," or Daikini humans. Seeing a way to escape his cage, Madmartigan offers to take care of the baby. Willow entrusts the baby to Madmartigan, but on his way home, Willow is attacked by a clan of brownies, who stole the baby from Madmartigan. Willow is taken to the fairy queen of the forest, Cherlindrea, who tells him that the baby, Elora Danan, has chosen Willow to be her guardian. She gives Willow her magic wand and commissions him to find the sorceress Fin Raziel, with two of her brownies, Franjean and Rool, acting as his guides. Along the way, they bump into Madmartigan again, who helps them escape from Sorsha. Willow and the rest of the group finally meet Fin Raziel, only to find that the sorceress has been turned into a possum by Bavmorda. Soon afterwards Sorsha captures Willow and the others, and they start the long trek to Nockmaar castle. In a mountain camp, Willow attempts to use magic to turn Fin Raziel back into her human form, but transforms her into a Rook instead. Franjean and Rool cause further mayhem when they accidentally expose Madmartigan to a fairy love dust they are carrying, which makes him become infatuated with Sorsha, but eventually they manage to escape. Sorsha, Kael, and their army arrive and give battle. Willow encounters a few trolls, and after a botched magic spell, transforms one into a two-headed dragon. Luckily, the remnants of the Army of Galladoorn arrive just in time to help their friends. Amidst the melee, Sorsha finally realizes her love for Madmartigan. Kael, however, seizes Elora and takes her to Nockmaar. The heroes set up camp at Nockmaar, preparing to storm the castle in a final attempt to rescue Elora. Bavmorda turns all the soldiers into pigs, but Raziel teaches Willow how to protect himself from the spell. Willow finally returns Raziel to human form, and the sorceress is able to transform the soldiers back to people. In the morning, Raziel and Willow alone provoke the Nockmaar army into attacking them. Below, Kael kills Airk, then engages Madmartigan in a lengthy battle, which ends with Madmartigan killing the General. After a lengthy magical battle between Raziel and Bavmorda, Willow, using his sleight-of-hand trick, saves Elora and causes Bavmorda to get caught in her own ritual, banishing her own body and soul. Willow leaves the baby in the care of Madmartigan and Sorsha and returns home to his beloved family with a special gift:
